Against Price-Wage Ceilings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration is definitely against price-wage ceilings, says Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy, but will keep open that option against a possibility of galloping inflation.

In a question-and-answer exchange on the cause and cure of today's spiraling prices, Kennedy told The Associated Press that:

—"We can really have a galloping inflation"—If Congress abandons the surtax and Washington reverts to deficit spending and easy credit.

—Inflation should ease off about the end of the year.

—The boom seems to be slowing. But unless clearer signs emerge by July or thereabouts, a harder credit squeeze may be necessary.

—Government misjudged the deflationary force of the surtax and budget cuts last year. Fearing economic overkill with rising unemployment, the Federal Reserve kept credit too easy too long.

—If inflation slips its leash.

Wedding Locale Is Unexpected

Kathy Smethers

Kathy Smethers, daughter of Mrs. George Smethers, 708 East 13th, went to Independence to help complete plans for her upcoming marriage. She had no intention of being married while there.

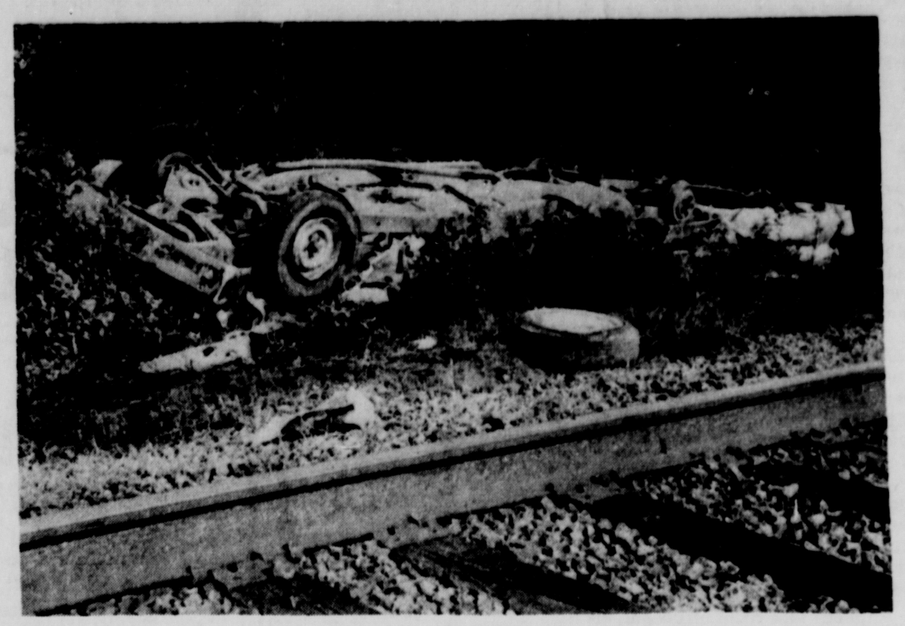

But that's how it turned out — and in a hospital room, complete with a wedding cake prepared by a hospital dietician Friday night. The nurses even acted as hostesses.

Kathy, engaged to James Hyme of Kansas City, was returning to Sedalia last Sunday with her mother when their car veered off a road in Independence. Both women were injured and hospitalized.

The wedding, originally scheduled to be held in Sedalia, was held at the hospital at the urging of the staff there. The young couple and their parents gave in — despite all other plans.

Consequently, the ceremony was performed in the hospital by a minister who was called especially for the occasion.

They will repeat the vows in a second ceremony after Kathy's injuries have healed. The second wedding presumably will be held in Sedalia — as originally planned.

Ten Killed

Vienna, Ge. — Ten persons were killed and two were critically injured when a freight train plowed into their car Saturday. Nine of the ten killed were children, ranging in ages from 3 to 12 years. A Southern Railways freight rammed the car as it sat stalled on the tracks.

Hog Cholera Epidemic Acknowledged Saturday

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) —The Missouri Department of Agriculture acknowledged a state hog cholera epidemic for the first time Saturday, announcing that the movement of most swine in Missouri has been banned.

The state department and the U.S. Department of Agriculture began an emergency hog cholera disease program June 13 on the basis of "numerous laboratory confirmed cases of hog cholera in Missouri during the first half of June," Dr. H. J. King, assistant to the state veterinarian, George C. Stiles, told the Associated Press. Announcement of the program was delayed because of a "work overload," King said.

The veterinarian described the disease as a highly infectious virus specifically of swine which in no way affects humans or other animals.

Incidence of hog cholera during the first five months of the year was low, King said. During the first two weeks in June, however, 25 confirmed cases were reported, most of them in the southern part of the state.

Exempted from the ban are butcher hogs. Feeder pigs and breeding swine, described as a mainstay for many farmers, may not be transported from one farm to another farm or from farm to market. Such livestock is also subject to a 21-day quarantine, King said.

The number of head affected by the move was not immefiately known.

In addition to the action announced by the department, "certain restrictions have been placed on Missouri swine by the states of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa and South Dakota," King said.

Shipments to these states must receive official permission from the states involved.

King said quarantined swine found to have hog cholera would be destroyed and the owners reimbursed by state and federal governments. The quarantine does not restrict other animals, he added.

The veterinarian stressed the program did not constitute an embargo on Missouri hogs, but said the ban "could have considerable economic effect since Missouri ranks within three or four states in the production of feeder pigs."

An estimated 80 to 90 per cent of feeder pigs raised in Missouri normally are sold to farmers in surrounding states, he said. "If other states did place an embargo on these feeder pigs it would hurt us very badly."

Stiles does not favor an embargo at this time, King said.

The emergency hog cholera restrictions will probably not affect the market price of pork because of a number of stabilizing factors, he added.

King was in Poplar Bluff to discuss control measures with area officials.

State Legislature Heads Into Final Full Week

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's strife-ridden Legislature heads into its final full week Monday with major revenue problems still unsettled.

Torn by personal and partisan conflicts from the start, the Legislature comes down to the wire with its main problems in greater disarray than at any time in the last quarter century.

The House has passed a bill calling for capital improvements of about $57.5 million. With no money in sight to finance it, the bill looks like an exercise in fantasy.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, the Senate Appropriations Chairman, said he saw no point in holding any hearings or taking any action on the measure in light of the current situation.

That's about what happened last year when the Legislature adjourned without approving any capital improvements. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes called the legislators back in special session and they approved capital expenditures of about $40 million.

This year the governor first recommended capital improvements of only $11.5 million, mostly for necessary repairs. Later he expanded the request to about $35 million.

That was with the expectation the Legislature would find the necessary revenue to finance the repairs and construction recommended.

But when both houses quit work for the week Friday, there was no new revenue in sight and considerable doubt on all sides that any revenue bills would be approved in the final hectic days.

A House-Senate conference committee is expected to resume its efforts Monday to find an acceptable compromise on the income tax increase that is the key solution of the whole fiscal problem.

The House approved a $34 million increase in individual income taxes but the Senate said that wasn't needed and voted only to increase corporate income taxes from a maximum of 2 to 5 per cent.

Board of Education's Ruling Tends to Divide Sedalians

By DOUG KNEIBERT
Assistant Editor

With the announcement by the Sedalia School Board on Wednesday that it had unanimously rejected two state proposals to conciliate the Hubbard School de facto segregation problem, Sedalians have tended to divide into two sides on the issue — those for and those against the school board's action.

Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, said Saturday that he had not received any calls as such from district patrons, but that those he talked with "on the street" and elsewhere "say they think the board did the only thing they could do."

William O. Hiatt, Jr., president of the Sedalia School Board, said "about two dozen" people had called him to express support for the board's action. He said he had received no calls expressing opposition.

The same general opinions have been reported by Mrs. Morris Walker, president of the Sedalia Council of PTA's, who said parents object to the state proposal to assign pupils to the schools in question on the basis of grade levels.

Opposition to the schools board's decision has also been vocal and immediate. Among the organizations that have joined in condemning the decision are the NAACP, the Northside Citizen's Association and the Pettis County Community Action Corp.

The later group has called a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Taylor Chapel Methodist Church, 400 North Lamine, to discuss the school board decision as well as the apparently stalled public housing program for Sedalia.

Dan McMahon, chairman of the Pettis County Community Action board, said the object of the meeting will be to "encourage local community citizens to become involved in the problems of the community."

"It isn't enough to merely talk about these problems," McMahon said, "we must take action —any legal action which will accomplish the goal." McMahon added that the desegregation issue at Hubbard "certainly demands that the parents of those children attending the school be at the meeting."

The Rev. Marvin Albright, chairman of the Sedalia Human Rights Commission, said the commission, while disagreeing with the school board decision, "feels that this is a problem that must now be solved between the state and the school board."

The two proposals made by the Missouri Commission on Human Rights involve either making Mark Twain, Jefferson and Hubbard Schools grade level schools, with each accepting two grades or using only Hubbard and Mark Twain in this capacity, with each accepting three grade levels.

The Sedalia board contends that since pupils in all three schools are permitted to attend either school, and since teachers are permitted to teach where they request, that it is not violating state anti-discrimination statutes. The Human Rights Commission complaint had found "probable cause" that the district assigned pupils and teachers on the basis of race to Hubbard School.

With the failure of the conciliation phase of the state's complaint against the school board, state law dictates that the next step be a public hearing, with the attorney general assuming jurisdiction. Such hearings, before three members of the Human Rights Commission, are normally held in Jefferson City but could, in this case, be held in Sedalia, according to a spokesman for the Human Rights Commission.

In this phase, all sides of the issue would presumably be aired, with the commission empowered to issue cease and desist orders if necessary. Redress to the courts would be the final step if no solution is reached as a result of the public hearing.

Interest Increases To Be Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department disclosed Saturday it is investigating the recent increase in the prime interest rate to see whether banks acted in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Richard W. McLaren, an assistant attorney general and head of the department's anti-trust division, said information gathered so far indicates no illegal action by the banks. But is too early to make a final judgment, he told the House Banking and Currency Committee.

At the same time, the White House rejected a request by the committee chairman, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., that it force a rollback of the June 9 increase from 7½ to 8½ per cent in the interest rate banks charge their prime customers.

That is the highest the prime rate ever has been and the 1 per cent boost is the largest single increase in history.

In a letter to Patman signed by Bryce Harlow, President Nixon's assistant for congressional affairs, the administration said the current level of interest rates reflects market forces that can be counteracted only by "a strong program of fiscal restraint."

McLaren said the antitrust division began a fact-finding investigation of the rate increase as soon as it was announced. But the inquiry will also cover four previous increases in the rate which have occurred since December, he said.

The investigation will be pursued in banks across the country, he said, and will cover all details involved in the increases, including the minutes of executive meetings, notes and memos of bank officials and any studies used as a basis for decision.

McLaren said that although he is unable to say now what the investigation is revealing "it is only fair to say that the reports I have thus far would not justify submitting the matter to a grand jury."

The committee also heard testimony Saturday from Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. Both called for federal action to restrain the banks from further rate increase.

'Operation Communication' Youth Conference Theme

The Little White House Conference On Children and Youth, Area III-2, which includes the counties of Benton, Pettis and Saline, was held Friday June 20, at Convention Hall, Liberty Park. The theme was "Operation Communication, Let's Talk, Listen, Learn, Act Together."

The keynote speaker was James I. Spainhower, Marshall, representative, 117th District, who stressed the fact that people of this area are not so much concerned with the problems of the ghetto of St. Louis, or of a univerity town like Columbia, but living in the Benton, Pettis and Saline area, and situations as they exist in these three counties.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Mary K. Hunter, Sedalia, adult co-chairman. Presiding was Libby Cain, Sedalia youth co-chairman, who introduced the speakers of the afternoon.

Dr. Ronald Parsons, psychologist, Missouri Valley College, Marshall, speaking on the family, stated that the most important difficulty facing all ages today is communication.

Each person lives in his own world and consequently people cannot see things alike, parents cannot see things like their parents. When one communicates, he said, he must be able to hear what the other person is saying.

Clyde Smith, who had talked to a number of young people for information for the panel, found that teenagers did not think much of counciling. If they were from a good home they didn't need it if they were from a bad home they weren't interested

Speaking on the church, the Rev. Marvin Albright, Sedalia, told of changes taking place in churches today, particularly the Catholic Church, and he feels that in time perhaps nine or ten denominations combine. He felt that when people speak of love, usually they are just mouthing, for they do not show this love of their fellow man in helping them.

Robin Rader, Sedalia, who said that some young people may feel that the church has nothing to give, told of the need for family worship and church cooperation.

Dr. Stephen Poort, State Fair Community College, Sedalia, talked on education, stating that the cirriculum of schools is usually not adequate. He told how many grades that American history is taught, as are other sugjects, and said this is not necessary. It is time to find out the quality of teaching and the amount of learning. Much of what is taught, he said, is not what students are looking for and not what they need.

The yough speaking on schools was Kenneth Leimkuehler, Napton, who stated that students should get involved in a class. It is necessary for teachers to teach children how to read a story, how to study, he said, and special programs should be given for slow-learning students. If a person wants to communicate he must have a broad background, not specialize, he said.

Leo Hayob, manager of the Chamber of Commerce at Marshall, talked on community, stressing the need for participation. All people, he said, have certain responsibilities to the community. Youth of today have the greatest opportunity of any time, he said. The owner of the theatre in Marshall, Hayob told of how children from 12 on smuggled alcohol and narcotics create real problems with youth.

Clinton Youngster In Critical Shape

CLINTON — An eight-year-old Clinton boy, Clyde Merrifield, was in critical condition Saturday at a Clinton hospital after a shooting accident Friday at his home.

The boy and his stepbrother, William Thomas, also 8, were playing with their father's .22 caliber rifle when it fired.

Students Oppose Visit

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller met with Uruguayan President Jorge Pacheco Areco Saturday in isolated Punta del Este while students opposed to his visit rioted in Montevideo.

Three hundred students broke windows of cars, stores and homes near this capital's medical school. Others marched shouting toward the center of the city.

Incendiary bombs were thrown at a Mormon church, a bank and a small factory. But police reported the demonstrators dispersed rather than clash with hundreds of troops occupying the city in expectation of trouble.

No injuries were reported in the daytime disturbances. But during the night two youths were wounded when police clashed with demonstrators outside the U.S.-owned First National City Bank of New York. Two others were arrested on charges of trying to throw a bomb at the president's home.

Rockefeller's overnight stay in Punta del Este was his last stop on a week's trip to Latin America, the third of four fact-finding tours for President Nixon.

His party and the Uruguayan government delayed the visit a day and switched it away from Montevideo in hopes of avoiding more trouble in the city, plagued by a week of student violence and labor union work stoppages.

But he stopped for 40 minutes at Carrasco International Airport near Montevideo en route to the Atlantic coast resort of Punta del Este from Asuncion, Paraguay, and the window-breaking began within an hour of his arrival.

Rockefeller came to Uruguay in his regular silver and gray U.S. Air Force jet. He was ferried to a naval base near Punta del Este, 90 miles away, in a U.S. Air Force propeller plane.

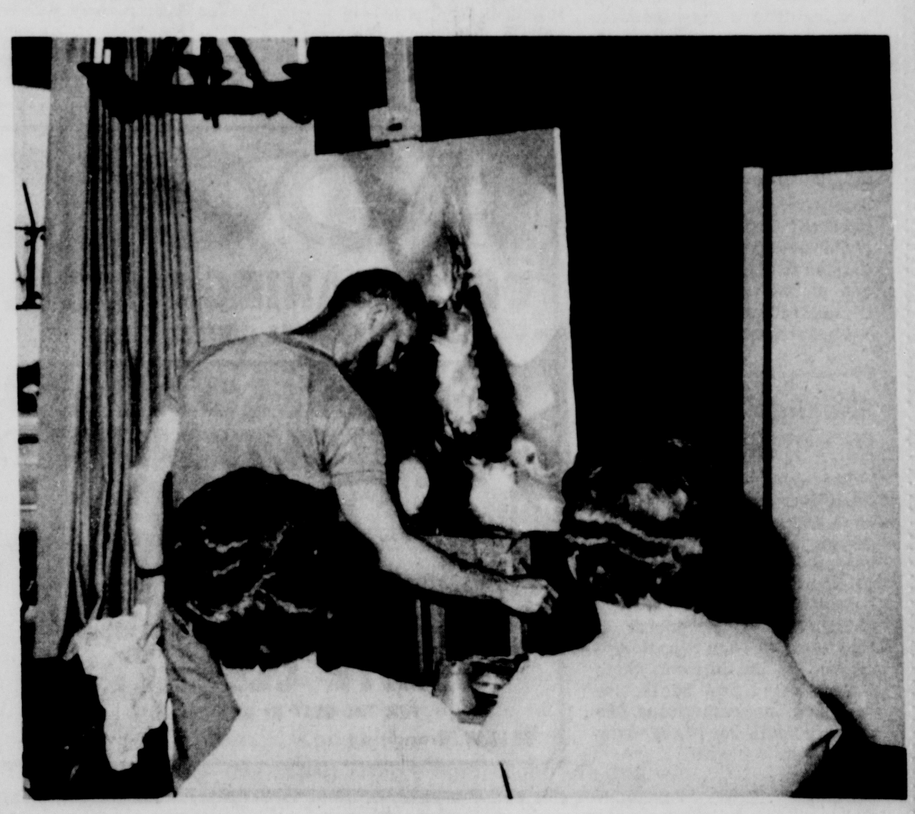

Pacheco Areco followed in another plane. The two met at a luxurious summer home near the Lafayette Hotel, where Rockefeller stayed. The governor also conferred with officials of the 11-nation Latin-American Free Trade Association.

With Steady Hands

M. Charles Rhinehart, Sedalia artist-in-residence, complete with an improvised apron, is shown working in his temporary studio Saturday at the Thompson Hills Shopping Center. The audience was apparently too interested in the work to worry about conversation. The canvas Rhinehart is working on is only partially completed. Rhinehart devotes much attention to even the smallest detail in his work. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

City's Resident Artist Busy Despite Gloomy Day

By PETE DANIELS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The conversation, such as it was, tended to be carried out in hushed tones. The expressions on the faces of those watching indicated, above all, interest in what was going on.

Although Saturday was a gloomy day, so much so that at one point he was forced to stop work, M. Charles Rhinehart, Sedalia's artist-in-residence, was busy with a new work.

Standing before the huge easel, he seemed at ease, glancing only occasionally away from the canvas. He works only in natural light.

It was an odd atmosphere of semi-silence, broken finally when Rhinehart quipped, "I don't work very well with all this racket around me."

After that the conversation became more lively, with questions going back and forth.

Since he established his temporary study at the Thompson Hills Shopping Center Cafeteria, about 100 people have visited Rhinehart and seen his work.

Most of them have been amateur painters. There haven't been any curiosity hunters, at least not yet.

Rhinehart and his wife have 10 children and call Ste. Genevieve, Mo., home. Rhinehart has his studio and gallery there. Traveling extensively, Rhinehart's work is included in the collections of such notable Missourians as Gov. nd Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes.

Asked if Rhinehart ever became so attached to one of his works that he couldn't sell

Former Bookmobile Lives It Up

Gets New Look

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele spend all of their spare time working on their new mobile home — a former Boonslick Regional Library bookmobile. The snack bar, cabinets and the refrigerator door have already been finished, using a plastic press-on type of finish. In another month the home should be completed, Steele said. By RALPH JONES
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

They are not sure just how much it will cost, but Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steel figure that when it's finished they will have one of the most unusual mobile homes in the area.

A few weeks ago the Steele's, who have been married only a few months, entered a bid on the old Boonslick Regional Library Bookmobile. Steele had little thoughts of being the high bidder, having submitted a bid of $1,500.

When the bids were opened Steele's $1,500 was indeed the highest bid, and the couple became the owners of the huge, van-like vehicle which had gained fame when it overtuned on West Broadway a few years ago. With it's load of books it was top-heavy.

"It is in fair shape, considering its age and the fact that it did not come out of the accident withou a few marks to remind its new owner of its earlier misfortune," Steele said. A spokesman from the library said the air conditioner "never did work quite as well as it did before the accident."

Regardless of its condition, Steele, who was born and reared in Smithton, and his wife Barbara decided something could be done with it. They decided to make a mobile home out of the vehicle then sell it—hopefully at a profit.

About three weeks ago the couple went to work. There isn't too much spare time—Steele works a regular shift at the Olin Coonductors plant west of Sedaiia—so every minute counts. Shortcuts are sought but seldom found, so it will probably take another month before the remodeling is finished.

Most of the shelves are being removed and replaced with fixtures more suitable to comfortable living. The air conditioner is being repaired. A television-radio combination is being installed. A stove and refrigerator has been installed, but not yet bolted down. Some old cabinets were purchased from a man tearing down a house and have been installed in the vehicle. A sink has been installed and ceramic tile is planned for part of the floor.

Two bunks to sleep four people will be included. One, sleeping two people, will be installed crosswise of the vehicle just above the driver and "assistant driver" seats. This bunk will fold out of the way when traveling. The other bunk will be included in a fold-out divan installed at the back of the vehicle.

The vehicle includes insulation, three skylights and when finished will even have a bay window.

The cost has not been determined. For instance, Steele planned to repaint the cabinets, but Mrs. Steele thought the new plastic press-on, wood-grained finish would look better. So the plastic finish is being installed.

"I figure the finished home will cost a total of about $2,300. But it all depends on my wife," Steele said.

When asked if they still plan to sell the vehicle when it's finished, Steele said, "We now plant to keep it. We have both always had a desire to visit Alaska and Mexico. This thing grows on you. When we began remodeling it became a challenge. It's a little out of plumb, some of the corners are not quite square, and when you begin to cope with something like that and to install your own things it's different. We wouldn't sell it for anything."

Steele has road-tested the vehicle several times—to the Lake of the Ozarks area and to Kansas City to show it to Mrs. Steele's family, and said it was found travel-worthy.

Sedalian Included In State Magazine

Mrs. James O. Cooney, 1108 West Broadway, has appeared in a recent issue of Missouri Mosaic, a nationally-distributed magazine published by the Missouri Tourism Commission.

Old Comic Books Bring High Prices at Meeting

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Shazam! Can this be? The first issue of Captain Marvel, the hero of millions, selling for $150?

'Tis true, faithful followers of the fabulous fighters of yesteryear. Attribute it to nostalgia or inflation, but the adventures of the good captain, along with Batman, Dick Tracy and Captain America, are as valuable in some circles as a grandmother's heirloom.

The heroes have their own followers, and they're meeting this weekend to buy, sell or trade comics at the Southwestern Comic Book Convention.

The thousands of comics on display are reminiscent of the days when it took a lot of effort to scrounge up a nickel for a 68-page Captain Marvel adventure.

But it was an investment in growing up. That one dog-eared issue was good for a whole afternoon under the tree in the backyard or in a secret corner of the attic.

It was also the best insurance policy that could be bought, either for rainy days or when forced to stand in the living room corner for an hour or so.

And its trading power with the kid down the block was unlimited.

Comic books first hit the stands about 1934. Those were the juicy ones, when crime paid sometimes, war stories were vividly told and the girls were as sexy as a Vargas vixen.

Times have changed. About 15 years ago a comics code was installed, restricting the material.

Crime no longer can win out and today's lot aren't too sexy. They've also been reduced to 36 pages.

Seek to Double Funds In Food Stamp Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate plans to vote next week on a proposal to more than double the food stamp program while its Agriculture Committee continues work on a comprehensive reform measure.

The committee agreed Friday on a simple resolution to increase authorized spending for the program from $340 million to $750 million in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Leadership sources said it would be brought before the Senate Tuesday with passage assured.

Then it goes to the House where Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, reportedly agreed to bring it up promptly.

The measure was introduced after it became apparent that Poage would hold lengthy hearings, in conjunction with general farm aid proposals, on any comprehensive food stamp reform measure passed by the Senate. His hearings are scheduled to open on July 15.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who has opposed the $750 million figure as too low, reportedly agreed to support it on the Senate floor.

In turn, Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, agreed to promot action on the comprehensive measure, so it can be passed in the Senate before Poage's hearings start.

In addition, Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee and ranking Democrat on Ellender's group, plans to delay final action on the farm money bill until the Senate raises the food stamp authorization.

This bill will enable the Senate to increase the $340 million voted by the House for the program in the year starting July 1, possibly as high as the new $750 million limit.

Otherwise, any increase in the food stamp program would have to wait until later in the year when Congress considers supplentary appropriations measures.

While McGovern has agreed not to try to add reform provisions or to raise the authorization level when the resolution comes before the Senate, other senators would be free to do so.

But without the support of McGovern, only agriculture committee member who originally wanted a larger bill, their chances would be slim.

Ten Persons Die as Train Hits a Car

VIENNA, Ga. (AP) — A car carrying two women and 10 children on a sunny afternoon outing was hit broadside by an eight-car freight train at a crossing near here Friday. Ten died, including nine children.

The crowded sedan, which apparently stalled as it attempted to cross the tracks, was dragged some three-quarters of a mile before the engineer of the Southern Railway train, William A. THompson of Valdosta, could halt the train.

Dooly County Sheriff H.C. Johnson identified the two survivors as Annie Mae Lowe, 27, of Vienna, the driver; and her 6-year-old daughter, Faye.

Killed were two other Lowe children; a sister of the driver, Eula Mae Pitts, 24, of Miami; Mrs. Pitts' daughter; and six children of another sister of Mrs. Lowe, Mrs. Mary Lewis of Vienna. The children ranged in age from 3 to 12.

Thompson told Johnson the car pulled up on the tracks and stopped. He said Mrs. Lowe apparently became excited on hearing the approaching train and stalled the engine of the car.

Life Prison Term Given Accused Man

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A district court jury convicted James A. Boyd, 20, Friday of armed robbery, first degree kidnaping and rape, and set his penalty at life imprisonment.

The state had asked for the death penalty.

Boyd was accused of robbing a movie theater Jan. 2, kidnaping the box office cashier, forcing her at knifepoint to walk with him to a park, and raping her.

In addition to the life sentence for kidnaping, Boyd could be given 10 to 21 years on each of three robbery counts, and five to 21 years for rape.

CRTA Has Spring Picnic

The annual spring picnic of the Community Retired Teachers Association was held at the home of Mrs. Nannie Sims, Green Ridge, Wednesday, with Mrs. Bereniece Close and Mrs. Marie Calvert, both of Green Ridge, as assisting hostesses.

A delicious contributive dinner was enjoyed at noon by the 35 members and guests who were present. The afternoon was spent in visiting.

Guests were: Mrs. Byron Chryst, Windsor; Miss Lucille Reavis, La Monte; Mrs. Harold Briggs, Miss Gayle Kendrick, Mrs. Carl E. Johnson and Mrs. John Purchase, Green Ridge; and Miss Nell Longan, Mrs. Doretta Waite and Miss Hazel Barnett, Sedalia.

The social committee, which helped with the picnic, consisted of Miss Edna Snell, Mrs. Georgia Zulauf, Miss Minnie Murphy and Miss Hortense Bapple, Sedalia; and Mrs. Lois Curtis, La Monte.

Silent Film Star Dies at Age of 70

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Natalie Talmadge, one of the three Talmadge sisters who became silent film star before 1920, will be buried Monday at private funeral services at Hollywood Cemetery.

Miss Talmadge, 70, died late Thursday shortly after being admitted to Santa Monica Hospital. She had been ill in recent years and lived in a convalescent home near the hospital.

With her sisters, Norma and Constance, she rose to stardom during World War I. She married comedian Buster Keaton in 1921 and gradually withdrew from the movies though her sisters remained active.

She and Keaton, divorced in 1932, had two sons. Keaton died in 1966.

Magazine Edition Is Confiscated

SAIGON (AP) — The government seized the June 13-20 edition of Ting Hoa—The Best—Magazine because it contained a poem criticizing the Saigon's administration's tax measures. An Information Ministry spokesman said the verses contained "false arguments detrimental to national stability."

Against

the government can resort to "whittling to the bone" on costs, still harsher curbs on money and credit and, finally, direct controls. But ceilings are "a very poor alternative and we shouldn't let it happen."

The interview:

Q.: Mr. Secretary, it is now 11 months since the surtax withholding from paychecks began, and inflation seems to be accelerating instead of subsiding. Do you think it will slow down?

A.: Yes, I definitely do. There are slight signs now of balancing out. But there is no question that we need the deceleration process to continue.

Q.: When do you expect to see results on prices—smaller increases?

A.: Results on prices will come much later than other signs of a slowdown in the economy. It might be three to six months after we see definite signs of a turndown in business activity.

Late in the year, or the end of the year, is about when I would expect to see, not a reduction in prices, but a slowdown in the rate of increase.

Q.: There is talk in the Congress of possibly only a six-month surtax extension. Can you combat the inflation psychology if people know that the surtax is going to be on the books for only six months?

A.: I think the psychological impact of a six-month extension would be very unfavorable. I think and hope that the Congress will extend the surtax at a 10 per cent rate to the end of the year and at 5 per cent to the end of next June.

Sedalia Branch, ABWA, Honored

The Sedalia Branch of the American Association of University Women was honored at the Twenty-fifth National Convention held June 15-20 in Chicago as one of the ten branches in the nation to receive an award for $100 for increased membership and quality of program during the preceding biennium.

During the past two years, Mrs. Paul Doering, formerly of 2413 Golf and recently of Tulsa, Okla., served as president of the Sedalia branch and Mrs. Ned Postels, 2605 Plaza, was vice-president and membership chairman.

Mrs. Postels, president-elect of the local branch, represented Sedalia as the official delegate and as an honored guest at the Southwest Central Regional Banquet on Tuesday evening at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago. On Wednesday also Mrs. Postels was honored at the special interest session and the winners' reception where branch membership chairmen, branch presidents, and members of winning branches had the opportunity to meet and be congratulated by Dr. Anne Pannell, national president of AAUW and the AAUW Educational Foundation, Miss Alice Beeman, AAUW general director, and members of the membership and evaluation committees.

Also attending the Chicago Convention from Sedalia was Mrs. Virgil Ellis, 2412 Golf, representing the Missouri Divison Board. Mrs. Ellis, a charter member and past treasurer of the local branch, has served during the past biennium as area representative for cultural interests on the state level and is treasurer-elect of the Missouri Division.

it, Mrs. Rhinehart said: "With those ten children, he can't afford to—yet."

While in Sedalia, Mr. and Mrs. Rhinehart are guests in the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Hopkins. Rhinehart will be here until noon Thursday.

The canvas Rhinehart was working on Saturday was a "semi-abstract" oil. Based on a pencil drawing made earlier, it consists of a tree stump set before a light gold background.

Most of his work, at least the semi-abstract pieces, are accented by a soft and well-balanced harmony of color. Where some paintings tend to be somber in tone, Rhinehart's work is light.

The term "abstract" actually seems to be erroneous when applied to Rhinehart's canvases. The loud splash of clashing color often identified with abstract art is replaced by Rhinehart, who favors stylized forms which "seem to whisper to the viewer," as one writer put it.

The reaction to an artist-in-residence, the first visit of its type here, has been very favorable, according to Mrs. Rhinehart.

Rhinehart's appearance in Sedalia was in cooperation with the Missouri State Council on the Arts.

Youth

Ron Keyes, Sedalia, youth member, talked on what the community offers. He spoke of shopping services, good schools, medical services, news services. He mentioned the increasing vandalism and crime. The new low cost housing, government, family, church and school all tie in with the community, he said.

Dan Miles, Warsaw, former United States senatorial assistant, urged that people take their blinders off if they think there is no poverty in the area's counties. He cited a nearby county where there are several run-down rural homes and people say, isn't it a shame they are going down, nobody lives there. But somebody does live in those rundown houses with windows broken out, he explained.

John Swisher, Saline County youth, talked on "Vacuum Filling." Government provides services, he said, only when communities have failed to solve their problems and give aid. He mentioned the poverty and other things and urged the young not to leave things for the government, but to face the crises of the city.

The meeting started at 2 p.m., closed at 4, and workshops began at 5:30 p.m. Those participating in the workshops were: Harry Browder, Sedalia; Elwin Yoder and Kathy Gregory, both of Warsaw; the Rev. Terry Welborn, Marshall; Julie Martin, Slater; Adra Franks, Warsaw; Joe Rains, Sedalia; Diane Brant, Lincoln; Don Arni, Sweet Springs; Mrs. B. F. Knipschild, Marshall; Joyce Kinkead, Warsaw; Mary Ellen Fischer, Sedalia; Bill Rose and Mrs. Gordon Drake, Warsaw; Robbie Owen, Sedalia; Beccie Krause, Sweet Springs.

Miss Marie Williams, executive secretary for the Missouri committee, was present.

Community

1. Teen club should be a reaction of the community to enable more young people to participate.
2. Youth must search for jobs through employment security office and counseling services at school.
3. Voting age should be lowered to 18 years.
3. A junior citizenship advisory committee should be formed to participate on city level.
4. Experienced young people should educate young people about the use of drug and government control of drug quality and distribution is needed.
5. The government should subsidize news programs rather than commercial products (government not having real power over the station) and the public will handle the problems by making intelligent decisions.

Family

1. More emphasis is needed for expansion of the community mental health center.
2. The communication gap will be bridged only when both adults and teenagers realize that listening is as important as speaking.
3. Family planning attempts should place major emphasis upon young persons. This should include education for family planning within the public schools.
4. More government financial support and more youth workers are needed for the present day care centers.
5. Consideration of persons unable to be drafted into military service for drafting into Civil Service jobs is needed.

Schools

1. Possibly a high scholl course of requirements for those students planning to go on to attend college; more vocational courses and work for those who do not plan to attend college.
2. Greater cooperation of occupationally related programs among present high school districts within the state.
3. A national study of the results of this for sex education, the successes and failures and the existing program.
4. Elementary school leaders in Missouri be required to take a minimum of eight hours in the field of preparation with a maximum of five years in order to upgrade their existing level of preparation.
5. Encouragement for the continued educational program of unwed and wed school-age pregnant girls.

Church

For all five items, all churches should work together to meet the needs of changing times. The churches should get more involved in social issues of the community and state. Youth should have more chances to help in setting up worship services and other programs of the church.

Government

1. Men should be chosen for military service at age 19 and given an opportunity to apply for deference.
2. No agreement to change the present voting age of 21.
3. Political and governmental programs should be introduced into secondary schools.
4. Present juvenile laws were approved.
5. Income maintenance programs favor money into education and training programs to help the poverty cycle.

Question

I have been receiving a monthly benefit from my deceased husband's Social Security earnings. I am going to marry a man who also is receiving Social Security. Will each of us continue to receive benefits?

Answer

Yes, but the amount will not be the sum of amounts you are now receiving individually. The income provisions applicable under the old law were revised and improved by the Social Security Amendments Act of 1965. Under the present law if you are both over age 60 when you remarry, the amount your husband is receiving will remain the same. You will receive whichever of the following benefits is the larger:

1. One-half of the retirement benefit of your deceased husband-or
2. A wife's benefit based upon the earnings of your prospective husband.

Soviet TV Show Hits U.S. Hard

MOSCOW (AP) — To the driving beat of a jazz combo, Moscow television has delivered a new hour-long blast at the American way of life.

The main skit of the acid, documentary-style program, broadcast in prime time Friday night, told of the Statue of Liberty coming to life and deciding to run for president.

Evil forces in America are swept by panic and they hire a gangster to machinegun her.

"Okay, but money in advance," the gangster demands, and he is handed a few piles of dollar bills.

But his bullets bounce off, liberty lives, and the skit ends with an expression of impotent horror on the gangster's face.

American gangsterism, violence, racial suppression and the power of money are drummed into the minds of the Soviet people with numbing frequency.

This latest program, entitled "How Are You Getting Along, America?" was an ambitious production that included film clips from Harlem, the Vietnam war and American political conventions.

The convention shots, which showed a brief glimpse of a Nixon poster, were interspersed with views of a Roman orgy, complete with girls and grapes.

Tentative Accord Reached in a Tie

KANSAS CITY, KAN. (AP) — Tentative agreements on new contracts for 10 unions at the Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. plants were reached Friday by negotiators.

The contracts will be presented to the workes for ratification early next week. About 1,000 employes have been on strike since April 15.

A. Dave Herring, federal mediator, said contract talks will not be disclosed until the workers vote on them.

Sweet Springs Will Upgrade Fire Fighting

SWEET SPRINGS — Residents here recently voted the second time on a 30-cent per $100 assessed valuation increase in the tax levy to purchase new fire fighting equipment. The issue passed by a large margin, 314 to 29.

The levy, which will begin in 1970, is expected to amount to approximately $6,000 a year for the period 1970-1972.

In a meeting held recently at the Sweet Springs City Hall, Fire Chief Elmer Mueller explained that the city fire truck was 23 years old and inadequate under Missouri laws.

He said that the present truck was capable of discharing 350 gallons of water per minute at maximum pressure while the Missouri Inspection Bureau required that a minimum of 500 gallons per minute be discharged at minimum pressure.

Mayor Raphael Hall said that bids would be accepted on equipment for the Sweet Springs Fire Department and that it would take six months to acquire the $20,000 truck.

Seek Limit On Funding For ABM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators trying for a compromise in the antiballistic missile fight hope to strictly limit the number of Safeguard missiles the Pentagon can buy in the coming year.

This is in addition to their primary goal of prohibiting deployment of any ABMs at the two initial Safeguard sites in Montana and North Dakota until Congress later gives the go-ahead, sources said.

In addition, the sources said, the Senate Armed Services Committee is being asked to speak out in favor of a U.S. initiative to convince the Soviet Union to join in mutual cessation of testing and deployment of MIRVs, which would enable a multiwarhead-equipped missile to bear in on several different targets at once.

All of these points, including the MIRV issue, were in the conclusions of a majority report of a special research subcommittee forwarded to the full committee earlier in the week.

The report will come under scrutiny of the committee when it starts serious work of marking up the $21.9 billion military procurement authorization bill Tuesday.

Since the bill includes funds to procure, develop and test Spartan and Sprint missiles for ABM use, limits on any one of these activities could be written into the legislation either in the committee or on the Senate floor.

The MIRV issue is somewhat different since those who want to halt its testing and deployment pending U.S.-Soviet arms talks are trying for a policy statement rather than restrictive legislation.

The move within the committee is in addition to Sen. Edward W. Brooke's Sense-of-the-Senate resolution which now has 41 sponsors and, the Massachusetts Republican's aides say, pledges of support from more than 50 of the 100 senators.

Reports that a majority of the subcommittee's five members had agreed on Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre's proposal to permit deployment of Safeguard's computers and radars at the two sites—but without the missiles—brought Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., to the Senate floor late Thursday to object.

"They did not make any report or recommendation at all so far as the ABM or any phase of it is concerned," he said.

The reason for the guarded language, sources report, is that the subcommittee had no specific powers to recommend legislation.

Premier Fulfills Promise

PARIS (AP) — Suave, bright - eyed Jacques Chaban-Delmas, France's new premier, is the incarnation of President Georges Pompidou's campaign promise of continuity and new ideas.

Chaban-Delmas, 54, was a wartime resistance leader but was not with the coterie that surrounded De Gaulle. During his political career he has been favorable to Gaullist principles but not unswervingly attached to De Gaulle himself.

He accepted ministries in the Fourth Republic at a time when it was fashionable for hard-core Gaullists to shun the oft-changing governments. But as defense minister in 1958, he helped in the maneuvering that led to De Gaulle's return to power.

Paul Reynaud was De Gaulle's choice for president of the National Assembly when the Fifth Republic was installed in 1959, but Chaban-Delmas opposed Reynaud and won. By protocol the job ranked fourth in France, but Chaban-Delmas was never invited to move closer to the formation of policy.

Thus Chaban-Delmas has been a faithful Gaullist in his own fashion and can confidently claim to represent a continuity of Gaullist policy. But he has also been an outsider to the real inner circle, and can pretend to bring a new face and new methods of government.

The move to the Hotel Matignon, the premier's office and residence, may force some radical changes in Chaban-Delmas' rhythm of living.

He has been mayor of Bordeaux since 1947, and has established a routine of spending four days in Paris and three days in Bordeaux. The premier's duties may force him to devote much more of his time to Paris.

And he may have much less time for his athletic activities.

Chaban-Delmas was an avid rugby player in his younger days and was selected for French amateur teams in international competitions. Later he turned to tennis and got all the way to the finals of the men's doubles in the French national championships in 1965.

He still plays tennis, and one of his partners has been U.S. Ambassador Sargent Shriver.

Missourian Listed As War Casualty

A Cold Spill

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wagner, professional canoeists from Oscoda, Mich., did not hit the Owosso, Mich., dam just right and were spilled into the Shiawassee River during a 55-mile race Thursday which ended at Owosso. The Wagners righted their canoe in the shallow rapids and went on to win their event. The race was part of the annual Shiawassee River Days celebration.

Democratic Study Group Gathers Data

County Democrats are in the process of gathering information which will be presented at Democratic headquarters in Jefferson City for evaluation by a 16-member panel in September.

James T. Denny, Pettis County Democratic chairman, said the title of the group is "Missouri State Commission on Democrat Party Constitution By-laws and Party Structure."

The plan to improve the organizational structures of local Democratic groups came from Delton Houchens, chairman of the state committee.

The Pettis County executive board will meet with the state board to co-ordinate activities and discuss any changes that might be needed on the local level, Denny said.

Members of the county executive board are Denny, chairman; Mrs. Laura Fisher, co-chairman; Winston C. Ream, treasurer; and Mrs. Vivian Warren, secretary.

Subtract $69.00 from last year's price.

You've heard that general rule: To get more you pay more.

Let's break it.

Take this '69 Malibu Sport Coupe. With head restraints. Add Powerglide automatic transmission, power disc brakes and whitewall tires. (Wheel covers, too, which haven't changed in price.) Then total. When you compare it with last year's Malibu, equipped the same way, it's priced $69.00* less.

The reason? We've made head restraints standard. And, while the whitewalls went up slightly, we've cut the price on Powerglide and our advanced-design power disc brakes, substantially. Altogether, it's more Chevelle for less money. Nice.

So's this. A standard 200-hp V8 engine. Astro Ventilation and full door-glass styling. A new anti-theft locking device on the steering column helps keep your car yours.

A computer-selected suspension gives you a ride so smooth it leaves bumps where they belong. On the road. And it's all on Chevelle. Priced $69.00 less.

You see. You don't have to pay more to get more. And your Chevrolet dealer's proving it right now.

Florida's Keys Hear the Whisper of Winds With Legends of Gold

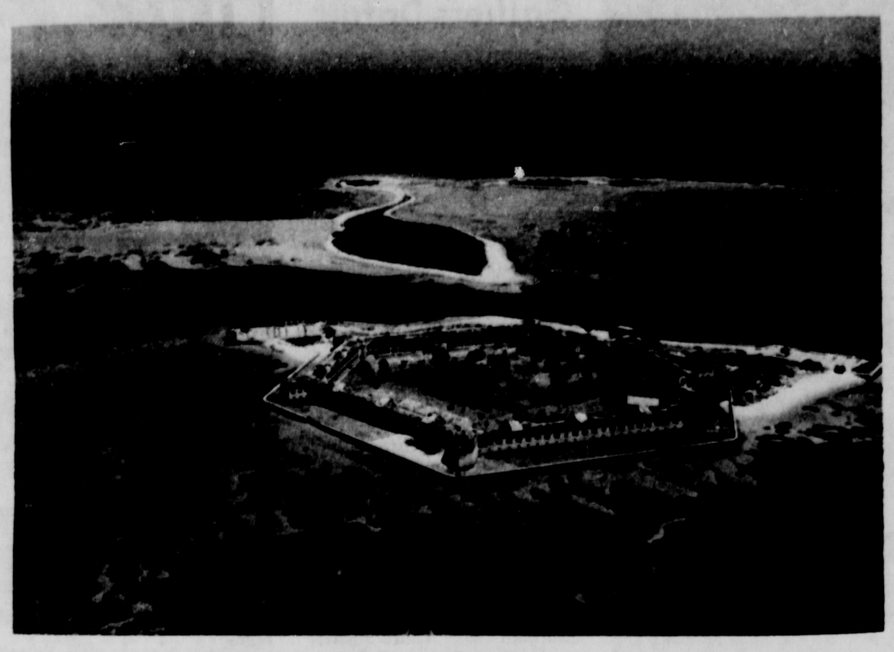

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The Conchs, as the natives who got here ahead of Hemingway and Harry Truman are called, refer to this exquisite scattering of tiny islands and coral reefs as "the end of the rainbow."

Here America's past is written on the wind: tiny flags fluttering on the graves of sailors who died when the battleship Maine was blown up, cormorants flat-footed on a rock, drying their wings in the same pose that John James Audubon caught them in 1832, shrimp boats with their net booms extended like the yardarms of the great clipper ships that 150 years ago made Key West a port second only to New York, submarines slipping into the sea on constant patrol since the great Cuban missile crisis of 1962, weathered wooden fishing boats bobbing on the tide in Garrison's Bight in curious imitation of the speedy craft that Harry Morgan, Hemingway's antihero, used to run rum and Chinese wetbacks in the halycon days of "To Have and Have Not."

There is gold at the end of this rainbow, they say, and each year a new task force of skin-divers and treasure hunters plunge in to seek the Spanish plate fleet that came to grief on the reef centuries ago, their holds bulging with Mexcian gold and Peruvian silver. Then there is, so the winds whisper, the treasure that Captain Morgan, Bluebeard Teach and Black Caesar, the Negro pirate, buried on the beach in some backwater of the keys from the ships they coaxed on the reef with phony beacons before the U.S. Lighthouse Service came into existence.

But for most, the only gold they find is the sun going down in wide-screen glory akmit the breeze-bowed coconut palms of Dry Tortugas, where the United States and the Florida Keys officials succumb to the sea. And the only silver they see is the tarpon, making his final leap for life before he lands gray and beaten in the bottom of a boat.

Rainbow's End

The Dry Tortugas, famed in pirate lore, is the last of the Florida Key chain of islands and coral reefs referred to by native Conchs as, "the end of the rainbow." Here on Dry Tortugas, seen from the air, is Fort Jefferson. Now a national monument the fort once imprisoned Dr. Samuel Mudd, who set the broken leg of assassin John Wilkes Booth. (AP)

The nicest thing about this sprawl of misplaced Caribbean islands that stretch in a 200-mile southwestern arc from the tip of the Florida mainland across the Gulf toward Mexico is that civilization has taken so long in catching up with them.

Lack of transportation and fresh water spared the Keys the worst tremors of the great Florida land boom. Empire builder Henry M. Flagler, who dreamed of linking North, Central and South America with one long railroad, pushed his tracks through to Key West in 1912 after eight years of construction that cost $50 million and 600 lives, most of them to hurricanes and yellow fever. The Labor Day hurricane of 1935 wiped out the railroad for good, but its magnificent roadbed and 42 arched concrete bridges became the Overseas Highway, the southernmost extension of U.S 1. Sweet-water wells lured Spanish galleons and British ships of the line to the Keys in the days when the Spanish Main was a going thing, but the water problem wasn't solved until the outbreak of World War II when the Navy ran a 130-mile pipeline from the mainland.

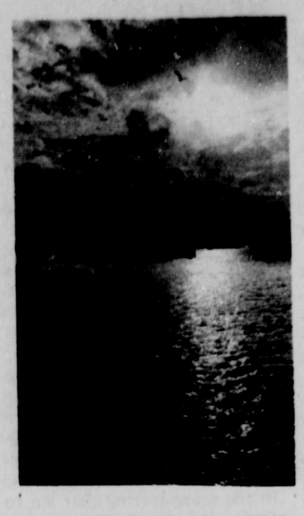

Ulysses S. Grant started the presidential parade to the Keys in search of fish and seclusion, while Dr. Samuel Mudd was languishing in exile on Fort Jefferson, the most farflung of the Keys, for unwittingly setting the broken leg of assassin John Wilkes Booth. After Grant came Taft, Coolidge, Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who made the bone fishing famous off Long Key, Eisenhower, Harry Truman, who in 11 working vacations located his little White House on the Key West Naval Base, and now Richard Milhous Nixon, who has sent real estate prices zooming in Key Biscayne, which the true Conchs don't count as part of the Florida Keys.

The Conchs, the first anti-Establishment types to inhabit these parts, were Irish and Scotch Tory types who fled to the Bahamas — Sweden being too far in those days — to avoid service in the Continental Army. Their motto supposedly was, "We would rather eat conch than go to war," thus conferring on them the name of the pinkish shell fish that remains the star of that delectable native dish called Conch chowder. When the war ended, the Conchs worked their way back to the Keys, bringing some of the Bahaman natives with them, and settling down to a secretive, downright antisocial way of life that set the tone for the Keys.

There are those who say the Keys, and particularly Key West, have been slowly sliding towards constraining civilized ways ever since Mom moved her well-known sporting house, "Mom's Place," over to Stock Island with a gala motorcade and the City Council passed an ordinance banning artist Henry Faulkner from walking his goats down Duval Street.

"You can still do what you please, provided it's in the privacy of your own garden," says French portrait painter Marie DeMarsan, thumbing her patrician nose with a pinch of snuff.

The ambiance of the Florida Keys runs the gamut from the exclusive Ocean Reef Club, with its own airfield and marina for some of the nation's spiffiest yachts, to the old ladies in the tennis shoes, the real article, digging for bottles on West Beach, which in the 18th century was the town dump. In between are Key Largo, which Maxwell Anderson immortalized in a play; John Pennecamp Coral Reef Park, the only state park completely under water; Plantation Key, whose museum of sunken treasure underlines the statistic that in one year, 1840, 500 ships went down on the reef; Tavernier Key, where the pirate Jean Tavernier used to lie in wait for customers; the school for porpoises at Long Key; Carysfort Reef and Fowey Rocks, named for ships of the line buried under the coral; Craig, the ghost town that Hurricane Donna left on Matecombe Key, and all the other mysterious islands with names like No Name Key, Boot Key, Pigeon Key and Marking Time Island, the roadless, streetless refuge of the man who invented the parking meter.

The average tourist wends his way along the Florida Keys passing over some 42 bridges making up the Overseas Highway. Seldom seen by visitors is this view of Looie Key, located off Big Pine Key, a reef that is popular with skindivers. (AP)

The winter the snug harbors of the Keys are thronged with hundreds of shrimp boats from home ports as far away as Galveston and Wilmington, N.C., with soft names like Dawn, Miss Aline, Louise, Felicia, dragging for the jumbo shrimp discovered here in 1949. Marathon's population nearly doubles with commercial fishermen in November when the great schools of Spanish mackerel and kingfish appear. A walk along the seawall at Garrison Bight at 4 p.m. when the charter boats come in and hang up their catch for the pelicans and tourists to admire gives one only a suggestion of the abundance and variety of fish found off the Keys: snapper, tarpon, dolphin, marlin, sailfish, amberjack, cobia, grouper, barracuda.

Compared to the glitter and grandeur of Miami Beach, the Keys may strike the visitor as a bit tacky and time worn, but John Spottswood, a fifth generation Conch, has plans for reviving the old ambiance. He is lovingly and expensively restoring the old Casa Marina, railroader Henry Flagler's magnificent hotel that in its day ranked with the Breakers in Palm Beach and the Ponce de Leon in St. Augustine, which he also owned. Built of the same sturdy concrete arches that supported the old railroad roadbed, the Casa Marina has a stupendous, breezeswept view of the ocean and its hand-carved teak lobbies still shelter the ghosts of the Vanderbilts and Harrimans, who came here for what was then known simply as "the waters."

And in the sum it is the waters, the splendid seas all around, that give the Keys their special glory. See them just after daybreak, with the shrimp fleet spread out under a smoldering sky and cool breeze ruffling the tops of the palm trees on that spangle of islands. Or under a full moon when the percussive thunder of breakers on the reef seems to awake the ghosts of all those buried galleons, and cobwebs of clouds slipping by in the luminous night move their shadows over the sleeping Keys, some unspoiled by even a street light. By day under a glaring sun or at night under the cold fire of the stars, the music of the Keys is the music of the sea, sifting the shells over the sand, slapping at the coral; its perfume is the pungent aroma of the sea, softened with the scent, of orchid and hibiscus, the heady exotic smell of the tropics.

Every mile along the Florida Keys is a subject for a painter's canvas. Here, approximately half-way between Key Largo and Key West, is a photographer's composition taken at Marathon, Fla. Tropical mangrove shrubs frame a crusted relic on the shore, and a sunken sailboat in the shallow waters of a quiet bay. (AP)

Slender and straight, the Seven Mile Bridge, longest of the many bridges that carry Route One across the keys, heads eastward toward Marathon. (AP)

Nixon's Statements Generate New Optimism About Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's newest comments on U.S. troop withdrawal are being interpreted by some military sources as meaning 250,000 American servicemen could be out of Vietnam by the end of 1970.

Nixon said Thursday "I would hope that we could beat" a timetable proposed by former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, calling for the pullout of 100,000 troops by this year's end and all U.S. ground combat forces by the close of 1970.

Military sources, after Nixon's news conference, noted the President referred to action already taken to withdraw one-tenth of American fighting forces, meaning the 25,000 who will come out in July and August.

The 25,000 is considered by the administration as the equivalent of a combat division "package," counting support elements.

There are 10 Army and Marine divisions or equivalent in Vietnam. If all these ground combat packages were brought out, it would total about 250,000 men, officials suggest.

That still would leave nearly 300,000 men in Vietnam to provide air, helicopter, artillery and other backup for the South Vietnamese infantry. Gradually, these backup elements would be reduced as the South Vietnamese took over their functions.

Military planners have contended it would take about two years to complete an orderly withdrawal of the roughly 540,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam and huge amounts of equipment and supplies, other than what would be left behind for the South Vietnamese.

As for further withdrawals after the first 25,000, Nixon said "another decision will be made in August."

The number, the President said, "will depend upon the extent of the training of the South Vietnamese, as well as developments in Paris, and the other factors that I have mentioned previously."

One such factor would be the level of enemy military activity.

Nixon told the nation "there is no substantial evidence, publicly" that the time has come for substantive negotiations with the enemy in Paris, where the peace talks are in a virtual stalemate.

However, the President said he is not pessimistic about the outcome and said "we hope within the next two or three months to see some progress" in discussions.

Thinking has been in terms of removing possibly up to 70,000 troops, overall, by the first of next year. Nixon's remarks opened the prospect of raising the goal to 100,000 or more this year.

Nixon rejected Clifford's implication "that the United States is at the present time responsible for the level of fighting."

"It takes two in order to reduce the level of fighting," Nixon said, adding a suggestion that if the enemy would match the U.S. troop withdrawal "that would tend to reduce the level of fighting."

Nixon had some tart comments on the record of the Johnson administration and Clifford, though he said "I respect his judgment as a former secretary of defense."

Asked whether he had any comment to offer, Clifford replied: "None."

"I said all I had to say," Clifford added, referring to his 21-page article on the war.

Street Work Is Hampered By Rainfall

R. W. Cunningham, city engineer, said Friday that resurfacing of city streets was being hampered somewhat by wet weather. However, he felt that all proposed projects would be finished by September.

The city street department is resurfacing 79 blocks and the Sedalia 12-Mile Special Road District, 75 blocks. The street department also is working on seal coating 79 blocks.

In addition, the City Council has approved but not budgeted the resurfacing of 14 blocks, mostly in the downtown area, with hot mix asphalt.

To Visit World Fair

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant is planning to visit the Japanese World Exposition in Osaka in mid-April next year.

Wheelchair Driver Not An Exception

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Ray Lewis was tooling down the street at top speed when the state trooper motioned him to the side of the road.

The trooper ordered Lewis to get a driver's license and license plates.

"I just couldn't believe I had to do all that stuff to be able to use my wheelchair," Lewis said. "For almost seven years, I've been going up and down there and never once got pulled over."

Lewis, 24, broke his neck in a swimming pool accident eight years ago and has been confined since then to his six-mile-per-hour motorized wheelchair.

Lt. August Hambacher of the Florida Highway Patrol said state law requires anyone who operates a motorized vehicle on state or county roads to have a driver's license and license plates.

Lewis said he drives his $800 wheelchair on the street because uneven surfaces such as sidewalks cause micro-switches in the vehicle's electric motor to burn out.

"The law states you can't operate a motorized vehicle on the sidewalk, so as it stands, the've got me both ways," Lewis said.

Driving examiner Gilbert Benton said Lewis will have to pass both road and written tests Tuesday before he can be licensed to drive his wheelchair.

"A little observance of the manipulation of the chair is all we'll require—as ridiculous as it seems," Benton said. "It's the law and has to be done.

Russians Are Out, French In

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — The Russians have been expelled here and the West—at least France—now has this dazzling example of "neocolonialism" all to itself again.

France gave the Ivory Coast independence in 1960, but the French never left. This city of 450,000 is a blend of Paris-like shops and parks with lagoonside boulevards, all landscaped in lush greens and reds.

More than $4 million worth of wine is imported annually along with cheeses, mineral waters and gadgets and fashions for "les drugstores." Thirty thousand Frenchmen, even some French prostitutes, live here.

Soviet ideologists frequently assailed the French presence, evoking the term "neocolonialism" so unloved in Africa. Apparently, Western diplomats say, they overdid it.

President Felix Houphouet-Boigny, 64, a friend and former minister of Charles de Gaulle, gave the Soviet ambassador and his mission 48 hours to leave on May 30.

The Soviet mission, which listed nine diplomats, flew out four tons of freight and left the rest for sea shipment. They received a 24-hour extension but troops surrounded the embassy.

No official reason was given though the government subtly indicated the expulsion had to do with Soviet middling in student disturbances. Many observers regard this as a cover for other reasons.

"Houphouet was never very happy with the Russians," said one well-informed diplomat from a small Western nation. "I think he was happy for the pretext to be rid of them."

Houphouet-Boigny had wanted to prove nonalignment and seek a nonquota coffee market but the price was too high, the diplomat said.

Semantics aside, "neocolonialist" involvement here has made this a showcase in emergent Africa. The country exported $400 million worth of products last year; its $110 million trade surplus was more than many African countries sold altogether. It is the world's third largest coffee producer and fourth in cocoa.

International bankers last year lent the Ivory Coast $10 million in Eurodollars, the first such loan to Black Africa.

Total foreign investment figures are lacking, but a government annual lists 42 pages of major enterprises, mainly French, some with capital ranging over $2 million.

France pumps in $20 million to $25 million a year in grants and loans, not counting sizable items like war—service indemnities to veterans.

High-rise buildings spring up like jungle umbrella trees.

The drawback is the intangible sociological conflict. Ivorians must decide whether a crack at the good life is worth having a staggering majority of Frenchmen holding key public and private posts in their country. A large measure of patronization and bald rudeness still exists among some old colonials.

Still, there is a surprising lack of discernible objection to Houphouet-Boigny's pro-Western stance. For one thing, the press is relatively muzzled.

Also, the foreigners mean work for the Ivory Coast's four million inhabitants. More than a million Africans from neighboring countries have sought the Ivory Coast's greener grass. If racism or high prices grated them, they could always go back to Upper Volta, Mali, Guinea or Wherever. Few do-most just learn Parisian slang.

Hijacker Of Plane Identified

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI has identified the tall Negro who hijacked an Oakland-New York jetliner to Havana last Tuesday as Willie Lee Brent, a former Black Panther captain who would have gone on trial here Monday on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

The Black Panthers have branded Brent as an infiltrator and agent provocateur.

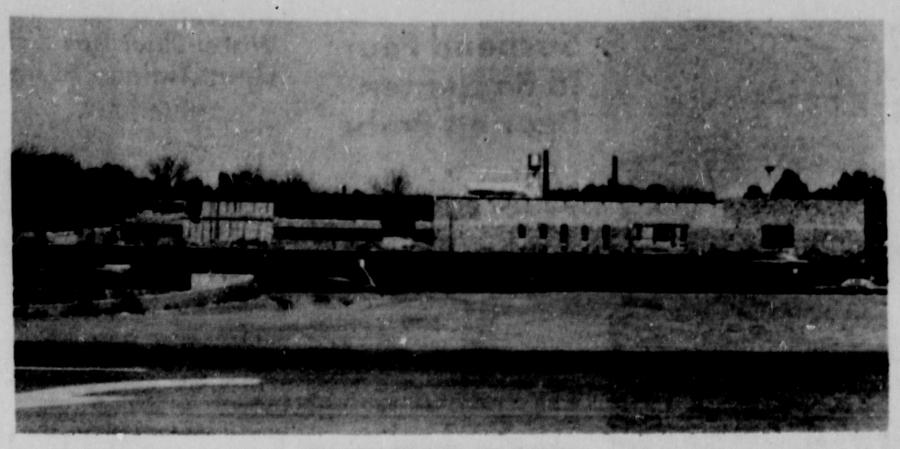

FBI special agent-in-charge Charles W. Bates announced Friday two warrants had been sworn out in Las Vegas, Nev., for Brent on charges of air piracy and carrying a weapon aboard an aircraft.

The hijacking of the Trans World Airlines plane occurred over Nevada. A man forced the airliner, carrying 80 passengers and a crew of seven, to fly to Havana on the longest hijack flight reported thus far.

The plane and all aboard, except Brent, reached New York safely the same day.

Bates said descriptions of the hijacker by his victims match those of Brent, a 39-year-old native of Franklin, La., who was involved in a Panther gun battle with police here last Nov. 19.

Charged with armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, he was free on $50,000 bail.

Demand Proof Union Speaks For Workers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ten major California table grape growers say they won't ratify a pact with an AFL-CIO farm workers union in a three-year strike and boycott unless the workers themselves agree to its terms.

And they want proof that Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Organizing Committee represents their workers.

Both sides met formally for the first time Friday in efforts to settle the three-year "grape war" and international California table grape boycott instituted last summer. They plan to meet again Monday with federal mediators.

"We are satisfied with the progress and we agree with a statement by the employers that any agreement reached should be ratified by the workers," said Dolres Huerta, a union negotiator and Chavez aide. Chavez wasn't present.

The closed-door session was initiated by the growers, who say they represent vineyards producing 12 per cent of the state's $140 million table grape harvest. Many other growers call the meetings "a sellout."

Stu Calls Off Plans to Visit Testing Range

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., told a news conference Friday he had called off for the present, plans to visit the Kwajalein test range where antiballistic missile components are being tested.

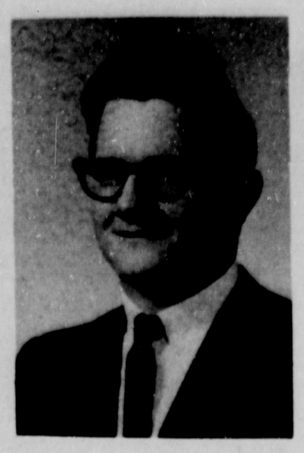

He said the Senate Armed Services Committee, of which he is a member, plans to meet every day next week to work on the military procurement authorization bill which includes safeguard funds.

Symington, a critic of the Safeguard ABM proposal, ndicated he opposes Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre's ABM compromise that would delay deployment of the system's missiles.

The Missourian said the New Hampshire Democrat's proposal—under which the ABM's radars and computers would be deployed — "is a much better system" than the administration's plan for deploying two complete Safeguards.

Unusual 'Invasion' Creates Emergency

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (AP) — An invasion of thousands of crabs has forced authorities of the small island of Salamanca to take emergency measures.

"It is a frightening spectacle," said one official. "There are crabs on the beaches, in huts and even in the trees."

Estimates were that at least 50,000 crabs made up the silent invasion which, among other things, threatened wildlife in an animal park on the island.

Days of Success Waited Long Enough

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Sues, the blond guy who is the paranoid sportscaster, Big Al, on NBC's "Laugh-in" is still another of those overnight successes who has been around knocking on doors for years.

Sues, in fact, was a member of the 1957 Broadway cast of "Tea and Sympathy," and in spite of engagements at such anvils of comedy as the Blue Angel in New York and the hungry I in San Francisco, nothing much happened.

"I met George Schlatter producer and creator of 'Laugh-In' when he was producing Edie Adams' act in Las Vegas," Sues said. "I was working with Larry Tuck and Paul Muzursky—he later wrote 'I Love You, Alice B. Toklas'—doing impressions. We got fired after two days, and they brought in Rowan and Martin. That was four or five years ago."

Sues then got a job in "Mod Show," a Los Angeles revue that was similar in form and pace to "Laugh-In," and moved on to New York with the East Coast version.

"I ran into George on Madison Avenue one day and he asked me if I'd like to appear in his show. I went to the coast to do three shows, was picked up for 15—and wound up doing all 26."

Now one of the series' resident madmen, Sues is touring the profitable summer fair circuit with Rowan and Martin, Ruth Buzzi, Henry Gibson and Dave Madden.

The "Big Al" feature, which caught on with TV audiences, was developed from material he worked out with his former wife. But like all the other cast members, Alan is all over the show, much of the time disguised with mustaches, wigs and strange costumes.

"That show is not for beginners," he said with a shake of his head. "We have a 243-page script and our average shooting time is two days. The pace is so fast that most of us have to be our own directors—the director is pretty well occupied just setting up camera angles."

Sues, whose comedy style is unique, appears to have been born a comedian. He is as entertaining off-stage as on. He comes from a substantial, upper middle-class family—his father until retirement recently was the Southern California distributor for a large electronic equipment company.

Alan has a tendency to get caught in unusual crises. When he arrived in Hollywood for his first "Laugh-In," he sublet a second-floor apartment and was admitted by the superintendent.

"Something happened to the lock, and I was trapped inside one Saturday night," he recalled. "I couldn't climb out and we couldn't get a locksmith until Monday. I spent Sunday with nothing to do but start and stop the garbage disposal unit—there wasn't even a magazine in the place."

At the moment, Sues, like the other "Laugh-In" comedians, is very hot and, like the others, he is eager to take advantage of the exposure to build up his career. He is eager to pick up some of that beautiful money doing commercials and, like every other performer, get started in feature movies.

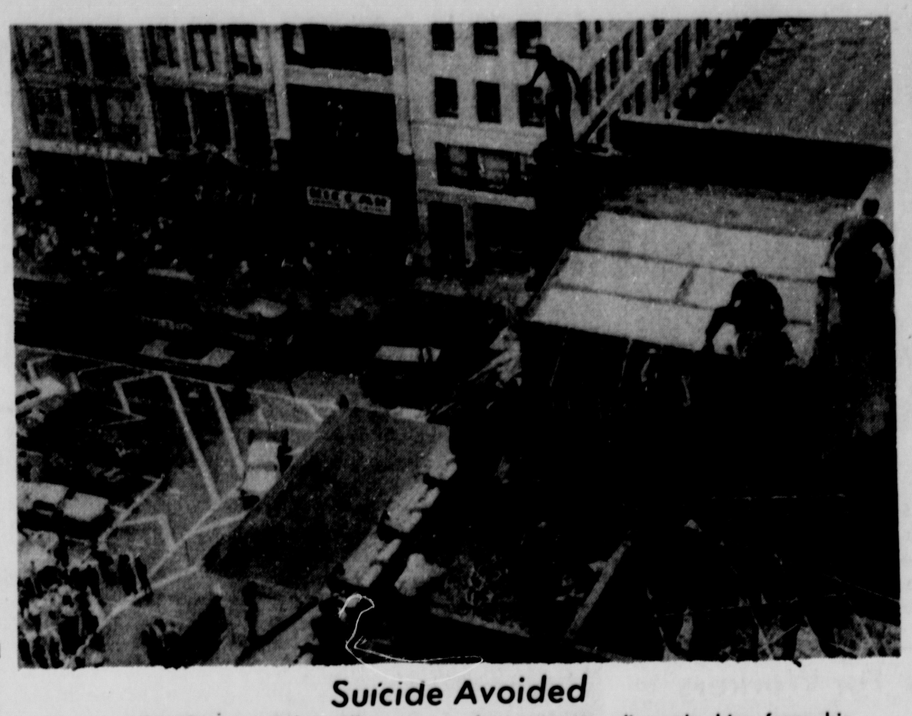

Sues also writes. One of the funniest sketches, on ABC's "Hollywood Palace" this past season, was one of Alan wrote for Ruth Buzzi and himself. He has also written a movie—a silent film with elaborate background music.

In New York on a short holiday to see shows and old friends, Sues was pleased to be recognized by "Laugh-In" fans and was busily counting his blessings.

"I have never worked so hard and I've never had so much money," he said. "I play tennis to keep in shape. I write when I think of something that interests me. I just want it all to keep going."

Poor Fern Festival Underway

With the selection of queen candidates Thursday night, the local chapter of the Poor Fern Scoiety, a group composed of 80 or so Sedalia young people, began its annual festivities which will conclude with a parade Monday afternoon through the downtown area, and a ball that evening at the American Legion Hall.

Candidates for queen include Sally Robertson, Cindy Wendt, Martha Corson, Sally Fechtel, Donna Robertson, Mickey McGrath and Joyce Reid.

The parade will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Seventh and Ohio Streets and follow a police escort north on Ohio to Main, west on Main to Osage, and south on Osage to Fifth Street, where the formal line of march will end. The various elements, made up of local members and their friends in uniquely decorated individual vehicles, accompanied by local youthful music groups, and other informal elements will disperse and continue to parade around Sedalia throughout the afternoon.

All interested friends of the Poor Fern movement have been encouraged to join the parade.

The Poor Ferns were originally organized by an anonymous Easterner about 15 years ago as an outlet for the usual burst of energy following "school's out." The purpose, according to the Sedalia chairman, Martin Hogan, a sophomore at Central Missouri State College is to "have fun by helping others to have fun."

Though not a formal group, the chapter practices the Poor Fern ideals throughout the year by carol singing at Christmas time, doing volunteer work with the Head Start program and the Children's Therapy Center, and working with the little League and Khoury League baseball teams.

The Poor Fern program gradually became national, drifting through colleges in the United States and Canada, and was introduced in Sedalia in 1961 by Hogan's oldest brother, Mike, then a student at St. Benedict's College in Kansas.

The chapter has celebrated June 23 each year since, increasing their activities until last year they were voted third most active in the nation. Three local members, Martin Hogan, Dan Wilson and Alan Johnson, were selected last year for the "Poor Fern Hall of Fame," located in New York City.

Miss Christine Chapman, last year's queen, will crown the new queen at Monday night's ball. In addition to Miss Chapman and Martin Hogan, the committee working on arrangements for this year's festivities includes Con Chapman, Scott Dick and Rick Thompson.

Thieu Seeks Backing From Brass

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam reportedly has asked his advisers and cabinet ministers to consider setting up a joint commission of government and Viet Cong representatives to study procedures for electing a post-war government.

Informed sources said today that Thieu was trying to get solid governmental and military backing for the proposal before it is put before the Viet Cong.

The man mentioned to represent the government on the commission is Duong Van Minh —"Big Minh"—the popular general who led the 1963 overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Minh returned to South Vietnam from political exile last year but has stayed out of the limelight.

Government and American sources would not comment on the report.

Usually reliable informants said Thieu was not likely to disclose his plan but was mainly concerned with insuring support from his generals, who are suspicious of any dealings with the Viet Cong.

Thieu reportedly told President Nixon during their Midway talks June 8 that he would press the Viet Cong delegation in Paris to discuss election procedures. His moves in Saigon were seen as a preliminary step.

Informants said the South Vietnamese president wants such talks with the Viet Cong to be secret and might refuse to discuss the issue at the peace table or in public.

Prior agreement within the South Vietnamese government on a specific proposal would strengthen the government delegation's position in Paris, and Thieu evidently is striving for that.

It also would enable the delegation to respond quickly if a proposal were to come from the Viet Cong.

The sources in Saigon added that the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government has made no election proposal in Paris and that no change in the current stalemate there is seen for at least two or three months.

In addition to the discussions on election procedures, Thieu is reported considering action on such measures as land reform and some administrative changes to strengthen his government. But reliable informants said no decisions have been taken on those matters.

SDS Rally Is Divided In Factions

CHICAGO (AP) — The Friday night session of the Students for a Democratic Society's annual convention erupted in a bitter wrangle after a Black Panther declared his group would "deal with" a SDS faction which advocates the organization of labor and the promotion of class struggle.

Angry shouting matches were touched off when the Black Panther spokesman, Phil Jewell, called on SDS to disassociate itself from the struggle-advocating Progressive Labor PL faction.

Jewell told the convention SDS must support black nationalism or risk being classed as "revisionist."

"The PLs do more damage to the revolution than pigs police," Jewell said.

"It would be best not to forget you're in Chicago," he said, adding that Panthers would "deal with" those who continued to adhere to the PL line.

Michael Klonsky, national secretary of SDS, voiced support of the Panther position, touching off a rush for the stage by some members of the audience, who shouted, "Rebuttal, rebuttal."

National officers succeeded in turning back the group, promising they would be given an opportunity to be heard.

The Progressive Labor group was believed to have the support of about half of the 1,500 persons attending the convention in the Coliseum on the South Side.

Many of the opposing faction urged a split with Progressive Labor adherents.

The bitter struggle for control of SDS marked most action at the convention, and there was widespread confusion over the methods and positions taken by various factions.

The confusion was compounded for newsmen attempting to identify and interpret the warring groups because they were officially banned from the convention.

The convention ends Sunday.

Rock Port's Philantropist Dies at 76

ROCK PORT, Mo. (AP) — George Opp, 76, a homespun philanthropist who once paid city taxes for everyone in Rock Port, died of an apparent heart attack Friday at his home.

A pioneer automobile dealer, Opp later operated a hotel, a restaurant and a sporting goods store in this nnorthwest Missouri town of 1,380. In recent years he spent most of his time on his 1,500-acre farm at Twin Lakes south of town.

He planted grain to feed about 50,000 wild geese each fall at his private waterfowl refuge.

Nine years ago Opp paid the town's tax bill. He said he had been paying city taxes for several widows for years, and in 1960 he paid the taxes for everyone. It cost him $19,200.

Although he got more than 3,000 letters of commendation from all over the nation, some jealousy arose in Rock Port. So he closed his hotel and sporting goods store and gave the restaurant to the Boy Scouts.

"I don't do those things for publicity," he said. "You start doing that and it takes all the pleasure away from it."

Suspend Four In Policemen Beating Probe

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Police Chief C.M. Kelley assigned four policemen to new duties pending an investigation into an alleged beating of a man Friday.

The man, Leavy Buford Jones Jr., 21, was arrested after a 19-minute, high speed chase in which six patrol cars, three motorcycles and a helicopter took part. The chase began when an officer sought to arrest him for speeding.

Jones was charged with resisting arrest, careless driving and failing to yield to a police vehicle. He was released on $400 bond.

Police said Jones came out of his car fighting, and they had to hit him to subdue him. He suffered severe head cuts and a shoulder injury and was taken to a hospital for treatment.

Witnesses told police that Jones came out with his hands up.

"But then the police ran over and started beating him for no reason," said Bernard Powell, a member of the Human Resources Corp. who saw the incident.

About 25 persons quickly gathered at police headquarters and demanded immediate suspension of the officers involved. Chief Kelley said the reassignments should not be interpreted as reprimands or suspensions before the investigation is complete.

"Because of the high emotion that this incident has caused we felt this action was necessary to control the situation," Kelley said.

The unusual hookup went zipping past the Hicks home when knee-deep water sloshed across Lehi Drive after a storm in suburban Granger.

"They were having a ball," said Mrs. Hicks. "Except, they had to slow down once in a while for the kayaks."

Shortage of Water Is Facing Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The largest city in the south, Houston, has a water shortage.

Mayor Louie Welch urged Thursday that residents in three areas of the city start watering their lawns on alternate days.

A spokesman for the water department said defunct wells have left hundreds of homes with a trickle of water.

Robert A. Thompson Jr., assistant public works director, said hot weather had increased lawn sprinkling and pushed the city's demand to a peak pumpage. Some residents reported being unable to use their dishwashers and washing machines.

Award Winner Has Ideas of Her Own

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan presented California' Outstanding Teen-ager Award to Cynthia Lee Abruzzini of Suisun City Thursday, and commended her for being a type of student different from campus protestors.

Consolidation Of Talents Offered

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for a long time and have decided you might have something on the ball. Mostly it is your sense of humor.

Your grammar and word combinations need sharpening up, however. Frequently your answers are too long. Also, you have a tendency to get too psychological and people don't want that. Another thing, you devote too much space to nutty teenagers who don't want advice. Why bother? What they need is a punch in the mouth.

I've done a lot of writing and I'm sure the two of us would make a great team. How about it? — One Who Has Made It

Dear One: Your signature indicates that you don't need me. And if that statement on teen-agers is a sample of your thinking, I don't need you. Thanks a bunch.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm going with a man who has many wonderful qualities, but he has one fault that drives me up the wall. Bruce refuses to touch a drop of liquor.

I'm no souse but I do enjoy a cocktail or two before dinner. It is embarrassing for a woman to order a drink when her escort says he doesn't want one. It makes her look like a lush.

Last night we were with two other couples. I asked Bruce to take a drink just to be sociable. He refused. I feel he should have said yes to please me. Furthermore, I'm sure one drink would improve his personality. He'd be relaxed and more talkative. Am I right? — Terry

Dear Terry: No, you're wrong. Some individuals shouldn't have one drop of alcohol, much less a drink. Bruce might be one of these people so get off his back.

As for liquor making folks relaxed and more talkative, I've received thousands of letters from women whose husbands became so relaxed and talkative and they blew promising careers and loused up several lives in the process.

Dear Ann Landers: Our next door neighbors are fine people and good friends. Their 19-year-old son, a freshman in a local college, lives on campus but sometimes comes home weekends.

While the parents are vacationing out of the country the boy has been entertaining a 30-year-old tramp. The woman is divorced and her reputation is mud. She arrives at the house about 7:00 p.m. and stays all night, leaving her car in the driveway.

I feel we should inform the parents when they return. My husband says to ask Ann Landers. (He's sure you'll tell us M.Y.O.B.) Incidentally, I'd appreciate it if someone spoke up to save OUR young son from the clutches of a 30-year-old harlot. What do you say? — Mr. and Mrs. K.

Dear Mr. and Mrs.: You cannot save a 19-year-old from the clutches of a harlot, especially when he doesn't want to be saved.

The boy's behavior pattern was established long before his parents took this trip. Keep quiet and concentrate on your own son.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50c in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Students Make Dean's Listing At JuCo Here

State Fair Community College had 31 honor students on the dean's list for the winter semester, it was announced today. Students needed a 3.0 average, or better, and had to be enrolled for no less than 12 semester hours to qualify.

Named by the college were:

Steve Barr, Jean Berry, Beth Bishop, John Dawson, Robert Engles, Linda Hall, Terrence Harrison, Gary Hieronymus, Larry Hieronymus, Brenda Jonson, Gary Lee, James Lunn, Rosemary Mumbower, Ted Perkins, Ellen Quigg, Bonnie Schroder, Martha Sievers, Michael Siron, Steve Swanson, Verda Taylor, Carolyn Thomas and Judith Woodward, all of Sedalia.

Duane Amos, Russellville; Joyce Aurig, Pilot Grove; Bonnie Deuschle, Pilot Grove; Kathy Higgins, Houstonia; Lynn Peck, Windsor; Bonnie Ransdell, Otterville; Leroy Scrape, LaMonte; Donald Snorgrass, Tipton; Gene Williamson, Hazelwood.

Miss Sara Muller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton J. Muller, 615 West Broadway, has been named to the Dean's Honor List at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex. Miss Muller has completed her second year at S.M.U., majoring in psychology. She is also a Southern Belle of Kappa Alpha Order and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority.

Motorists Pay Off In Overtime Fines

By PETE DANIELS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A simple exercise in arithmetic, using figures provided by the Sedalia Parking Meter Department, reveals that people using downtown parking spaces spend about $15,000 annually in over-time parking fines.

According to Dave Schick, one of two ticket writers for the department, average daily "production" runs to about 250 parking violation tickets a day.

Schick is admittedly surprised that only a few people take advantage of the parking permit system.

"There are only about 20 people who use the parking permits," he said. "There are many people who work in the downtown area and use the parking lots — and they pay by the hour. They could save money by using the permits," he said.

Schick said there was one downtown employee who works six days a week, uses one of the parking lots and pays 55 cents a day for the privilege.

That rate of payment could put a $158.40 dent in anybody's annual budget.

There are two types of parking permits: one that is good for three months and another good for six. The cost is the same in either case —$8 a month.

Schick said the three-month permits would be due July 1 and are good through Sept. 1. The six-month permits come due in August, he said.

If Sedalia's ticket writers continue at their average daily rate of 250 tickets ( a combined total for both men), the city could realize an income of $62.50 a day — just from 25-cent fines. The figure goes up, of course, when the $1 penalty for failure to pay the initial tickets is considered.

To make things easy, any amateur mathematician can see that multiplying $62.50 by five days means a weekly income of $312.50. That times four weeks is $1,250 and that times the 12 months of the year means $15,000.

It's a hefty sum to pay in fines. Depending on whch side of the financial totem pole an individual is on, it could make those parking permits a rather attractive proposition.

Can Play Radios

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Bowing to the demands of youth, the state-run railway agreed to let passengers play transistor radios on the Masterton-Wellington run for a three-month trial period.

At an Institute For Top Students

Barbara McKillip, daughter of Francis H. McKillip, Sedalia, is participating in an institute for superior high school juniors at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, during June and July.

The institute offers high school students a realistic view of college before they finish high school. It gives students the opportunity to experiment with college level courses and to prove their ability to do college work.

Canadian Says Deserters Are Opposed at Borders

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A Vancouver lawyer says Canadian immigration officers are using "gestapo tactics" to stop U.S. military deserters from entering Canada.

John Taylor, a former member of Parliament, said Friday he has handled about a dozen cases in the past month in which actions by immigration officers conflicted with the stated Canadian federal policy on deserters.

Taylor contended deserters are not being treated like any other persons seeking entry to Canada—in direct opposition to a policy established last month by Immigration Minister Allan Maceachen—and said he is convinced his country's immigration officials are assisting their U.S. counterparts in apprehending deserters.

"This gestapo arrangement lessens the respect for Canadian officials," Taylor said.

Taylor cited the case of a 20-year-old Berkeley, Calif., youth who he said was taken into custody June 8 at a U.S. immigration office at Kingsgate, B.C. He described the youth as a deserter from the U.S. Army.

Taylor said the youth was told by the Canadian officer that his application for entry would have to be approved by a senior officer so he would have to return to the American side of the border until the next morning.

But once back on the U.S. side, Taylor said, the youth discovered the Canadian officer had telephoned the U.S. Immigration office to report the youth had been turned back.

Taylor said the young Californian was told to report to the sheriff's office in Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, but did not do so. He said three days later he entered Canada—as a tourist—at Blaine, Wash., 30 miles south of here.

Lyall Hawkins, regional director of immigration here, defended the actions of the unidentified Kingsgate immigration official. He said it was entirely up to the officer as to whether he informed the American side that the youth was a deserter.

President Is Sports Spectator

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, striking a blow for the sports enthusiast who would rather sit in the stands and watch than participate, is fast becoming the nation's best known sports spectator.

After his news conference Thursday night, Nixon went to Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, arriving just in time to see the Washington Senators drop a 2-0 decision to the league-leading Baltimore Orioles.

It was the third visit to a Senators' game this year for Nixon, who arrived in the eighth inning with the score tied 0-0. He is the first chief executive to attend a ball game other than the opener since Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Since he was elected last November, Nixon has come to typify the Americans who prefer to watch sports events rather than actively engaging in athletics.

Nixon does not publicly participate in sports as some of his presidential predecessors—Eisenhower, golf; John F. Kennedy, touch football and sailing and Lyndon B. Johnson, swimming.

But Nixon was a football player in college and still takes an active if sitting interest in sports. He attended the Alabama-Miami football game in the Orange Bowl in Miami last fall, the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day and the Kentucky Derby.

Nixon also telephoned his congratulations to Orville Moody, winner of the U.S. Open in Houston last Sunday, for striking a blow for the middle-class man.

Moody, the former Air Force sergeant, said after receiving the call: "I don't remember what the President said. He congratulated me and said something about this not being a win for the elite but a big blow for the middle class."

Ten days ago, Nixon joined his daughter Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower, as he did Thursday night, at the ball park to see the Oakland Athletics play the Washington Senators.

Nixon arrived in the third inning and stayed until the 13-inning frame affair was over with Reggie Jackson slamming his second homerun of the night to give the Athletics a 6-4 victory.

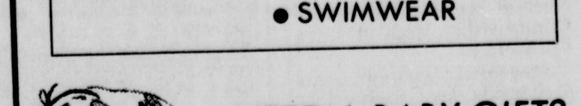

Jackson, now leading the American League in homers, said it was a great pleasure to hit one with the President watching.

Nixon sent Jackson a "Dear Reggie" letter thanking the young outfielder for "your generous comments with regard to hitting a homer in the presence of the President of the United States."

Youngster's Mealtime

Mrs. Robert Otting, Salina, Kan., feeds a 3-day-old orphaned fawn. The mother was struck by a car and was shot to relieve its suffering, but a game warden noticed movement in the doe's stomach and cut the fawn free. The fawn is believed to be at least one week premature. District fish and game manager Robert Otting and his wife are taking turns feeding the baby. (UPI)

Lack the Initiative

HONOLULU (AP) — After a study, a team of researchers from the University of Hawaii's Population and Family Planning Unit reported that low-income island women "are not averse to practicing contraception nor ignorant of contraceptive methods and services. But they seem to lack either the initiative to start or the sustained effort to be consistent users."

Didn't Lure Youth

MIAMI (AP) — Leslie Osman, 18, didn't miss a day of school in 12 years, until this week. He skipped his graduation.

Osman said he missed the ceremonies at Miami Springs High School because he couldn't get excited about trooping across a stage.

Bennett Adds Note Of Calm, Romance

EDITOR'S NOTE—His tie askew, collar open, microphone in hand, Tony Bennett has survived, successfully, by singing the standards. Bennett goes with "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" as much as the proverbial ham with eggs. But the entertainer is hoping to branch out into other areas now, movies in particular.

NEW YORK (AP) — In this age of turbulent change and raucous revolution, it is somewhat comforting to know there is still Tony Bennett.

An island of calm durability in a churning sea of song, Bennett continues to sing the standards, with the same romantic style he's used in recording and night clubs for the past 20 years. The more music changes, so to speak, the more Tony Bennett stays the same. He's survived rock 'n' roll, electric guitars and protests to remain a solid-selling recording artist and a consistent night club and concert attraction.

Whether it be London or Cherry Hill, N.J., Seattle or the Copacabana—or Apollo 10 on its way to the moon—Tony Bennett is there. When the astronauts were awakened one day during their recent Apollo 10 mission, it was with a Bennett recording of "The Best Is Yet To Come"—because its lyrics include—"You think you've flown before-But you ain't left the ground."

Bennett, a quiet, introverted, business-like singer who has managed to stay pretty much out of the public eye when he's not working, was 6 when he first got the singing spotlight. He sang at the ceremonies opening New York's Triborough Bridge, with Mayor LaGuardia, singing "Marching Along Together."

"That was it. I decided show business was it for me," he recalls. And show business it has been.

Bennett says he was the first pop singer to make an album—"Cloud 7"—back in the "pioneer days," in 1951. "Now any group comes along and right away they cut an album."

He isn't overly impressed by the quick success of young rock groups, nor does he feel he has to change his style to keep in the running. "A good song will last no matter what the changes in style," he says. "It isn't old time if it's good music."

"I Left My Heart in San Francisco," which he recorded seven years ago, still is his biggest seller. "It's just one of those standards. It's a good music song." And "It Had To Be You," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," "Once Upon a Time," "Love Look Away," "The Shadow of Your Smile"—all still favorites, at least of an over-30 generation

"I sing love songs, not protest songs," says Bennett, born 42 years ago in Astoria, Long Island, as Antonio Benedetto.

There has been a change in Bennett's career, but it's one of expansion, rather than difference. "I'm still learning, still developing," he says of his singing, but "I'm putting irons in all the fires"—clubs, recordings, television, movies. He has even taken up painting.

"Crosby started it; putting irons in all the fires. You hear a musician on the radio—Dionne Warwick, Ray Charles—you want to see him at a club. It's a way to get fans. Television, movies, concerts, it's all interwoven. The way each artist approaches each medium determines his artistry."

His movie career has been limited so far to a small part in "The Oscar."

"In movies, you have to be careful in the selection of films—as you are with tunes." He turned down a part in "The Dirty Dozen," he says, but he has confidence the right ones will be coming along for him.

One of the "right ones," if it is ever done, will be with actor-film director John Cassavetes. "Cassavetes says we're gonna make a movie together someday. I believe we will. For five years we've been talking about it, piecing it together in conversations.

"It's a takeoff on 'Crime and Punishment,' with music. It'll be updated and the starving writer changed to a starving singer. Dream sequences of Ivanovitch will be done with Dali paintings and Duke Elington music. It makes sense.

"I figure by my fourth film I'll really be wailing in films."

Talented Tony

In his New York apartment singer Tony Bennett finds time to paint a city scene. The romantic style recording artist has survived the musical changes of recent years singing love songs, "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" recorded seven years ago is still his biggest seller. (AP)

Nixon Taking Part In Wire-Tap Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he "checked personally" and found that Robert F. Kennedy as attorney general did authorize FBI wiretapping of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s telephone.

Nixon interjected himself into the growing dispute over the tapping of the slain civil rights leader's phone at his Thursday news confernece when he came down in support of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who claims Kennedy not only authorized the King surveilance, but originated the idea.

But the two men who succeeded Kennedy as attorney general accused Hoover and the FBI of making unfair attacks on the two slain men.

The controversy over the wiretapping took on a new dimension when The Washington Evening Star reported in a copyright story Thursday that Hoover had disclosed contents of two memorandums, one saying Kennedy had expressed concern about reports that King was a student of Marxism and was associating with a New York man with known Communist connections.

Courtney Evans, then assistant director for the FBI and liaison man with the Justice Department, wrote the memorandum to Hoover in June 1963. The Star said. According to the article, Evans reported the substance of a conversation in which Kennedy expressed concern about possible infiltration of the civil rights movement by Marxists, and asked about the feasibility of installing electronic devices on King's telephones.

Hoover was quoted by the Star as saying FBI officials at that time advised against electronic surveillance of King because of possible political repercussions.

The FBI later informed Kennedy it would be feasible to tap King's telephones at the headquarters of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in Atlanta, Ga., and at a New York location. The Star said a notation on this memorandum to Kennedy indicated it had been signed by the attorney general Oct. 10, 1963, and this was cited by Hoover as authorization for the wiretapping.

Nixon told a nationally televised news conference that he "checked personally into the matter as to whether or not that surveillance which had been discussed had been conducted by him (Hoover) and the FBI, by themselves, or whether it had been, as is supposed to be the case, always approved by the attorney general."

As Nixon was backing Hoover, former attorneys general Ramsey Clark and Nicholas Katzenbach issued statements criticizing the FBI for saying the wiretap idea originated in Kennedy's office.

"Mr. Hoover's statement that Robert F. Kennedy proposed the FBI wiretapping of Dr. Martin Luther King is unfair and deceptive," Clark said. "It is unfair because it comes after Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King have been murdered in the service of humanity and are unable to defend themselves. The truth of the matter cannot be derived through release of selected materials from FBI files."

Clark said it also is deceptive to depict Hoover as a reluctant eavesdropper.

"He repeatedly requested me to authorize FBI wiretaps on Dr. King while I was attorney general," Clark continued. "The last of these requests, none of which was granted, came two days before the murder of Dr. King."

Katzenbach, who took over as attorney general after Kennedy, said it already has been conceded that the attorney general authorized the wiretapping of King.

"But to say or imply that this tap was the original conception of Robert Kennedy—that he was the moving force in this situation—or that he had any doubts whatsoever as to Dr. King's loyalty or integrity is false," Katzenbach said.

College Degree Nine Days After Diploma

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — W. Francis English received a college doctorate degree nine days after he was awarded his high school diploma.

English, retiring dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Missouri, earned 15 high school units in three years as a youth—enough to admit him to college but not enough to qualify for a high school diploma.

The certificate was given him recently when he gave the commencement address at North Callaway High School. Nine days later he received an honorary doctorate from Westminster College.

'Competition' for Students Given As Reason for Policy Changes

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

The tables down at Mory's—that hallowed barroom retreat of Yale generations—may soon have girls in miniskirts sitting at them and a soprano chorus in the "songs we love so well" could be the dying refrain of the one-sex school.

This fall, when the ivy begins to crinkle in New Haven, 240 girls will join the freshman class at Yale and a similar number will slip into the sophomore and junior classes as transfers from women's colleges.

Princeton, where the ivy grows as thick as at Yale, is taking down the Women Need Not Apply sign which went up in 1756 when the school opened.

And Vassar, synonymous with quality education for women, is taking in boys.

In all, about 40 schools are considering the abandonment of one-sex education.

There are many reasons for this widespread shift to coeducation along the tradition-locked Eastern seaboard — including pressure from students themselves—but all of them seem to be subordinate to one main factor: competition for quality students.

The Rev. John E. Brooks, vice president of Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass.—which appears set for coeducation in 1971—says, "There's no problem about staying in business, but the question is: Can you stay in business with quality students? The possibility of a quality school losing its quality students is a real one."

Many other college officials, however, prefer to talk about the more natural environment of a coed campus as the reason for breaking down the one-sex tradition.

Daniel Lang, assistant dean of admissions at Wesleyan in Middletown, Conn., where girls will be admitted in 1970, said, "This is not a naturally happy campus. Men are too introspective. The dedication to scholasticism is too artificial. We are missing the intellectual feminine mystique."

Edward J. Bloustein, president of exclusive and expansive Bennington, a women's college in Vermont, says "Our No. 1 reason for deciding on coeducation is that it is more full and meaningful."

Most schools recognized that coeducation was coming but few realized it was traveling so fast.

A Vassar official said, "The first straw in the wind was about five years ago when Kingman Brewster, president of Yale, said he'd build a women's college if someone gave him $50 million."

No one did, but Vassar tried to fill the bill. In 1966 the Vassar-Yale study began. It attempted to determine whether Vassar should move from its 1,000 acres in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., to 40 acres in New Haven. A year later Vassar decided to stay home.

Yale then began a study of coeducation and coordinate education; the latter a separate but nearby women's school sharing certain faculty, curricula and extra-curricular activities with men's schools.

The success of the Harvard-Radcliffe, Columbia-Barnard, Brown-Pembroke relationships provided the basis for these studies. The talk of coordinate education stopped, however, almost as soon as it began, for two reasons: the economic facts of building a separate women's school and increased pressure from students for true coeducation.

Meanwhile, Princeton President Robert F. Goheen, who said in 1967 that "it is inevitable that sometime Princeton will go coed," authorized Prof. Gardner Patterson, an economist, to make a thorough study of the subject.

The report was released in the fall of 1968 and showed statistically what alumni, faculty, students and would-be students thought about coeducation. Pre-1950 alumni, predictably, were not ecstatic about it. Faculty and students were strongly in favor of it.

But the clincher in the Princeton study was the category which showed that 81 per cent of the boys in the upper two-fifths of their senior class in high school preferred coeducation. The effect on other colleges was profound.

In October 1968, Vassar announced freshmen men would be admitted in 1970. It was the first of the so-called Seven Sister schools (Radcliffe, Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Smith, Mount Holyoke and Wellesley) to take the step.

In November the Yale Corp. authorized coeducation. The Princeton board approved it in principle in January 1969, and in practice in March. The lateness of the Princeton decision in regard to 1969 freshmen forced the admissions department to attach riders to applications stating that final acceptance for the fall of 1969 would depend on the final approval from the board.

One-sex education toppled like a house of cards as one school after another announced a switch, a study or at least a formation of a committee to make a study. The activity was virtually restricted to the Northeast because other areas of the country had either never started one-sex schools or had abandoned them as financial mistakes after the growth of the land grant and state colleges.

A geographical exception was the University of the South in Sewanee, Tenn., where 111 years of educating men only will end next year.

Dr. Edward McCrady, vice chancellor, said, "The proper justification for trying to get more women is not that we are facing any sort of crisis but that we ought to offer to the daughters of our constituents what we offer to our sons."

The need to attract quality students and the rather tardy realization that both sexes provide a natural educational climate were the direct forces in the movement to coeducation but the indirect force was the mood of young people today, an attitude which demands involvement in the course of universities and society while prohibiting interference with individual codes of politics and sex.

Bennington's Bloustein said "We found radical differences in the maturation processes of young people over the last 15 years. It was possible then to preserve a women's college. It is no longer possible. We found that 80 per cent of the girls came to Bennington despite lack of coeducation than because of it."

Few of the schools were actually pushed by their students but in several cases the students were instrumental in selecting the form and rate of coeducation.

Avi Soifer, 21, a senior from Schnectady, N.Y., said, "We hastened coeducation at Yale." Soifer organized a coed week Nov. 4-11 that brought 700 girls to Yale, where students gave up their rooms and girls from 25 schools paid $10.50 to spend a week.

"We pressed for coeducation in 1969," Soifer said. "Brewster's first plan was that Trumbull College (one of Yale's 12 residences) would be used for all the girls."

The students protested the plan loudly at a meeting which Brewster attended and the school president, whom Soifer calls "the best university president in the country," changed his mind and referred housing to the coed planning committee.

The final outcome was that freshman girls in 1969 will live one building and the upper class transfers will be scattered in the wings of the 12 colleges with separate entranceways. Most schools are following similar plans.

Princeton drew 1,000 girls for its coed week in February. It showed administrators, as did Yale's week, that coeducation was much in demand by students.

In place of coeducation in the past, male and female students frequently met by fleeing their respective campuses over the weekend, or through something called "the mixer," where students at women's schools were invited to spend weekends at all-male schools.

A question frequently raised at discussion of the swing towards coeducation is whether, in an age of greater sexual freedom, it might mean greater promiscuity.

Says Elga Wasserman, a Yale official who was in charge of coed planning: "Coeducation will decrease the present trend to get away on weekends. There tends to be less sexual promiscuity in a coeducation school. There is nothing more ludicrous than a busload of girls arriving on Friday for a mixer."

Said Ann Freedman, 21, of Dayton, Ohio, a Radcliffe graduate now attending Yale law school and a planner of Yale's coed week:

"Mixers are an appalling cattle show. Coeducational dorms will encourage healthy relationships and discourage promiscuity. Anyway, whatever students decide to do is none of the administration's business. It's a personal choice, a question of what a girl develops into and what her values are. By the time she is 18 or 19 no one should tell her what her personal choice should be."

Many students in large cities have banded together in communal living with several persons of both sexes sharing an apartment. Miss Freedman said she observed little of this in New Haven, but she added, "A certain number of Yale men will live with their girls during the summer and there is a lot of cohabitation on weekends. This type of thing persuaded schools to go coed."

University surveys and college newspaper polls at most schools showed more than 80 per cent of the students favored coeducation.

No one knows exactly what coeducation will bring to the one-sex schools, but a handful of students got an idea this year. Eleven colleges—Williams, Wesleyan, Trinity, Dartmouth, Amherst, Bowdoin, Smith, Mount Holyoke, Vassar, Wheaton (Mass.), and Connecticut College—participated in an exchange program. Vassar also sent girls to Colgate which is planning coeducation after 149 years of men only.

The reactions of the exchange students will be valuable for administrators because the introduction of coeducation at most schools will be a gradual one, and no one seems certain about the probable parity of men and women.

Bloustein of Bennington said, "The persons certain of a boy-girl ratio right now are probably wrong." Bennington had about 30 transfers in the spring semester and plans to boost its 350 enrollment to 600 by 1971 with 100 boys.

Wesleyan, enrollment 1,350, will accept 100 girls in 1970 and plans an enrollment of 2,000 by 1975 with 1,250 men and 750 women.

Holy Cross will probably take in freshman girls in 1971 and current plans call for a 30 to 40 per cent female student body with no increase in total enrollment of 2,300.

This means about 600 openings for boys will disappear at Holy Cross.

Princeton is admitting 100 girls this year and ultimately hopes to increase its enrollment of 3,200 to 4,000 with about 1,000 girls included.

Vassar will take in freshmen boys in 1970. The school is planning a jump in enrollment to 2,400 students eventually with an equal amount of boys and girls.

Yale is rushing right in.

There are 4,000 students now and 500 women will swell the ranks this fall. Yale anticipates 1,500 women in an over-all student body of 5,500 when sufficient buildings are completed.

New Safety Rules For Fire Trucks

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — No longer will fire engines go screaming through red lights and stop signs here.

New rules in effect Friday require all fire trucks to stop for red lights, flashing red or yellow lights and stop signs.

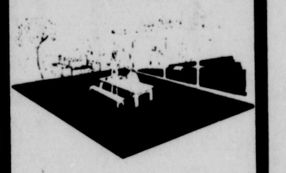

The trucks may move through the intersection only after the driver and officer in charge are "absolutely sure that it is safe to proceed."

Wearing of Rings Means Loss of Jobs

CARO, Mich. (AP) — You still can't wear a ring at the Caro State Home and Training School unless it's an engagement or wedding ring.

A Michigan Civil Service Commission hearing officer has upheld the firing of Gloria Martin, president of the hospital employes union, for wearing a birthstone ring while on duty.

Failure With Irony

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — "We don't know what happened," said a spokesman as employes sat in darkened offices.

"Make it funny," he said. "Say we didn't pay our bill."

The blackout of several minutes Wednesday was at the main office of Utah Power and Light Co.

Mrs. Peter Vincent Siegel, Jr.

Miss Monsees, Peter Siegel Wed in Candlelight Ceremony

SMITHTON — A candlelight ceremony was the setting for the exchange of wedding vows by Miss Betty Jean Monsees and Peter Vincent Siegel, Jr., at the Methodist Church. The Rev. Philip Bowline officiated at the June 15 evening ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Olen Monsees and the late Olen Monsees, Smithton and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Vincent Siegel, Washington, D.C.

Given in marriage by her brother, James Eugene Monsees, Champaign, Ill., the bride wore a chapel length gown of ivory linen with fitted bodice and wide scooped neckline. Venise lace accented the empire waistline, banded the elbow length sleeves, and trimmed two separate panels at the center back of the straight skirt. A train length veil of silk illusion gathered full at the crown and bordered in the same lace trim completed the bridal ensemble. A white Bible and daisy bouquet were carried by the bride.

Maid of honor, Miss Eileen Meehan, St. Louis, wore a full length gown of blue linen and white crepe, trimmed with white daisies, and she carried a bouquet of daisies. Miss Brenda Gay Monsees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Monsees, Champaign, Ill., was flower girl in a full length dress of blue linen and white organza.

Serving as candlelighters were Miss Carol Siegel and Miss Diane Stanley, both of Kansas City. Their dresses were of matching blue linen trimmed with daisies.

Chosen best man was Ned Monsees. Ushers were Olen F. Monsees, Paul Siegel and Carl Siegel.

Following the wedding ceremony, a garden reception was held on the church lawn.

After a trip to San Francisco, the couple will reside in Japan where the groom is stationed.

Mrs. Harlan B. Snow

Miss Breeden Becomes The Bride of Harlan B. Snow

JOPLIN — Miss Carolyn Ann Breeden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Breeden, Joplin, and Harlan B. Snow, Joplin, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Snow of Sarcoxie, were united in marriage June 15 at Harmony Heights Baptist Church.

Mrs. Ellen Salchow, was the soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Sue Short.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a white empire A-line gown with bodice and sleeves of re-embroidered Alencon lace and skirt of peau de soie. The gown styling featured a scalloped neckline, long tapered sleeves and peau train, trimmed in matching lace. A silk organza cabbage rose secured her elbow length veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, white carnations and caladium leaves atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Shirley Ebright, Ferguson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. Sharon Berkstresser, Joplin, served as bridesmaid. The attendants wore floor length gowns of lemon chiffon over linen in the empire silhouette and carried bouquets of yellow carnations trimmed with moss green net and ribbon streamers.

The new Mrs. Snow, a former teacher at Parkwood High School, Joplin, is a graduate of Kansas State College, Pittsburg, Kan., and a member of the American Association of University Women. Mr. Snow, a graduate of Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield, is a reporter for the Joplin Globe. He resided in Sedalia a little over ten years while he was news director at radio station KSIS. He joined the Joplin Globe in February 1968.

Following a wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks and Sedalia, the couple will be at home in Joplin after July 1.

Mrs. Fredrick Raymond Nuzum, III

Miss Gray is June Bride Of Fredrick Nuzum, III

Pink and white floral arrangements, emerald palms and spiral candelabra festooned with greenery formed the setting for the afternoon double ring wedding uniting Miss Nancy Lee Gray and Fredrick Raymond Nuzum, III, in marriage.

The Rev. Thomas Hall officiated at the June 15 ceremony for the daughter of Mrs. Jack Gray, 506 South Park, and the late Mr. Gray, and the son of Fred R. Nuzum, Jr., 621 West 23rd and Mrs. Harvey Keens, 1515 West Ninth.

A prelude of selected organ music was presented by Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier, who also accompanied Miss Meladee Herndon, soprano, as she sang. "Beloved, Let Us Love One Another" and "The Lord Bless Thee and Keep Thee."

Dan J. Gray, brother of the bride, lighted the altar candles as Miss Herndon sang "Come, Holy Spirit." Candlelighters, Miss Susan Keens and Miss Damara Nuzum, sisters of the groom, were dressed in empire floor length gowns of pink lace, trimmed with pink velvet ribbon. Each wore a coronet of pink blossoms in her hair.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle, past the family pews marked with pink satin bows, the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Steven J. Gray. She wore a floor length princess style gown of white delustered satin with overlays of lace down the side panels and extending over the chapel length train which was secured by a large satin bow. The gown featured a Victorian ruffle at the neckline and long tapering sleeves ending in ruffles at the wrists. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a satin flowerette of lace petals and seed pearls and she carried a cascade of pink roses, surrounded by stephanotis and centered with a large white orchid.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Tom Trout, Lee's Summit, sister of the bride, was attired in a princess styled floor length gown of blossom pink silk organza featuring a ruffled neckline and half-sleeves. A wide bow secured the deep pleat at the back. A matching pink bow formed her headpiece and she carried a nosegay of pink and white feathered carnations with pink streamers.

Bridesmaids, Miss Cindy Cornwall, Miss Julie Seelen and Mrs. Dennis Foster, sister of the groom, Lee's Summit, were dressed in gowns identical to that worn by the matron of honor and each carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

The groom chose Wayne Stevens as best man. Groomsmen were Larry Nuzum, uncle of the groom, Tom Trout and Dennis Foster, both of Lee's Summit. Ushering duties were performed by David Acker, Kenny Kenshella, Gary Bilderbeck, Charles Goff and Steve Proctor.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gray selected a princess styled dress of pink crepe with matching hat. Mrs. Keens, mother of the groom, chose a deep pink dress of silk and lace with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of cymbidium orchids.

An orchid corsage was presented to Mrs. Fred Nuzum, Jr., and pink rosebud corsages were presented to Mrs. M. C. Cook and Mrs. Opal Gray, Pittsburg, Kan., grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. Fred Nuzum, Sr., grandmother of the groom.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Serving were Miss Kathy Sudduth and Miss Linda King. Mrs. Lanny Palmer was in charge of the guest book.

Greenery encircled the three-tiered cake which was iced in pink and white and topped with a miniature bride and groom under an arch of pink blossoms. White tapers in silver candelabra flanked the wedding cake.

For traveling, the bride chose a beige linen dress trimmed with bands of matching lace, beige accessories and an orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Nuzum is a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and has attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg. She is presently employed with Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Mr. Nuzum, a Smith-Cotton graduate, is currently employed with Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., and will attend State Fair Community College.

Mrs. Frankie D. Kelley

Miss Holt, F. D. Kelley Wed at Whiteman Chapel

WHITEMAN AFB — White gladioli and mums, flanked by pyramid candelabra entwined with smilax and white satin bows, enhanced the altar of the Whiteman Air Force Base Chapel for the evening wedding of Miss Cheryl R. Holt and Frankie D. Kelley.

The Rev. Allen Martin, Kansas City, officiated at the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mrs. Forest Holt, Knob Noster, and the late Mr. Holt, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelley, Powder Springs, Ga.

Mrs. Terry Salisberry, organist, played a prelude of nuptial music and traditional wedding marches. Candlelighters Gregg Moss, Hemple, and Douglas Moss, Rolla, cousins of the bride, wore dark trousers, white dinner jackets and yellow rose boutonnieres.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Emmett Moss, Gower, the bride selected a floor length empire gown of hand clipped, scalloped Chantilly lace over peau de soie. Soft lace ruffles accented the long tapered sleeves, high rounded neckline, skirt front and chapel length train. Her three-tiered veil of illusion fell from a portrait crown of orange blossoms centered with pearls and she carried an Edwardian bouquet of white sweetheart and golden wave roses and baby's breath.

Miss Verline Holt, St. Joseph, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor, in a long O'lene gown of mint green dotted swiss organza styled with high collared neckline, long puffed sleeves and crescent waistline. A cluster of mint daisies secured her matching veil.

Bridesmaids, Miss Kathleen Zacka, Higginsville, Miss Debbie Turner, Florence, S. C., and Mrs. Larry Nails, Powder Springs, Ga., cousin of the groom, wore gowns of jonquil yellow identical in style to that worn by the maid of honor, matching veils and carried white baskets of Marguerite daisies and yellow garnet roses.

Lorri Moss, Rolla, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, in a dress identical to that worn by the attendants, and she carried a princess basket of yellow rose petals. Ringbearer, Dean Moss, Hemple, carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Larry Nails, Powder Springs, Ga., cousin of the groom, was best man. Bruce Moss, Hemple, cousin of the bride, Sgt. James Frey and Terry Fuller were the groomsmen. Sgt. Bruce Huwitt served as usher.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Holt chose a two-piece mint green linen dress, matching accessories, and corsage of green cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Kelley, mother of the groom, wore a pink linen dress with lace overblouse, matching accessories and corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

Miss Patricia Kehrberg, Sioux City, Ia., attended the guest book, and Miss Kathie Smethers and Mrs. Raymond Pahlow, Sedalia, were in charge of the gifts.

A reception followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with a five-tiered Autumn Haze wedding cake, decorated with yellow sugar roses and surrounded with greenery. Arrangements of yellow fuji mums, baby's breath and white candles were at each end of the table. Serving were Miss Carol Winger and Miss Micky Winger, Stewartsville, cousins of the bride.

The bride, a graduate of Knob Noster High School, attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, and State Fair Community College, Sedalia.

Sgt. Kelley, a graduate of Powder Springs High School, has served in the United States Air Force for three years, and is presently stationed at Whiteman Air Force Base.

The couple will reside in Knob Noster.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kehrberg, Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Turner, and family, Florence, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelley and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Nails and Chad, Powder Springs, Ga., and Mrs. Marion Scarborough and Linda, Bellevue, Neb.

---

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelley, parents of the groom, were hosts at a rehearsal dinner June 6 at Sny Haven Motel, Warrensburg.

Mrs. Paul James Vesce

Miss Staley, Paul Vesce Wed in Floral Setting

St. Patrick's Church was the scene of the afternoon double ring wedding June 7 of Miss Martha Catherine Staley and Paul James Vesce.

The Rev. Victor Poiriere, Kansas City, officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walch, 711 West Broadway, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Vincent Vesce, Revere, Mass.

Urns of mixed bouquets, dominated by yellows with killion daisies and coral carnations graced the altar as Mrs. Louis Temple, Jr., organist, played the Nuptial Suite and accompanied vocalist, Mrs. Robert Seelen as she sang "The Song of Ruth."

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride chose a floor length gown of white voile, styled with long full sleeves, high Victorian neckline and embroidered bolero. Her headpiece, a matching embroidered band, secured her elbow length veil and she carried an antique basket of mixed flowers. She wore her great-grandmother's Cameo brooch.

Miss Ann Staley, sister of the bride, was maid of honor attired in a gown similar in style to that worn by the bride. She carried a basket of flowers.

A Morning Wedding Joins Miss Crow, Robert Harlan

FLORISSANT — Miss Sandra Jo Crow, St. Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Crow, 1609 South Moniteau, Sedalia, and Robert Joe Harlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Harlan, Trumann, Ark., were united in marriage June 14 at St. Mark's Methodist Church.

The Rev. Harrison Peyton, pastor, officiated at the morning double ring ceremony before an altar flanked by large bridal sprays of flowers.

Larry Whitsell, vocalist, sang "More" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected an empire gown of candlelight linen with short sleeves, floor length train and Venice lace trim at the waist. She wore a chapel length Madonna veil of imported French illusion and Venice lace and carried a cascade of white roses and greenery.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Bernidine O'Connor, St. Louis, who was attired in a floor length gown of blue chiffon crepe and matching shoulder-length illusion veil. She carried a cascade of pink carnations and greenery.

Serving as best man was Harold Ponder, Trumann, Ark., cousin of the groom. Ushers were John Harlan, Trumann, Ark., brother of the groom and Edwin Crow, Seabrook, Tex., brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Crow chose a pink linen street-length dress and the mother of the groom selected a street-length dress of blue linen. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Serving were Shirley Crow, sister-in-law of the bride and Sheila Flanigain, cousin of the groom. A three-tiered cake iced in white centered the serving table.

Attending the bride's book was Kathy Ryan.

For a wedding trip to Ocho Rios, Jamaica, the bride selected a yellow linen dress with matching sleeveless jacket and white rose corsage.

Following a short visit in Trumann, Ark., and Sedalia the couple will be at home in St. Ann.

A Late May Wedding Joins Miss Woodward, W. Arguin

KNOB NOSTER — An arched candelabra holding white tapers, flanked by baskets of white daisies and gladioli formed the setting for the May 31 wedding of Miss Sharon Lea Woodward and Sgt. Wayne Roland Arguin, Whiteman Air Force Base, at Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Warrensburg.

The bride is the daughter of T-Sgt. and Mrs. Eugene A. Woodward, 209 Sunset Blvd., Knob Noster, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Arguin of Taunton, Mass.

Nuptial music was played preceding the ceremony and later the traditional wedding marches by Mrs. Rex Salisberry, who accompanied Miss Lora Webster as she sang, "Panis Angelicus", Ave Maria", and "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her brother, Donald E. Woodward, in the absence of her father who is stationed in Germany, the bride chose an empire styled gown with a lace bodice fashioned with bell sleeves and scalloped neckline and the skirt and train were of bridal satin. Her veil of illusion was secured by a circle of bridal satin, and her jewelry was a single strand of pearls and pearl earrings. The bridal bouquet was of white carnations.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Joy Epperly, Whiteman AFB, and bridesmaids were Miss Lorraine Woodward, sister of the bride, and Miss Janet Prince. They wore gowns of Skinner Miramist and mint green slipper satin, styled similarly to the bride's gown. They wore necklaces which were gifts of the bride, and carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Best man was Sgt. Marshal McCorkle, Whiteman AFB., Richard Arguin, Taunton, Mass. brother of the groom, and Sgt. Joseph Cobbs, Whiteman AFB, were the groomsmen and ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Swan shaped pillars separated the three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with yellow sugar daisies, and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Serving were Mrs. Naomi Fugett, Middletown, Ohio, great aunt of the bride, Mrs. W. V. Canada, Santa Rosa, Calif., and Mrs. Donald E. Woodward, Middletown, Ohio, grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. Marshal McCorkle, Whiteman AFB.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of the Knob Noster Senior High School. The groom, a 1966 graduate of Taunton High School, has served two years in the U.S. Air Force, and is presently stationed at Whiteman AFB.

The couple resides in Knob Noster.

Miss Whittle Becomes The Bride of James Reistad, II

In an evening double ring ceremony June 14, at Wesley United Methodist Church, Miss Clarinda Jo Whittle and James M. Reistad, II, Oklahoma City, Okla., were united in marriage.

The Rev. Marvin G. Albright officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon L. Whittle, 41 Huntington, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Reistad, 1005 Royal.

Yellow mums flanked by seven branch candelabra graced the church altar and yellow satin bows marked the family pews as Miss Nancy Gray sang "Almost There" and "The Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Bill Long, Kansas City, organist.

Candlelighters, Pam Reistad, cousin of the groom, Independence, and Donna Talbott, cousin of the bride, wore floor length gowns of daffodil dreamette in a style similar to that worn by the other attendants.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire floor length gown of Peau D'Ange lace over peau de soie with attached chapel length train of matching fabrics. A Camelot crown of pearls and lace held her elbow length veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and white stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Patti Whittle, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Miss Paulette Reistad, sister of the groom, Charmayne Kinyon, Richland Center, Wisc., cousin of the groom and Sandra Talbott, cousin of the bride, wore identical dresses of olive green dreamette with dark green accents and veils of silk illusion. They carried long stem yellow roses.

Best man was Larry Dowdy. Groomsmen were Tim Whittle, Versailles; Phil Adams, St. Louis and Phil Fry, Columbus, Ohio. Ushers were Bill and Bob Talbott, cousins of the bride, and Larry Payne.

Flowergirl, Jeana McCully, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom McCully, was dressed identically to the other attendants. Ringbearer was Marty Sikes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Sikes.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Whittle selected a beige lace ensemble and white accessories while the mother of the groom was attired in a pastel green dacron knit ensemble with white accessories. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

A reception followed the ceremony. Serving were Alene, Jeanette, Jean, Lou and Judy Talbott, all aunts of the bride. Mrs. Phil Fry, cousin of the groom, Columbus, Ohio, was in charge of the guest book.

For a wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks the bride chose a white crepe dress with plaid accents, matching plaid coat, a white hat with black trim and white accessories.

The new Mrs. Reistad graduated from Southern Colorado State College, Pueblo, Colo., as a psychiatric technician. The groom attended Central Missouri State College and is now employed as a sales representative for Sandoz Pharmaceuticals, Oklahoma City, Okla.

The couple will reside in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mrs. Larry Wayne Ryan

Wedding Vows Solemnized By Miss Stumpf, Larry W. Ryan

Dr. Harry Purviance officiated at the evening double ring ceremony June 7 uniting Miss Virginia Mae Stumpf and Larry Wayne Ryan in marriage, at the First Christian Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.G. Stumpf, 611 West 32nd, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ryan, 320 East Boonville, exchanged their wedding vows before an altar graced with bouquets of blue daisies, pink carnations, white mums and white tapers in eight-branch candelabra. Blue ribbon bows marked the family pews.

Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier, organist, played selected wedding music and accompanied Miss Nancy Ryan, sister of the groom, as she sang "Walk Hand in Hand."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown designed and made by her mother. The gown was fashioned of white bridal satin with silk organza sleeves and lace trim. A chapel length train was attached at the empire waist and accented by a large bow and streamers. Wide bands of lace accented the center of the dress, neckline and sleeve cuffs. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion fell from a cluster of silk organza bows and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink garnet roses, white gladiola petals, ivy and baby's breath, accented with pearl bead, lace and satin ribbon.

Maid of honor, Miss Becky Thomas, and bridesmaids, Becky Frownfelter, Mary Warren and Charlotte Jones, wore identical floor-length empire gowns of blue silk organza over taffeta with white ribbon belts and sashes. Headpieces of matching blue bows secured their short blue veils and each carried a nosegay of white mums, blue net and pink rose buds.

Serving as best man was Richard Semkin, Columbia. Groosmen were H.J. Straka, Rolla and Paul Swisher and Ron Williams, both of Sedalia. All wore formal attire with white dinner jackets. Ushers and candlelighters were Rick Belt, Lloyd Knox and Richard Robinson.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Stumpf chose a blue dress with Venician lace trim, blue and white accessories and a cymbidium corsage. The mother of the groom was attired in a blue dress with matching accessories and gardenia corsage.

Special guests, Mrs. J.M. Steele, grandmother of the groom, and Mrs. W.C. Housel, great-aunt of the bride, were presented corsages of spider mums.

The Christian Women's Fellowship was in charge of the reception following the ceremony. Miss Debbie Salmon, wearing a corsage of spider mums, attended the guest book, while Miss Debbie Silberstein was in charge of the gift table. She also wore a spider mum corsage.

White net over silk covered the L-shaped table which featured a four-tiered cake iced in the wedding colors of blue, pink and white, and surrounded by white mums and greenery.

The bride attended CMSC and the University of Missouri, majoring in education. The groom received his BS degree in mechanical and aerospace engineering at Missouri University on June 3 of this year, and will be commissioned into the U.S. Navy July 1.

The couple will reside in Pensacola, Fla., where the groom will undergo flight training and the bride will attend the University of West Florida.

Miss Kathleen Louise Parks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin L. Parks, 2301 South Kentucky, and Gary Fred Kessner, formerly of Sedalia, now of Columbus, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kessner, Route 2, were united in marriage June 14, at East Sedalia Baptist Church.

The Rev. Medford E. Speaker officiated at the double ring evening ceremony before altar decorations of yellow mums, yellow and white chrysanthemums and gladiolas flanked by palm plants.

Mrs. Clyde Waters, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied the Rev. Roy Dameron as he sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length empire A-line gown of white bridal satin with lace covered bodice and short lace sleeves. Her elbow length veil was secured by a satin and lace pill box, and she carried a bouquet of daisies and yellow roses.

Flower girl, Miss Marti Pagura, Columbus, Ohio, niece of the groom, was attired in an empire yellow satin, A-line street length dress trimmed in lace. She carried a basket filled with yellow rose petals. The ringbearer, Barry Parks, brother of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

A reception was held following the ceremony. White ruffled net over yellow satin covered the bride's table which was centered with a three-tiered cake decorated with yellow roses and white bells and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Greenery and yellow chrysanthemums encircled the cake which was flanked by yellow tapers in glass holders.

Serving were Miss Patty Parks and Miss Debbie Parks, sisters of the bride. Miss Anne Rowles was in charge of the guest book. Each wore a corsage of white carnations.

The bride, a 1968 graduate of Smith-Cotton, attended Hannibal La Grange College, Hannibal, and State Fair Community College. The groom, a 1966 graduate of Smith-Cotton, is presently employed with Pagura Masonry Contractors, Columbus, Ohio.

The couple resides in Columbus, Ohio.

Showers for the bride-elect were given by Mrs. Arlene Meyer, Mrs. Dean Allee, and Mrs. Fred Kessner.

Mrs. William Forrest Brown, Jr.

June Wedding Vows Join Miss Dugan, W. F. Brown

Miss Pamela Dianne Dugan became the bride of William Forrest Brown, Jr., in an afternoon double ring ceremony June 14 at Calvary Episcopal Church.

The Rev. William E. Lusk officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dugan, Jr., 2603 Plaza, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Brown, 1102 New England Drive.

Candelabra draped in smilax and bouquets of white column stock and carnations graced the altar as Larry Pollard played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. Diana Trout as she sang "O Perfect Love." Jim Labahn was acolyte.

Wearing a diamond necklace, a gift from the groom, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a floor length ivory peau de soie gown styled with Dior sleeves, scooped neckline and chapel length train. Re-embroidered Alencon lace trimmed the bodice and sleeves, and small bows and streamers highlighted the train. Her triple tiered silk illusion veil fell from a beaded pillbox headpiece and she carried a cathedral bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Sherry Smethers, 2343 First Street, and bridesmaids, Miss Jo Dickey, 1634 Honeysuckle and Miss Jebby Brown, sister of the groom, were attired in floor length A-line gowns of pale mint green chiffon designed with fluted, puffed sleeves, scooped necklines and Watteau panels at the back. A narrow braid of pale yellow and green flower appliques marked the raised waistline, and matching green chiffon flat bows held their short brush veils. They carried nosegays of mint green and white carnations with white streamers.

Best man was Tony Monsees and groomsmen were Bob Sheue and Alec McMullin. Seating the guests were Mickey Dugan, Jim Lamy and John Watkins.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride selected a shell pink silk sleeveless, street length gown and jacket. The gown featured a jeweled mandarin collar, belted waistline and center skirt pleat. Jeweled cuffs accented the three-quarter length jacket sleeves and she wore a corsage of white cattleya orchids.

The mother of the groom was attired in a Victorian green silk chiffon dress styled with fitted bodice, double layered skirt and matching belt. Embroidery of chalk white beading and rhinestones enhanced the bodice yoke and mandarin collar and she carried a white cattleya orchid.

A reception was held at the Sedalia Country Club following the ceremony. Serving were Miss Perry Mudd, Miss Marilyn Burch, Miss Joyce Cairer and Miss Debbie Silberstein. Mrs. Betty McMullin was in charge of the guest book and Miss Denise Stanfield distributed rice bags.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., the bride selected an ensemble of white Matelasse cotton with lace inserts, white patent accessories and a corsage of mint green phalaenopsis orchids.

The new Mrs. Brown is a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and received a BS degree in business administration from the University of Missouri this year. The groom, also a Smith-Cotton graduate, received his bachelor degree in journalism from the University of Missouri.

The couple will reside in San Antonio, Tex., where the groom will be employed with WOAI-TV.

Facts and Fallacies about Jewelry

By Tom Hudson, Gemologist

FALLACY:
"Third finer, left hand" has always been the rule for wedding rings.

FACT:
The ancient Greeks favored the third finger, left hand, for betrothal rings, but through the centuries the practice varied. In most countries from the 13th to the 16th century, and as late as the 18th century, the right hand was used—and any finger! The little finger was often used.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Sanders

Miss Halsey, Robert Sanders Wed in Afternoon Ceremony

MARSHALL — The First Christian Church was the scene of the afternoon wedding of Miss Neta G. Halsey and Robert E. Sanders. The Rev. Sam S. Langley officiated at the June 8 double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Halsey, Marshall, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Sanders, Marshall.

Arrangements of white daisies and yellow ribbon and nine-tiered candelabra enhanced the altar as organist, Miss Janie McGraw, cousin of the bride, accompanied John Johnson who sang "One Hand One Heart" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Dressed in floor length yellow dotted swiss gown accented with lace, Miss Paula Kelly, Marshall, and Miss Pam Younger, Nelson, lighted the candles.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor length chalk white silk organza gown styled with scooped neckline, short summer sleeves and sheer overskirt which extended into a chapel length train at the back. Motifs of iridescent sequins and pearls highlighted the lace pattern framing the neckline and circling the heightened waist. An open crown of illusion petals and pearlized orange blossoms secured her shoulder length veil and she carried an arrangement of butterfly orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Alice McKay, wore a floor length gown of yellow dotted swiss with white lace accents and back train. A double bow of matching dotted swiss formed her headpiece and she carried a cascade of shasta pom daisies and ivy leaves. Bridesmaids, Miss Jean Ann Eidson, Camdenton, Miss Connie Halsey, sister of the bride, and Miss Gail Sanders, sister of the groom, were dressed in gowns identical to that worn by the maid of honor.

Miss Melanie Dowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Dowell, and Miss Jessica Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton, were flowergirls in identical yellow dotted swiss dresses with lace trim. Both are nieces of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Halsey chose a mint green silk dress with matching lace trim and beige accessories. The mother of the groom was attired in a pink knit dress and matching accessories. Both wore corsages of miniature roses.

At the reception held following the ceremony, the bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake enhanced with yellow daisies and topped with three satin bells centered with daisies.

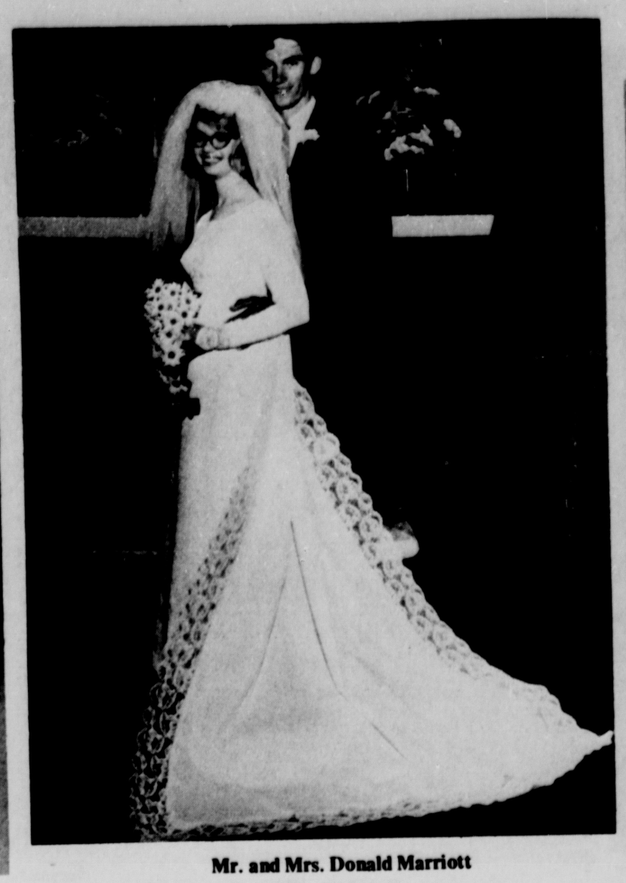

Serving were Mrs. Charles Daws, Napton; Mrs. Lois Kelly and Mrs. Judy Wise. Miss Charla McGraw, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The bride has completed her sophomore year at Missouri Valley College and is employed with the MFA Livestock Association. The groom, a graduate of MVC, is working for the Missouri Highway Department for the summer, and plans to teach at Excelsior Springs in the fall.

---

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Luey Sanders, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Parsons, all of Otterville, grandparents of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Marriott

Miss Ehlers, D. Mariott Exchange Wedding Vows

VERSAILLES — Pink gladiolas and white asters accented the June 6 evening double ring wedding of Miss Joyce Ehlers and Donald Marriott at the Grace Lutheran Church. The Rev. Guy Smith officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Ehlers and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Marriott.

Organist, Ruth Roland, played "Trumpet Voluntary" and "Trumpet Tune" and Miss Barbara Fischer sang "More" and the "Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire A-line gown of veiled silk organza over taffeta, styled with a circlet neckline and long tapering sleeves. Scalloped lace trimmed with pearls circled the high waist and long vertical panels on the flaring skirt. The chapel length Watteau train of silk, was framed with lace. Petals of pearls and crystals secured her veil of imported silk illusion, and she carried a cascade of white daisies. Her only jewelry, a diamond pendant, was a gift from the groom.

Maid of honor, Miss Rita Ehlers, sister of the bride, wore a pink crepe, sleeveless gown featuring a circlet neckline, A-line skirt and empire waist. A pink crepe bow held the matching veil, and she carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Serving as best man was Leo Morrison, Versailles. Ushers were Jim Marriott, Stover and Roger Wittrock, Gravois Mills, both cousins of the groom.

Miss Terri Beckmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Beckmann, Stover, niece of the groom and Miss Ellen Sue Schuermann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Schuermann, St. Peters, niece of the bride, were flowergirls. Both wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor and carried baskets of pink rose petals.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ehlers chose a pink lace dress with white accessories and white daisy corsage. The mother of the groom was dressed in a navy blue lace dress with white accessories and white daisy corsage.

Grandmother of the groom, Mrs. May Marriott, and grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Anna Ehlers, wore white carnation corsages.

Following the ceremonies, a reception was held in the church parlor with 150 guests attending. Mrs. Veleta Kipp, Stover, baked and served the wedding cake. Also serving were Carolyn Warke, Jeannie Krull, and Connie Viebrock, all of Stover. Jeannie Krull, Stover, was in charge of the guest book.

The new Mrs. Marriott is a 1966 graduate of Stover High School and attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, for two years. The groom graduated from Versailles High School in 1965 and has served in the armed forces two years. He is employed with Osborn and Dobbins Construction, Laurie.

The couple will reside in Stover.

Lavender and White Setting For Faulconer-Young Vows

LAMONTE — Wedding vows were solemnized June 7 by Miss Shirley Ann Faulconer and Joseph Allen Young at the LaMonte Christian Church. Brother Roy C. Smith, pastor, officiated at the double ring evening ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ray Faulconer, Knob Noster, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Young, Greenwood, Ind.

White cathedral tapers in seven branch candelabra arranged with lavender flowers banked the church chancel which was centered with arrangements of white gladioli and lavender and white mums. Garlands of smilax accented with white doves marked the chancel rail.

Miss Mary Hogan, pianist, played a prelude of nuptial selections and accompanied Miss Carol Gatschet, Windsor, as she sang "More" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a semi-fitted A-line gown of bridal satin with chapel length train attached at the yoke. The yoke and bracelet length bell sleeves were fashioned of scalloped Galoon lace. Her two-tiered shoulder length veil of nylon chiffon organza, edged in lace, fell from a rosette of lace and seed pearl petals and she carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations and stephanotis. Her only jewelry, a heart shaped pendant with a diamond setting, was a gift from the groom.

Miss Carolyn Corbett was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Pamela Faulconer, sister of the bride, and Miss Marsha Guin. They wore identical floor length A-line gowns of lavender satin styled with scooped neckline and short cap sleeves, and carried cascases of camellia and variagated pittoporum foliage with lavender ribbons. Their headpieces were of matching foliage.

Mrs. Ann Trelow, LaMonte, cousin of the bride, made the gowns worn by the bride and the attendants.

Ralph Chaney, Greenwood, Ind., was best man. Groomsmen were Jim Miller, Greenwood, Ind., and Nick Fauoconer, Olathe, Kan., brother of the bride. George Faulconer, Eldon, uncle of the bride, and Gene Trelow, LaMonte, cousin of the bride, seated the guests.

Miss Theresa Davis, Indianapolis, Ind., three-year-old niece of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white eyelet dress with mint green streamers, matching hat and gloves and carried a lavender trimmed princess basket of white mum petals. Samuel Trelow, LaMonte, cousin of the bride, was the ringbearer. He carried the rings on a white satin pillow covered with lace.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Faulconer wore a two-piece green lace suit with satin trim and white accessories. Mrs. Young, the groom's mother, wore a three-piece beige suit ensemble, with white petal hat and beige accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Louise Trelow and Miss Ruth Taylor, LaMonte, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters. They wore street length lavender dresses styled similarly to the bridesmaids, and wrist corsages of lavender pom-pons.

Miss Jackie Corbett attended the guest book and Miss Jeanne Byassee, LaMonte, was in charge of the gift table, which was covered with a beige lace table cloth, with a centerpiece of lavender net, lilies-of-the-valley, dark lavender violets and three white wedding bells.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered by a white lace cloth with lavender underlay. A miniature bride and groom and wedding attendants descended the spiral stairsteps which circled the cake from the miniature church on the top tier. White love birds and lavender sugar hearts trimmed the cake and staircase. Lavender tapers in crystal holders and a crystal punch bowl completed the table appointments. The wedding cake was made by Mrs. Ward Forbes, LaMonte.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allen Young

For a wedding trip to Kentucky the bride chose a three-piece green and white knit walking suit, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Knob Noster Senior High School. The groom graduate from Greenwood High School in 1962 and United Electronics Laboratory, Louisville, Ky., in 1964. He was a radio repairman and job controller while serving four years in the U.S. Air Force at Whiteman Air Force base. He is presently employed with the Indiana Bell Telephone Co., Greenwood, Ind.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Young, Greenwood, Ind., parents of the groom; Mrs. Steve Davis, sister of the groom, and her daughter, Theresa, Mrs. Helen Jarred, grandmother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Greeson, uncle and aunt of the groom, and their daughter, Mrs. Robert Kelis, Indianapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Michal Freed and Mrs. Paul Malone and son, Mike, Youngstown, Ohio, cousins of the bride.

---

4-H Notes

Donald Arnold gave a demonstration on tractor skill.

After hearing a report on the council meeting, plans were made for the Smithton Fair and Achievement Day. Members were encouraged to participate in the grooming and dress revue.

The next meeting will be July 2 and will feature a demonstration on baby beef by Dennis Arnold. Plans for Achievement Day and a picnic in August will be discussed.

Sedalia International Dragway on South 65

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

George Weatherly, president of the Sedalia International Dragway, Inc., late Saturday announced the new location of a drag strip facility in Pettis County.

It will be constructed on Highway 65, south of the Sedalia city limits, where the old "hog barns" are currently located.

Weatherly was thwarted in his first proposed site, the southern boundary of the Missouri State Fairgrounds, when many Southwest Village residents organized in opposition to that location.

Bound and determined to locate the strip in or near Sedalia, Weatherly began his search for a new site.

One of his early thoughts after the falling through of the fairgrounds location, was to build near Marshall Junction, but Weatherly felt that that was too far from populated areas and communication medias.

Another tract of land, located on the northwest corner of Grand Avenue and highway 65 north, was also available. That area was not suitable because of the large amount of grading that was needed.

Weatherly was informed of the site on 65 south and started negotiations for the leasing of the property.

The owners and Weatherly came to an agreement on the lease terms and the final papers were signed.

Weatherly stated that he is very pleased with the site, mainly because of its "proximity" and minimal amount of grading that is entailed.

The immediate plans are to tear down all but one of the "hog barns"; the remaining structure will be torn down at a later date.

The idea of a drag facility in or near Sedalia has been kicked around for many years.

On March 4, 1962, the most significant effort, up until Weatherly's proposal, was made.

Four local car clubs and a motorcycle organization met with a committee set up by the Oil Men's Association on that date, for the purpose of drawing up plans for a local strip.

Members of that committee included Vic Gill, Virgil Herrick and Velmar Harms. At the meeting, it was agreed to "get behind the clubs and their project."

About four years before, Jack Couts, now the Sedalia park superintendent, made the first active attempt to have a drag facility constructed here.

He stated that his plans fr the facility fell through because of financial problems that came up while in the planning stages of the strip.

On March 29, 1962, Couts was elected president of the newly formed Sedalia Missouri Timing Association.

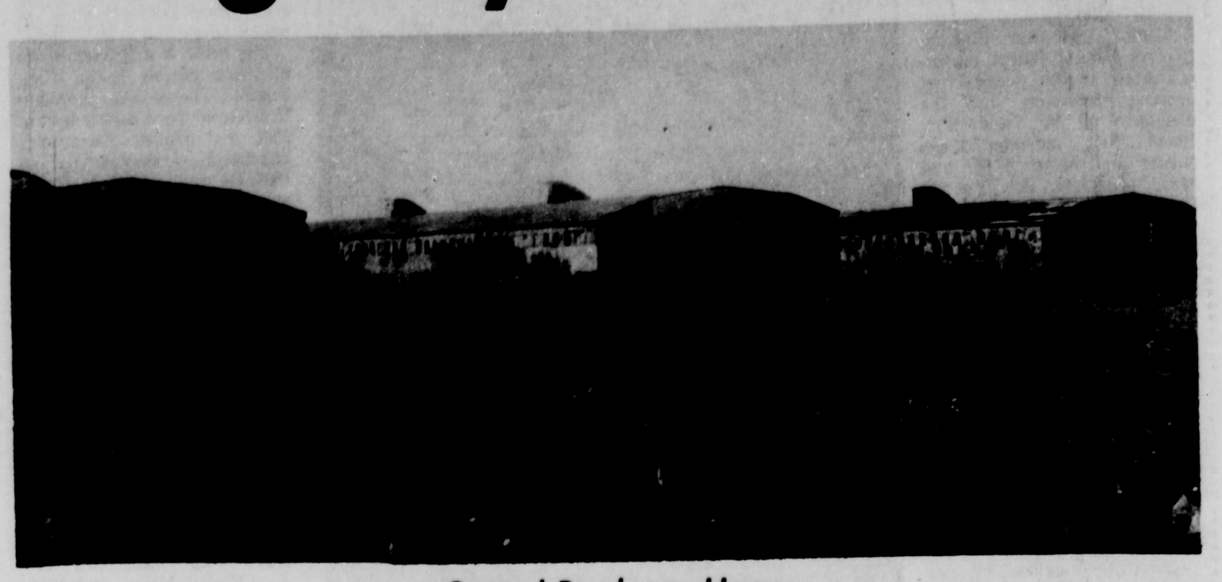

The Oil Men's Association was still in agreement with the clubs and the choice of Couts.

The next step was to start looking for site suitable for construction of the facility. Sedalia Memorial Airport was named as one of those possible locations.

Finally, the talk died down, and nothing more was done by the Oil Men's Association or the Sedalia Missouri Timing Association. The project was scrubbed.

Weatherly's proposed facility will run at an angle to 65, with entrances directly from the highway.

Speed Replaces Hogs

San Diego State Wins NCAA Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sophomores Curtis Mills of Texas A&M and Marty Liquori of Villanova scored stunning upsets Saturday in the NCAA Track and Field Championships won by San Jose State behind the explosive running of John Carlos.

Mills broke the world record in the 440-yard dash, running the quarter-mile in 44.7 seconds and nipping Olympic champion Lee Evans of San Jose at the tape.

Liquori uncorked a courageous finishing kick and whipped world record- holder Jim Ryun of Kansas by 10 yards in the mile, winning in 3:57.7.

Carlos, who won the 100 in 9.2 Friday, anchored San Jose State's winning 440-yard relay team and thundered to a 10-foot triumph in the 220, winning in 20.2.

San Jose State scored 48 points, whipping favored Kansas which had counted on Ryun for victory in the mile and for points in the three-mile where the winded senior dropped out on the fourth lap in a frustrating finish to his college career.

Kansas finished second in the team race with 45 points.

Washington State and Oregon State tied for third with 40 points. UCLA was fifth with 39, Villanova scored 35, Brigham Young 34, defending champion Southern Cal 33 and Tennessee 28.

The final event of the meet, the mile relay, produced a new collegiate and American record when UCLA's speedesters were clocked in 3:03.4.

Carlos, booted out of the U.S. Olympic Village at Mexico City last fall, held up his fingers in a V-sign and shouted with joy with his teammates when they were awarded the team trophy.

Then, the San Jose State team —which never before had won an NCAA track crown—ran jubiliantly around the track, chanting and shouting.

Numerous NCAA meet records toppled, including the pole vault standard boosted to 17-7½ by Olympic champion Bob Seagren of Southern Cal.

Other highlights included a 7-2½ high jump by Olympic champion Dick Fosbury of Oregon State, who repeated as champion. So did John Van Reenen of Washington State, who threw the discus 200-8, and Byron Dyce of New York University, who lowered the 880 collegiate record to 1:45.9.

But Mills, Liquori and Carlos were the meet standouts.

Mills, 20-year-old journalism student, burst past Evans at the finish and cracked the old world mark of 44.8 set three years ago by Tommie Smith of San Jose State.

Asked to describe how he would write a story about his race, the lanky Texan said, "I'd call it a helluva run."

Liquori, 19-year-old sophomore who had never before beaten Ryun, battled the Kansas favorite shoulder-to-shoulder for about 200 yards and then swept to an easy triumph against the man famed for his furious finishes.

"I ran to win," said Liquori, who set a NCAA meet record.

Ryun, who had been bidding for an unprecedented double in the mile and three mile, said: "Liquori won it. I just didn't have it at the finish in the mile. It was hot."

He pointed out he was last when he dropped out of the three-mile and he did not appear on the victory stand to accept his second-place medal in the mile, which he ran in 3:59.3.

Frank Murphy of Villanova also was clocked under four minutes, taking third in 3:59.8.

Postpone Mo-Valley AAU Track Meet

The Missouri Valley AAU Sub District Championships being held in Kansas City Saturday were postponed due to rain and have been rescheduled as follows:

Bantams, Midgets and Juniors, 13 and under, at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. Intermediates and Seniors, 16 and 17, rescheduled to June 26 at same time at Southeast High School, 3500 East 63rd.

Upset Winner

Knosville, Tenn. — Martin Liquori, Villanova, was the upset winner in the mile run Saturday at the finals of the NCAA Trace Meet. Jim Ryun, Kansas, came in second. Liquori's time was three minutes, 57.7 seconds. (UPI)

Signings Won't Hurt Arizona State Baseball

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Bobby Winkles won't know for several weeks how deeply professional signings will cut into his NCAA championship baseball team, but those who know Winkles and Arizona State baseball say it doesn't matter a great deal.

They predict the Sun Devils will be back in Omaha next June bidding for their fourth national title in six years.

Arizona State won its third championship in five years Friday night, blasting Tulsa, 10-1, in the title game.

Five of the mainstays on Winkles' club have eligibility remaining —including what he calls his finest outfield—but have been drafted by the pros.

"I don't let that worry me too much," said Winkles. "It's part of the game today. They're fine boys and they'll make fine ballplayers."

John Dolinsek, the tournament's leading hitter at .476 and voted the outstanding player in the tourney, is a draft choice of the Houston Astros. Paul Ray Powell, who hit .375 here, was picked by Minnesota. Ralph Dick, ASU's third outfielder, also was drafted by the Twins. All three are 21-year-old juniors.

Also drafted were senior pitcher Larry Gura, by the Chicago Cubs, junior hurler Lerrin LaGrow, by Detroit, and catcher Billy Cotton.

Dr. Pepper Goes North Tonight

The Dr. Pepper softball team will travel to Marshall tonight for a doubleheader with Sam's. Game time is 7:30 for the first tilt.

After suffering from bad weather problems, which have canceled their last three games, the squad has hopes to complete the two contests tonight.

Sport Executives Ever-Vigilant In Struggle Against Gambling

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowie Kuhn, Walter Kennedy and Pete Rozelle all have handed down rulings recently that emphasize one common fear—that the world of sports, directly or indirectly, will be dirtied by the world of gambling.

In their distinctly separate pronouncements on cases involving gambling associations, the three commissioners of multi-million dollar sports enterprises on which huge amounts of money are wagered have moved to insure the integrity of their ventures with the paying public.

Kuhn made integrity the issue when he had officials of the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics sever their relationships with a company that runs three hotels in Las Vegas, Nev., where gambling casinos operate.

He emphasized that neither William Bartholomay and John Louis Jr., of the Braves nor Charles Finley of the Athletics was guilty of "any wrongdoing or impropiety" but that they had volunteered to cooperate "to avoid any possible occasion for criticism of baseball."

Kennedy made integrity the issue when he approved a National Basketball Association contract with the Phoenix Suns for Connie Hawkins, who had had been barred from the league in 1961 for supposedly introducing a gambler to a fellow player.

He emphasized that the NBA changed its opinion on Hawkins when investigation showed that employing Hawkins would not be inconsistent with the league's policy "to keep itself free of any contact with anyone who has ever been associated with gambling or fixing."

Rozelle made integrity the issue when he ordered quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets to divest himself of his interest in a night spot which, according to law enforcements agencies and pro football's own invesgiators, was being frequented by gamblers.

He emphasized that there was no evidence that Namath was "personally involved in any illegal activities" but that his associations might give "the appearance of evil whether or not it actually exists and thereby affect...the integrity of his sport."

Nowhere in the three cases is there the slightest mention of any of the parties involved being engaged in any illegal activities. At the same time, nowhere in the three cases is there anything that would suggest naivete on the part of the three sports as far as appreciating the fact that gambling exists and will continue to exist.

The sports world not only has to guard against any such recurrence, which would rock the foundation of any sport, but also must be beyond reproach in every sense of the word as far as the average fan even thinking a sports-gambling link exists.

Douglass Sinks Pressure Putt for Kemper Lead

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Lean Dale Douglass sank pressure-packed birdie putts on two of his last three holes for his four-under par 68 Saturday and the third round lead in the $150,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament with a 54-hole score of 207.

Douglass, 33, was nine under par for the tournament and held a one-stroke lead over Masters champion George Archer and New Zealander Bob Charles as the massive log-jam developed atop the standings.

With 18 holes to play for the $30,000 top prize, 11 players—five of them foreigners—were within three shots of each other.

Lionel Hebert, 41-year-old former PGA champion, had a sparkling 67 and was tied at 209 with Australian Bruce Crampton, 69, and handsome Tony Jacklin of England, who had a third round 70.

The 6-foot-6 Archer had eight one-putt greens en route to a 68 and the left-handed Charles, the second round leader, had a 70.

Tied at 210 were Lee Trevino, Dan Sikes, Julius Boros, Gary Player of South Africa, and Canadian George Knudson. Boros and Player leaped into contention with 67s, Knudson had a 70 and Trevino and Sikes matched 71s in the sweltering heat on the 7,205 yard par 72 Quail Hollow Country Club course.

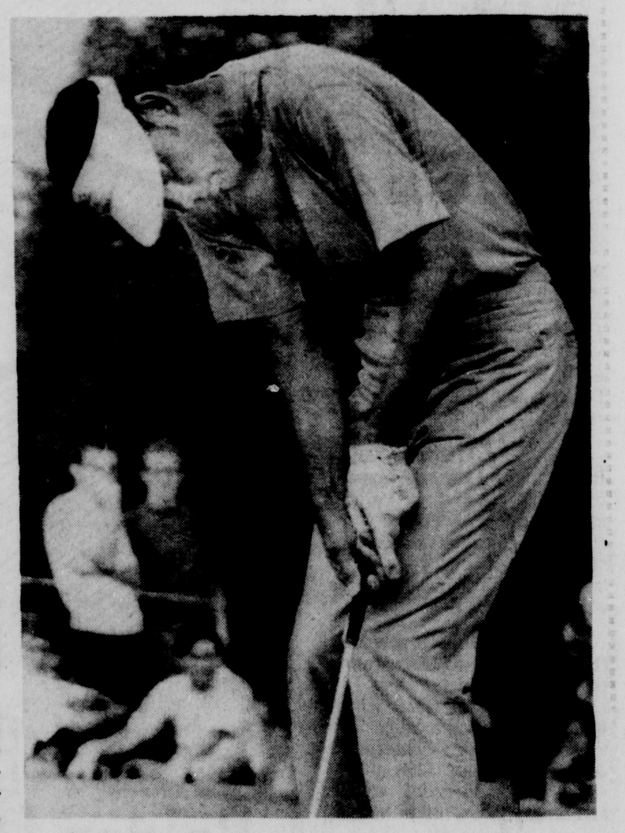

Douglass, 6-foot-2 and only 155 but possessed of a picture swing, has scored only one victory in his nine-year professional career, in this year's Wilmington, N. C., Azalea Open. He has played well this year, with six consecutive finishes in the top 10 and has won over $48,000.

He was one stroke off the pace going into the third round and matched two birdies with two bogeys on his first five holes. He rammed in a monster 40-foot putt on the seventh and pitched to within three feet of the flag on nine to turn in 34.

He caught Charles with a birdie on the 10th, again pitching to within three feet, and shared the lead for some time with the strong-putting Archer.

Douglass had to sink a tricky 10-footer for a birdie on 16 to stay even and assumed sole control with another 10-foot birdie on the 18th.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer had a 70 for 214 and U.S. Open champion Orville Moody had a 73 for 216.

Kemper Leader

Charlott, N. C. — The third round leader of the Kemper Open, Dale Douglass of Denver, Colo., watches his putt roll toward the cup and a birdie on the 16th to put him in front of the pack Saturday with a nine-under-par 107. (UPI)

Grudge Tag Team Match Tops Card

K.O. Cox

Tornado Murdock

A grudge tag team wrestling clash will highlight Tuesday's ring program at Convention Hall. Making up the competing tandems will be Tornado Murdock—K.O. Cox and Ronnie Etchison-Pat O'Connor.

In anticipation of what he expects to be the wildest card of the season, Matchmaker Gust Karras said he has called for lumberjack rules to keep check on the action. These provide for four other heavyweights to be stationed outside the ropes, ready to toss back in any of the principals who seek to break a hold by slipping through the strands.

The 265-pound Murdock and Cox have dominated team action since early May, but will find experienced, willing opposition in Etchison and the former world champion. Both are strong and aggressive and proficient with a wide variety of holds.

Tor Kamata, who gave O'Connor a tough match last week, will tackle Thor Hagen in another clash on Tuesday's card. Hagen, a favorite here, is in the peak of condition and has intensified his campaign lately in an effort to gain added recognition.

Other matches pit Alec Medina and the Viking, and O'Connor and Cox.

Surf Club Members Are In Springfield

Sedalia's Surf Club is being represented this weekend by four swimmers in the Ozarks Invitational Swim Meet in Springfield.

Competing for the local club is Jo Ann Maxwell and Kent Cordry in the senior men and women's open division while Kathy Anderson and Diane Cordry are competing in the junior sections.

The meet, which features some of the fastest swimmers in the nation, is a stern test for the local competition.

Following this meet the team will prepare for a relay meet to be held at Columbia on June 28th, followed by the Junior Olympic Championships at Jefferson City, July 5th and 6th.

'Little Mo' Dies After Cancer Bout

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Maureen "Little Mo" Connolly Brinker, who ruled the woman's tennis world from 1951-1954 before a horseback riding accident ended her career, died Saturday of cancer.

Little Mo might have been the equal to any woman tennis player in history, or she might have been better, but no one will ever know because of the freak accident that cut short her career—before she was 20 years old.

Just a few weeks earlier, Little Mo had won her third straight Wimbledon title and was home again in San Diego looking for a little relaxation on a muggy, mid-summer day in 1954. For Mrs. Brinker there was only one answer, a gallop with her favorite horse, Colonel Merryboy.

Minutes later Little Mo and the roan sorrel were riding along a cinder path beside a highway when, frightened by the approach of a cement truck, Colonel Merryboy bolted. The horse slammed against the side of the truck and Mrs. Brinker was thrown into a ditch, her right leg smashed.

Although it appeared that she might be able to overcome the injuries, Mrs. Brinker's leg never did heal properly and Little Mo announced she would never play competitive tennis again.

"If I can't play the way I used to," she said, "there is no need in playing at all."

The way she used to play put her in a class with Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills Moody, and she still is the only woman to score a so-called grand slam by winning the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. titles in a single year.

Little Mo accomplished that feat in 1953, stringing together the four titles for the grand slam that had evaded such stars as Miss Wills and Alice Marble in the past and in more recent years such standouts as Margaret Smith, Marie Bueno and Billy Jean King.

Mrs. Brinker, 5-feet-4 and 130 pounds at the peak of her career, was a deadly sharpshooter off both sides in back court and rushed to the net less than some of her more aggressive successors. There was little explosiveness in her game, rather there was a meticulous, relentless approach.

She was 34.

She had suffered from the disease since 1966 but still was active in teaching young people the fundamentals of the game she loved.

Three times she won both the Wimbledon and United States titles. In 1954, she scored an unprecedented grand slam, winning the U.S., Wimbledon, French and Australian championships.

"Little Mo" married businessman Norman Brinker in 1955. They had two children—Cindy, 12, and Brenda, 10.

Mrs. Brinker was active in the Maureen Connolly Brinker Foundation for the advancement of tennis achievement among junior Texas players. She gave numerous clinics and was cited as Dallas Woman of the Year for her work with youth.

Brinker said "she was as proud over winning that award as she was receiving the Woman Athlete of the Year award three times. Her real interest was with young people and helping to improve the caliber of tennis in Texas."

"Little Mo" underwent her third operation for a stomach tumor June 4 at Baylor Hospital. Brinker admitted privately at the time that it would take a miracle for her to survive over the long haul.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Teams Still Strong Despite Missing Stars

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Two of the country's top college runners may be missing in the Coaches All-America football game Saturday night, but officials claim both teams will have plenty of firepower.

"Even if O. J. Simpson doesn't play, we've got a heck of a game," said Pepper Rodgers of Kansas, who will coach the West.

"You can look for years and probably not find such a group of linemen together again," contended Joe Paterno of Penn State, who will direct the East.

The ninth annual all-star battle will be nationally televised, starting at 8:30 p.m., EDT.

Simpson, the Heisman Trophy winner from Southern Cal, is a doubtful participant. He has said he won't play unless he has signed a pro football contract, and he and the Buffalo Bills apparently are not close to agreeing on terms.

The East apparently will be without one of the nation's most heralded players, too. Leroy Keyes of Purdue, offensive and defensive halfback, still hasn't signed with the Philadelphia Eagles.

But both teams have top runners available. Paul Gipson, the Houston workhorse drafted by the Atlanta Falcons, and 235-pound Bill Enyard of Oregon State—who will play with the Buffalo Bills in the Pros—head up the West's running attack.

Michigan's Ron Johnson, signed by the Cleveland Browns, and Penn State's Bob Campbell—headed for the Pittsburgh Steelers—will carry the ball for the East.

Columbia sharpshooter Marty Domres and Richmond's Buster O'Brien will quarterback the East.

Kansas' Bobby Douglass and Edd Hargett of Texas A&M will quarterback the West.

Defensive standouts for the West include ends John Zook of Kansas and Fred Dryer of San Diego State, 274-pound tackle Joe Greene of North Texas State and linebacker Ron Pritchard of Arizona State.

The East's defense will be built around Miami's 6-foot-8 "Mad Stork" Ted Hendricks, who is listed as a linebacker and defensive end, and Georgia tackle Bill Stanfill.

Sedalia BJ Team is in Third Place

Columbia and Jefferson City are in a virtual tie for the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League lead.

Jefferson City has a 3-0 season record, while Columbia is 2-0.

Jefferson City defeated Boonville Thursday night, 10-7, while Columbia won their second game in as many season's starts by downing Marshall, 12-3.

Sedalia is followed by Boonville, 2-2; Tipton also has a .500 record, but they are 1-1.

Rounding out the seven team league is Centralia in sixth place with a 1-2 mark and Marshall, 0-5 is in last.

Today's games include a night contest for Sedalia fans at Liberty Park. Boonville will be going against the locals at 8 p.m.

Two other contests are on tap in CMBJ play: Tipton at Jefferson City and Centralia at Columbia; both are night games.

Three other tilts are scheduled this week, all on Thursday night: Marshall will be at Sedalia, Centralia at Jefferson City and Columbia at Tipton.

Blues Pick Talent In Draft

KANSAS CITY — In the annual draft meeting held in Montreal the past week, the parent club of the Kansas City Blues, the St. Louis Blues, drafted ten players, four college students, one American and a forward from Helsinki, Finland. Each player was obtained for the $3000 claiming price.

Should any of these players be signed to a pro contract, they will probably be assigned to the Kansas City Blues.

The Blues, who earlier gave up their first choice to New York in exchange for center Phil Goyette, chose as their second choice 6'1", 190 pound wing from Loyola College of Montreal, Michael Lowe. Lowe is termed by the Blues Assistant General Manager, Cliff Fletcher, as the top prospect who the Blues were surprised to find available after the first round.

The American boy chosen is Bob Collyard, a sophomore at Colorado College who hails from Hibbing, Minnesota.

Bernie "Boom-Boom" Gagnon from the University of Michigan who played for Scott Bowman in Montreal was grabbed in the third round.

The Blues reached across the ocean to get Tommi Salmelanen, a young forward from Helsinki, Finland. He is presently living in Toronto, Canada and studying English.

Other players obtained are Dale Yutsuk, a center from Colorado College; Skeeter Teal from At. Catharine, Jr.; Brian Glenright from Kitchener, Jr.; and John Converse, a left wing from Estavan, Jr., rounded out the amateur forwards obtained by the Blues.

David Pulkinnan, an offensive rear guard, scored 17 goals for the Oshawa General, was the long defenseman tapped by the Blues while Pat Lange from Sudbury, was the only goalie.

In accordance with draft regulations all of those chosen will reach the age of 21 years by December 31st of this year.

Stolle Warms Up With A Victory

LONDON (AP) — Fred Stolle, three times Wimbledon runner-up but never the champon, warmed up for the big tennis tournament Saturday by defeating John Newcombe, 6-3 22-20 for the London grass courts title at Queen's Club.

Wimbledon starts Monday and the two Australians turned their match into a rugged workout. They battled for almost two hours in the second set.

Try Out for Championships

St. Louis — Ray Rogers (left), world champion archer and some 124 other high-ranked amateur men, women and teenage archers try out Saturday for the archery team that will represent the United States at the World Championships later this summer at Valley Forge, Pa. ## Shuvee Toys With Rivals In Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Whitney Stone's Shuvee toyed with six rivals Saturday to win the $119,625 Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park and take the New York Racing Association's Triple Crown for fillies.

In adding the 1¼-mile Oaks to her victories in the Acorn and Mother Goose, Shuvee got home in 2:03 1-5, three lengths ahead of Walter Kitchen's Hail To Patsy, also the runner-up in the first two legs of the triple.

Sent off the 3-10 favorite by the crowd of 41,010, Shuvee returned $2.60, 2.10 and $2.10 in taking the first money of $77,756.25 to boost her career earnings to $388,147.25.

Hail To Patsy returned $2.20 and $2.10 and Marcia Schott's Secret Verdict, who was 1½ lengths back of Hail To Patsy, as $2.10 for show.

Royals Draft Fifteen More Ball Players

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals of the American League said Saturday the club has signed 15 more baseball players selected in the June free agent draft.

"We now have 40 of our selections under contract," said Charlie Metro, director of scouting and instruction, "and our scouts still are busy talking to some of the other players."

The Royals chose 98 in the June draft. They also have signed 30 of their top 55 picks in the regular draft.

"Our entire system now totals 183 players, including 26 on the major league roster, and we expect that number to grow a little more in the next few days," Metro said.

The Royals have six farm clubs. Only the Minnesota Twins with eight and the St. Louis Cardinals with seven have more.

Among the latest signings are southpaw pitcher Mike Nichols, 6 feet 2, 200 pounds, of LaMirada, Calif., and righthander Stan Grout, 6 feet 2, 180 pounds, of Perry, Iowa. Nichols is 20, Grout 18.

Stewart Gets Win In Grand Prix

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Cards 5, Mets 3

NEW YORK (AP)— Pitcher Nelson Briles drove in two runs with his first major league homer and a single and cut down New York on four hits as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Mets 5-3 Saturday.

Briles, 6-5, broke a scoreless tie with one out in the fifth inning when he laced a pitch by loser Jack DiLauro, 0-2, over the left center field wall. Lou Brock followed with a double and Curt Flood singled him home.

The Mets got a run in the sixth on two walks, a sacrifice bunt and Wayne Garrett's sacrifice fly. Art Shamsky hit his fourth homer in the seventh and Bud Harrelson singled in the eighth and came around on two ground outs and a wild pitch.

Expos 3, Cubs 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Fairly's third straight hit, a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning, lifted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

With one out in the eighth, Mack Jones was hit by a Ferguson Jenkins pitch and then raced all the way home past coach Peanuts Lowery's stop signal to score the tie-breaker on Fairly's hit.

Ron Brand then came up with a two-out single that chased Fairly home with an insurance run.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Ernie Banks run-scoring single. It was his 1,538th run batted in, moving him past Joe Dimaggio into 15th place on the all-time list.

Pirates 8, Phillies 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jose Martinez rapped a tie-breaking, run-scoring single in the eighth inning, then added a two-run single in the ninth as the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Philadelphia 8-2 Saturday.

The game was tied 2-2 until Roberto Clemente led off the eighth with a double and scored on Martinez' single, his second of three hits. Pitcher Bruce Dal Canton capped the rally with a two-run single.

Then in the ninth the Pirates erupted for three more runs. They loaded the bases on singles by Richie Hebner and Clemente plus an intentional walk to Al Oliver. Jerry May struck out, but Martinez singled for two runs. Fred Patek then singled in another run.

Richie Allen had given the Phillies a 1-0 lead in the second with his 19th homer. A walk to Lowell Palmer and Larry Hisle's double gave the Phillies a 2-0 lead in the fourth.

Giants 7, Braves 1

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Bolin tossed a three-hitter and Willie Mays lashed a three-run homer Saturday sparking the San Francisco Giants to a 7-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Mays unloaded his ninth four-bagger of the year in the seventh inning, capping a four-run outburst.

Hal Lanier led off the inning with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice, advanced to third on a pop double by Bobby Bonds and scored on a wild pitch. Ron Hunt then walked and Mays followed with his homer.

Bolin surrendered his three hits in the fourth inning when the Braves scored on singles by Tony Gonzalez, Rico Carty and Bob Aspromonte.

Orioles 3, Indians 1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Cuellar limited Cleveland to four hits and the torrid Baltimore Orioles made a three-run first inning burst stand up for a 3-1 victory over the Indians Saturday.

Cuellar, 8-5, struck out nine, pitched hitless ball for 4 1-3 innings and blanked the Indians until the eighth, leading the Orioles to their ninth victory in the last 10 games.

Don Buford opened the game with a double off Cleveland starter Stan Williams, 2-7, took third on Paul Blair's single and scored on a double by Frank Robinson. Blair scored on Boog Powell's infield out and Robinson tallied on a wild pitch.

Tigers 8, Senators 5

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton smashed a grand slam homer, a bases-empty shot and a run-scoring single Saturday, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 9-5 victory over Washington in a seesaw, error-punctuated game.

Horton hit his ninth homer of the season and second career grand slam in the seventh inning off senators reliever Casey Cox, snapping a 5-5 tie.

Horton also connected with the bases empty in the fourth and singled another run home in the fifth for a total of six RBI in the game.

Horton's bases-empty homer, singles by Jim Northrup and Bill Freehan and Lolich's sacrifice fly gave the Tigers a 3-2 edge in the fourth, but the Senators countered with three tainted runs in the fifth—two of them on Frank Howard's 21st homer.

Detroit scored twice in the bottom of the inning on four singles and two errors, knotting it 5-5.

Red Sox 6, Yankees 5

BOSTON (AP) — George Thomas' two-run single after a two-run double by Joe Lahoud in the 11th inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 6-5 vicotry over the New York Yankees Saturday in the opener of a day-night doubleheader.

The Yankees scored three runs in the top of the 11th but the Red Sox charged back in the bottom half against New York reliever Ken Johnson.

Pinch hitter Dalton Jones started the comeback with a one-out walk, George Scott singled and Tom Satriano walked, filling the bases. Lahoud then doubled down the right field line for two runs and Thomas sent the tying and winning runs home with a broken bat single to center.

Sparky Lyle, who relieved Boston starter Mike Nagy in the sixth and pitched out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam, balked home the tying run in the eighth.

Tiresome Vendetta

Public officials are supposed to be smart enough to determine and respond to grass roots' opinions of their constituents.

No Missouri tornado in recent times has stirred up as much dust as the political controversies, bickering and animosities in the Capital city.

Blame for the bottleneck of major legislation, especially in the field of tax legislation for education, state institutions and other necessary functions of government, is in the lap of the Senate. More progress, it must be noted, has been made by members of the House.

The incessant vendetta by insurgent leaders of the Senate is becoming pretty tiresome to the folks back home. It is being given so much priority that even their committees can't function intelligently.

We refer particularly to emasculation of appropriations for the Missouri State Fair by senators of long service who seem to have lost their business acumen. It strains the imagination to learn that a man as astute as Senator J. F. Patterson, chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee, would nit pick and swing the ax on necessary items for operation of the State Fair without giving them thorough analysis or by adequate consultation with the man who knows more about fair management than Patterson—Secretary W. C. Askew.

Askew's subsequent public explanation of the required budget items makes more sense than the senator's blind swing at the requested appropriations.

Other senate committee members have lost their sense of values during the current session of the legislature. Recently some prominent Missouri business men were invited to a hearing to provide information a committee needed. These men at their own time and expense went to Jefferson City and waited for an hour or more before the committee session was called to order. Shortly afterwards an adjournment was called for lunch. Deliberations were scheduled to resume at four p.m. The business men showed up and so did the chairman of the committee. But he was fingered away by someone at the door. The business men asked when the hearing would continue and were informed that "maybe there never would be a hearing."

So the business men returned home somewhat chagrined at this uncourteous and unbusiness-like behavior of legislators who are so generously paid by the taxpayers to function in their behalf.

This business of senators sticking their nose high in the air, acting like spoiled children and retarding legislation ought to have the attention of the taxpayers next time election day rolls around in their districts wherever they are.

Tone Down Campus "Battle Plan"

—Sino-Russian War?—

On June 12, 1969 Drew Pearson, one of the few American newspapermen who have visited the Soviet-Chinese border, reported on some of the facts which could lead to war between the two giants of the Communist world, China and Russia.

There has followed considerable speculation in various newspapers on the same subject. The Washington Post, among others, carried an analysis June 16 by its Far Eastern expert, Stanley Carnow, reporting that: "The experts are seriously beginning to contemplate the possibility of a large scale war between the Chinese and the Russians."

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., the Carrie Nation of the Education and Labor Committee, had colleagues in a riotous mood as she sought committee approval of a college anti-riot bill. It would have required colleges receiving federal aid to submit a "battle plan" to stop campus disorders.

Both HEW secretary Robert Finch and education commissioner James E. Allen vigorously objected to Mrs. Green's bill, warning that it might lead to increased government interference in campus life.

Mrs. Green, supported by her co-sponsor, Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., shot back that 60 House members were advocating even tougher measures to restrict college aid. She refused to retreat until finally voted down by the committee.

But she had fellow Democrats on the committee biting their nails as the anti-riot legislation was fought out at a party caucus behind closed doors. At one stage Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., protested:

"You are bringing this bill before the full committee when your own subcommittee hasn't even acted on it. Obviously you didn't have the votes for subcommittee approval. This is a highly unusual procedure."

"You are misrepresenting the facts," fumed the lady from Oregon. "My subcommittee did hold a hearing on the general subject matter."

She finally agreed to tone down the "battle plan" provision and delete other provisions barring aid to students if they engaged in disorders.

—Gas Merger Overruled—

It was obscured by the headlines over Adam Clayton Powell, but the Supreme Court simultaneously handed down a historic opinion in the El Paso Natural Gas merger case.

It slapped down El Paso for its merger with Colorado Interstate Gas, thereby bluntly reversing the Justice Department for dropping this anti-trust suit.

And though the court didn't say a word about it, lawyers read between the lines that the slap also involved the Nixon law firm which received a total of $771,129.83 from El Paso during the years 1961-67. Two senior partners of the Nixon law firm are now all-powerful in Washington — one as President, the other as the attorney general.

Four days after becoming attorney general, John Mitchell permitted his department to drop the antitrust case against the El Paso merger — though Solicitor General Erwin Griswold said it was his decision.

Shortly thereafter the Supreme Court, in an unusual move, retook jurisdiction of the El Paso case.

It was William Bennett, former Public Utilities Commissioner of California, who argued the case before the court in April as he has on three separate previous occasions, each time winning.

"I am amazed," he stated after the court ruled this week, "that the Washington press corps is afraid to ask Nixon why he gave this great economic favor to a valuable law client. What he did was similar to what Abe Fortas was accused of doing, favoring an old law client."

—Old-Fashioned Congress—

Gov. Bill Guy of North Dakota, who has served as governor of that state longer than any other man in history, delivered a significant speech before the "North Dakota Boys State" the other day in which he suggested that the students of the nation stage their protests in the right place, namely at the doors of Congress.

"You are justified in seeking change," Gov. Guy told the boys of North Dakota, "but I have seen no youthful protest over the failure of Congress to adjust itself to change.

"You need to examine that all-important cog in our democracy — the Congress of the United States ... where democracy is thwarted by archaic rules, where powerful committee chairmen can prevent a President's proposals from even being considered, where the Chairman of the Rules Committee in the House can block forever the consideration of legislation favorably passed out of any House committee.

"It must seem strange to students in this electronic era that our Congress still records its votes by tedious voice votes instead of by electronic voting machines such as the North Dakota Legislature has used for decades.

"If the youth of this country really want to move our communities and our states and our nation, then the logical place to begin is with renovation of the Congress ... I am amazed that Congress has escaped the protest of youth so long, for there is the key to the remedy of this country's grave social and economic problems."

Gov. Guy will retire after his present term and run for Congress.

—Opening For Negroes—

Secretary of Transportation John Volpe is making an exhaustive effort to recruit and advance Negroes in his department.

He has ordered a survey of all Negroes in the top grades who haven't been promoted for two years to find out whether they are under-employed and to boost them up the government ladder.

He has also put special emphasis on conducting talent hunts at colleges with a high Negro enrollment.

In a directive to subordinates, Volpe has declared flatly: "Before filling any supergrade position or any professional level position with a non-minority group person, the selecting official in OST (Office, Secretary of Transportation) must report on the affirmative efforts made to consider minority candidates qualified for the particular position."

Note: This has caused some whites to complain that it is discrimination in reverse.

Looking Backward

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Two mokes, placed in the cooler yesterday for stealing Father Graham's wooden sidewalk, made their escape last evening. They politely crawled out over the loose fitting door of the jail, forgetting in their hurry to leave a lock of hair for remembrance.

Miss Margaret Collins, a registered nurse, has been appointed superintendent of the General Hospital to succeed Mrs. M. A. Rayl who has resigned.

MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL: Summertime. — As we recall the Ira Gershwin lyric to his brother George's song, "Summertime," this is the time of year when the living should be easy. Ha!

For all practical purposes it is summer-time, and the grass has to be mowed every week or 10 days. The outdoor chores which you could get out of when it was cold, windy and wet demand attention—especially due to the prodding of wives who don't forget you said you would do them when the weather was nice.

The house needs paint. The shurbs need trimming. It's time to clean out the clutter in the garage. It's a good time to fix the roof and lay a patio. Dig up the multiplying flowers and move them. Build the wall you've been talking about since Thanskgiving.

So much for the easy living myth.

'69 Grad---Hard Look at Society's Quality, Goals

By DAVID POLING

Albert Camus once wrote that the "great tragedies of history often fascinate men with approaching horror—paralyzed, they cannot make up their minds to do anything but wait. People are too readily resigned to fatality." That generalization may apply to a host of historical situations but it would be hard to pin on the graduating seniors of 1969. On campus after campus, the commencement exercises have been immersed in the student concern about the war in Vietnam, the increase of racial tension and the plight of the urban poor.

One of the strongest examples of senior class alarm was seen in New Haven as it observed the 268th commencement at Yale University. Several ancient traditions were set aside when a speech was given by a graduate. William Thompson, senior class secretary, was chosen to represent the sentiment and concern of the departing students. He quickly got to the point when he said:

"This is not a traditional commencement; it cannot be. In a time of crises, tradition must be broken. Immediate and dramatic action must be taken to extricate us from the disaster that is Vietnam. The war must end now, and the fight for our cities, for our nation, for our people must begin."

When he completed his untraditional address, a roar went up from the 5,000 people in the audience. Parents as well as students and faculty gave a standing ovation. For this was no ordinary time and no ordinary class. Late in May, 731 seniors (77 per cent) had petitioned the university to use this commencement to express their alarm, anger and disgust at the war in Vietnam. More than that, 143 seniors indicated that they would go to jail rather than accept induction into the Army. When that action was announced, the majority of the class then pledged to contribute to a legal defense fund, assisting those fellow graduates should they need aid in court cases. More than $10,000 has been subscribed.

A few days after the New Haven commencement, the following news item appeared:

"A contract for 5,000 drums of arterial embalming fluid totaling $106,050 has been awarded by the Defense General Supply Center, Richmond, Va., to the Octagon Process, Inc., of Edgewater, N.J., a small business concern. The embalming fluid is for use by the Armed Forces."

The ugly contrasts of an affluent society and an aching heart have not been ignored by this youth generation. They know the score, the body counts, the contracts for embalming fluid, and they are not going to allow this to go unchallenged. Said Michael Bernstein, valedictorian at Princeton University:

"The United States is a sick society and we at Princeton cannot escape the contagion . . . More perhaps, than ever before, we realize, as a class, that what happens to the Panthers in New York, the Presidio 17, or the strikers at Mahwah, is intimately linked to our destinies, that their options open up possibilities for us, and that their defeat would be ours as well."

The graduate—1969 version—is involved in much more than trading for a new sports car or wondering if the iced beer will last through Saturday night. He is asking the hard questions about the quality of our national life, the goals we seek, the spiritual depth of this Laugh-In society. We should really thank God for this nervy generation—they might be saving us from unbelievable disasters.

Opening lead—♣ 10

We are turning today's column over to Jacoby Senior to tell the actual story about yesterday's hand. Here it is.

This hand was played in the semifinals of the 1936 Grand National. I was South at table 1 and since my team, the Four Aces, used point count I had no problem putting my partner, the late David Bruce, in seven. He played the hand against the best defense as described yesterday but it did our opponents no good. Dave was always a good guesser and he picked up the queen of spades and made the grand slam.

At the other table the late Jimmy Maier sat West. There is no telling how good Jimmy would have been if he had lived past 30. He was the toughest opponent I ever faced and a mighty good man to have on the other half of my team. The late Sherman Stearns who sat East was also one of the best.

Sherman got rid of a spade on the 4th diamond and so did Jimmy. From then on they followed suit but Jimmy played his clubs in rather peculiar fashion. He dropped the six and eight and carefully hung onto the nine.

South noticed this and knew that Jimmy was deliberately giving him the information that he held the last club and had started with three spades to his partner's four.

"Why this help" mused South. "Does he want me to play him for the queen of spades or doesn't he?"

South would have been well-advised to toss a coin and at least have an even chance to make his grand slam. But South had too much pride for that. He tried to outguess Jimmy, played him for the queen and went down.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Who served as the model for the Statue of Liberty?

A—Dressage tests the horse's obedience at the walk, trot and canter, to stop and go where it is told.

A—His title, Chrysostom, means "golden-mouthed" and was given him because of his special talent as a public speaker.

Ups and Downs

When a woman's weight gets out of bounds
And she tries to take off the pounds,
It's up and down in excercise
To get themselves to a smaller size;
On the air conditioning women frown,
Someone turns it up when they want it down,
And somehow women all the while
Just keep trying a new hair style.
Sometimes they wear it up like a crown
The next time you see them they're wearing it down;
And oh, the skirts, what a pain they are,
They are down too long or up too far,
Slips with them never seem to go
They are way too short or they always show;
Yes, and keeping track of the things around
Instead of putting them up they lay them down;
When they start shopping a bit in town
They find prices are up and their dollar is down.
Women have ups and downs, no matter who
That just pop up in whatever they do.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There are a lot of gum chewing reporters at press conferences. They are either trying to stop smoking or else it is their substitute for chafing at the bit in their eagnerness to ask a question.

—0—

In the State Department medical section, there is a colorful children's room equipped with tables, chairs, books, toys, pictures and even a crib. Children who are going overseas to foreign posts with their parents have this lovely room to enjoy while waiting for their immunization shots for the trip.

—0—

One government employee was griping about all the tourists and said, "We should have one week just for Washingtonians to enjoy their own city." The nation's capital belongs to the people, and it is theirs to visit and enjoy. The Chamber of Commerce urges them to come and most Washingtonians welcome them.

—0—

Ray Schoenke of the Washington Redskins teaches retarded children to play football. He is 6 ft. 4 in. and weighs 245 pounds. He said recently, "I have so much. I want to help people who aren't so fortunate. In the middle class world I live in, it's money, money, and hustle."

—0—

Signs are frequently surprising. A dry cleaner advertised, "American flags cleaned free." A sidewalk sign read, "Slow men working." Obviously it meant, watch your step, but it could also be interpreted literally — the men who were working were not in any hurry to finish the job.

—0—

Tricia Nixon may be called the American princess during the ceremonies in Wales when Charles Philip Arthur George becomes the 21st Prince of Wales on July 1st. She will witness his investiture when he accepts the ring, sword and scepter as heir to the British throne. She will be traveling to England as a private citizen on commercial airline, but she will have a whirl of a time as the guest of Ambassador and Mrs. Walter H. Annenberg.

—0—

Astronaut Neil Armstrong will receive $2 per diem pay when he goes to the moon, which is the customary Federal civil servant travel pay. On earth his travel pay is $16, but the government says he will be receiving government billeting and subsistence on Apollo 11. He would make quite a haul if he were allowed 10c per mile ($48,000) and could claim the rate of some other Federal employees.

—0—

Herb Klein, President Nixon's Director of Communications, knows what Gerry Van der Heuvel and Ron Ziegler are going to say to the press before they say it. He calls it part of his open door policy.

—0—

"Will the real Pat Nixon please stand up." Her special project as First Lady has now been announced. It is "professional volunteerism" and she will soon tour "vest pockets of volunteerism" in Oregon and California to survey and suggest as she sees some of her ideas already in operation.

—0—

Bess Abell, formerly Lady Bird Johnson's social secretary, had to buy two new footlockers for her sons because the two sets she already had didn't have trays. She was obviously annoyed at the new camp rules.

Democrat Pickups

A woman who says something, then feels that people do not understand what she meant and might take it wrong is always explaining later or maybe trying to apologize. It has become a fun-poking joke in her family. Recently she wrote a letter to her son in Vietnam, then wrote a second letter to explain the first. She had a good laugh when his reply came:

"Dear Mon: I got your letter explaining, but I mislaid the letter explained."

He told her he didn't need to have it explained. "With your English sense of humor, he wrote, "what you said neither sounded funny nor needed to be explained."

But somehow the mother just can't keep from explaining, she is so certain that what she doesn't sound right. When she calls one relative on the telephone there is always a little laugh at the other end of the wire. The the question: "Well, what did you say wrong this time?"

The son in Vietnam was probably glad for the letter of explanation even if he didn't need the explaining, for it brought another newsy letter from Mom. H.L.

Adolescent Just Hasn't Any Gratitude to Spare

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My sister, widowed six years ago, works to support herself and her 16-year-old boy. It breaks my heart to see how she sacrifices herself to satisfy his whims. He owns three expensive wool-lined jackets but his mother is still wearing the black coat she bought for her husband's funeral. After working all day, she shops, cooks Will's meal and is then left alone to look at TV while he takes some girl to the movies. If he felt any gratitude to her but . . .

ANSWER: I have yet to meet the adolescent person who can feel gratitude.

If a child of this age is in amiable mood, he can say "Thank you" for a new wool-lined jacket. But to credit us with gratitude's discernment of what it cost us to produce the jacket? No, ma'am, that we cannot expect. We can't expect it because he's so worried about his own worth that he lacks the emotional energy to appreciate ours. He's chockful of self-doubts—doubts of his sexual value, of command of his future, of what he believes in and what he doesn't believe in. Therefore he needs so much encouraging credit himself that he's got none to spare to anyone else.

So we have to wait for his gratitude until life has mauled him up a bit. He's got to accumulate enough disappointments in other people's affection before the steadiness of ours can become apparent to him. Then gratitude becomes available to him. But first he must discover that everybody is not going to forego a needed coat to buy him three jackets.

Now let me ask you if you're a mother yourself?

I wonder. Because if we are the parent of a loved child, we do not need his gratitude. Nor do we regard what we give him as "sacrifices." We don't want that new coat because the pleasure he takes in those jackets of his is what keeps us warm. Other people, watching us trudge about in our old coat, feel very sorry for us. But their sympathy is misplaced. The child's pleasure is our delight. And that is not sentimental nonsense but truth.

On the other hand, if that delight is not sufficient return for the "sacrifices," we'd better quit making them. And say, "I want a new coat. So I'm not going to buy you anything more until I've saved enough money to buy it."

Setting Up of Republic Likely Soon, Says Smith

SALISBURY, Rhodeisa (AP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith hinted Saturday that this breakaway British territory might declare itself a republic on Nov. 11 — four years to the day since it declared its independence.

Smith addressed a news conference the day after Rhodesia small and predominantly white electorate approved referendum proposals to switch to a republic, and constitutional revisions to entrench white minority rule.

In answer to questions, Smith said he has not decided when to proclaim the republic but agreed that few dates would be more appropriate than Nov. 11.

Smith termed the referendum a message to the outside world to show "how determined we are to get on with running our country . . ."

The balloting was regarded as a final break with Britain. Smith denied that Rhodesia's 237,000 whites were concerned with the population gap between themselves and the 4.4 million blacks. "It is a fact of life we have to live with and we have lived with it for a long time . . . A mere counting of heads, of numbers, does not bother us now. It never has in the past."

With scattered returns yet to be counted, unofficial figures showed that Rhodesia's 90,000 registered voters had approved independence by 50,000 to 11,000 and favored the white-rule proposal by 44,000 to 16,000. More than 80 per cent of the voters are white.

There were indications today that the new republic would face many problems, including the possible closing of British and U.S. diplomatic missions and new pressure for the tightening of a U.N. trade embargo imposed in 1968.

There was speculation that the British governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, would retire. He had announced before Friday's referendum that if the vote favoring the new constitution was heavy enough, "it would in all probability be impossible for me to continue to be governor of Rhodesia."

Gibbs' depature could lead to the closing of Britain's "residual diplomatic mission" in Salisbury and could result in the shutdown of the small U.S. consulate as well, since the United States usually follows Britain's lead in dealing with Rhodesia.

Prepared to Freeze

Freezing assets of the ultra-cold war going on in the nation's 227,000 food stores are evaporator coils like these at the Hill division in Trenton, N.J., of Emhart Corp., a major supplier of refrigerated food cabinets. ## Put Fringe On Fashion Creations

Ole Borden, the Dane who designs for Rembrandt, put the fringe on long scarves that accompanied many of the outfits at his showing Friday. One particularly attractive one was a silk and worsted leopard print cardigan jacket and pleated skirt with matching scarf.

His dresses clung to the bodice, then flared out in a princess style emphasized by careful seaming.

Borden put belts slightly above the waist "for that younger look" and kept sleeves long and tight or very, very short. His pants outfits were cut slim with straight legs for day and slightly flaring cuffs for evening.

Unlike most of the other designers, Borden generally steered clear of the floor-length maxi coat. He showed a bright red wool midi coat and commented, "Maxi, I think, is very clumsy."

Still In Use

Drummond Island, Mich., limestone helped to build the first three shipping locks at Sault Ste, Marie, and the same ledge that furnished nearly 70,000 tons of stone for the first State Lock in 1853-55 is still in production here after 116 years. These days the old quarry, known as the Seaman Quarry, is mined only on demand but still the annual production averages 50 tons. The reason that Drummond stone was in great demand is the ease with which it can be mined by workmen using simple hand tools. Now the stone is used for flagstone walkways, patios, and fireplaces. (UPI)

Space Law Test Is Just Ahead

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Apollo 11 moon landing attempt will be watched with special interest by a little group of diplomats who were mainly responsible for extending international law to the celestial bodies through the 1967 space treaty.

For them the event will have double significance:

—It will represent the only important instance in the brief history of space law in which the diplomats moved faster than the scientists and technologists.

—It will be the first time that some of the basic provisions of the 1967 treaty actually become applicable.

Although this treaty represents a milestone in space law, it has had only limited application so far because it was designed essentially to govern the exploration of the celestial bodies.

Its major contribution has been the prohibition of the orbiting or stationing of nuclear weapons in space, but its broad objective—as stated by former President Lyndon B. Johnson—was "to see to it that serious political conflicts do not arise as a result of space activities."

If astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin successfully land on the moon's surface, for example, it will be perfectly clear under the treaty that they cannot stake claim to the moon as U.S. territory.

Legally, all the celestial bodies have been internationalized and all activities on them are under international law—including the charter of the United Nations.

Under terms of the treaty, the Apollo 11 crew and the crews of subsequent flights to celestial bodies will be obligated to carry on their explorations for the benefit of mankind and in the interest of all countries.

The treaty looks ahead to the day when traffic to the moon and beyond becomes commonplace and laws will be needed to deal with rights of access, communications and other problems which might cause friction.

Some of the terms are the treaty's prohibitions against the stationing of nuclear weapons on celestial bodies, the conduct of military maneuvers, or the establishment of military bases.

The regulation of space traffic is becoming increasingly urgent, as orbiting satellites mount in number and elaborate space platforms are about to join them. Added to this is the problem of controlling so-called space garbage.

Another problem is the lack of comprehensive regulations in the field of space communications. Experts see the possibility of jamming, pirating of broadcast materials and other injurious uses of space unless international agreements provide for licensing and regulation.

More important for the future are broad questions of military espionage, possible conversion of space platforms into military vehicles and the definition of outer space.

The question of espionage is complicated by the fact that there is no definition as to where outer space begins, and by constantly improved methods of earth surveillance.

The definition of outer space is one of the priority issues now being studied by the legal subcommittee of the U.N. Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space.

Durant Discusses Unrest

By WILL DURANT
Distributed by
The Associated Press

It is good that the young should rebel and the old should resist; it is essential that minorities shall be heard; and one of the admirable aspects of the contemporary scene is the patient maintenance of free speech and minority rights by democracies tempted to answer force with super-force, joining in the martial march of authoritarian governments.

But the time has come for old and young to realize that civilization is endangered in its very foundations, that the social order that tamed us from savages into citizens is weakened in all its supports, and that the fruits of democratic progress may in a generation be lost in a contest between permissive anarchy and a police state.

What can we oldsters do about it? We can listen to the cries of the disadvantaged and dispossessed, and open the ways to controlled experiment with new ideas. We can check our racial antipathies by realizing that whichever side wins in a violent clash of races of classes, democracy, humanity, and security will disappear.

We can try to cleanse the avenues and halls of politics so that one need not be a millionaire to be eligible to the presidency. We can join the young in restraining our government from undertaking to police the world instead of bringing hope and health to the poor.

If we can check our rush into imperialism we have the resources to educate every American for profitable employment even in our ever more automated and computerized society. We have been clever and generous enough to spread the benefits of our inventiveness, enterprise, and skill to 80 per cent of our people—the greatest achievement in economic history; we are learning to let consumption keep up with production.

Two more generations, given enlightened leadership in government and industry, may reduce the impoverished 20 per cent to 15 per cent, to 10 per cent to 5 per cent to zero. That would be the fulfillment of Amos and Isaiah; it would be the resurrection of Christ.

And what can you privileged youngsters do? First, continue to study. It is not true that education will merely plunge you into a coarsening race for material rewards; it will enlarge your understanding and make you more patient with complex problems and the shortcomings of men.

Study the roots of our crime and corruption, our economic inequities, and our political failures; see how strong those roots are in the processes of biology, in the nature of man, and in the centuries of history.

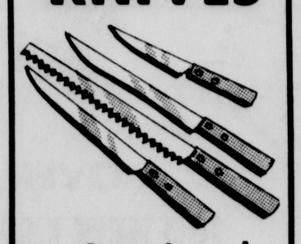

Reconcile yourselves to modest and gradual improvements after your proposals have faced the necessary test of conservative resistance. Continue to express your dissent and your needs, but remember to remain civilized, for you will sorely miss civilization if it is sacrificed in the turbulence of change.

Beware of those who take their vocabularies from privies; they are trying to cover up their lack of confidence in their own manhood by leveling you with themselves. Wear your hair and your feet as you like, but keep them clean, and do not add to the pollution of the air. Watch your sexual freedom that it should bring no hurt to others or yourself. Lasting affection—the most precious gift of life—is rarely won by hasty accommodation to irresponsible desire.

Do not let the pessimism of contemporary thought darken your spirits; this is the passing mood of a transitional age, when we have waged a shamefully barbarous war, when the blackest sins of our history demand atonement and when some of our fairest myths have faded and left a somber emptiness where once they chastened our conduct and warmed our hearts. Do not yield to the mechanistic philosophy that grew from a physics long since rejected by physicists; man can make marvelous machines, but he is not a machine; let not the work of your hands conceal the miracle of your minds. Every one of you is a mystery of rational consciousness; every girl among you is a temple and glory of creative life.

I believe that we shall solve, or dissolve, within the limits of our nature, one after another of the problems that harass us today. Already our government, through a maze of difficulties, is seeking to end a disastrous war. Our ethnic minorities will enter in ever greater number into our high schools, colleges, and universities; they will get the courses that their pride may claim, and those that their adjustment to technology requires; they will rise in industry, in the professions, in the arts and sciences, and in public office; they will become established parts of the American scene as is our German Americans, our Irish Americans, our Italian-Americans, our Polish-Americans, our Jewish-Americans, even a French-Canadian-American like me. And, like their predecessors, they will lower their birth rate as they raise their income; and the urban ghettoes will relieve their pressure and their poverty by following a hundred outlets into American life. It will take more time and patience than before, but it will come, or America will lose its meaning in the history and aspirations of humanity.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR TIMOTHY J. MAY,

former General Counsel, Post Office Department

Can anything be done about sending smut literature through the mail? Where should this be reported? Can the sender be prosecuted?—D. M., Lancaster, Pa.

● The mailer could be subject to fines up to $5,000 or imprisonment up to five years, or both. Reports on alleged violations of this law may be made to the chief postal inspector. Under a new law, the receiver of such material has the right to have his name removed from the sender's mailing list. To get a prohibitory order against the sender, the addressee should state that the advertising matter is "erotically arousing or sexually provocative." His determination is final. The law prohibits review by the Post Office Department or even by the courts. Leaflets explaining the law are available at all post offices.

FOR GRACE DAVALL,

New York Zoological Society

President Nixon said: "The eagle does not attack, but the eagle always defends." Is this true?—Conrad Fiorello, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● I am not familiar with the quote. However, I believe that Mr. Nixon would have been referring to the fact that eagles do not deliberately attack humans without provocation but that they may do so in defense of their nests.

FOR MAYO SMITH,

Detroit Tigers manager

Why didn't you play pinch-hitter Gates Brown as a regular last year?—Tom Cooper, Kingsport, Tenn.

● Gates Brown was valuable to us as a pinch-hitter, and the regular outfielders were doing an excellent job.

FOR WILLIAM DRIVER,

Director, Veterans Administration

How would I obtain the serial number of a World War I veteran whose discharge papers were lost?—Mrs. Bart Taine, Wenatchee, Wash.

● Write to: National Personnel Record Center, 9700 Page Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63138. Furnish the veteran's birth date and birth place, dates of service entrance and termination, and branch of service and unit. Give any pertinent facts that will help to identify him in case another veteran has the same name.

FOR GOV. ALBERT BREWER

of Alabama

When and how did the South get the nickname of Dixie?—Mrs. Art Rohr, Devils Lake, N.D.

● The Citizens Bank of New Orleans used to issue $10 paper currency before the Civil War. The bills were printed in English on one side and in French on the other. The French word "dix," meaning 10, was printed on the French side, so the notes became known generally as "dixies." Northerners began to call the Mississippi River area Dixie Land.

FOR MONROE HOVEY,

● Shoulder dislocations and fractures. These injuries, however, are far less frequent than knee injuries. They occur more often to high-school players, who haven't fully mastered the art of falling and tumbling.

FOR CHRIS CRAFT, NASA

America has astronauts, and Russia has cosmonauts. What is the difference between them?—John McDonald, Portland, Ore.

● The difference is primarily linguistic. Astro refers to stars and cosmo to the universe. The ending naut in each word means sailor or navigator. The term astronauts was first used officially by former NASA Administrator Dr. T. Keith Glennan in 1958.

FOR BOB RICHARDS,

former Olympic pole-vault champion

How long will the cross-country jog take for the Bob Richards Fitness Crusade?—H. M. Mason, Jr. San Antonio, Texas

● It started from Los Angeles on June 1 and will cross some 3,300 miles before reaching our destination, New York City, in early August.

FOR JUDY CARNE of "Laugh-In"

Who pours water on you on the "Laugh-In" show?—Julie Davidson, Fair Lawn, N.J.

● A stagehand named Whale—or is it a whale named Stagehand?

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. # WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Instant Sculpture The walls of the Financial Plaza Building in Newport Beach, Calif., are decorated with what looks like intaglio (engraved figures), but nary a chisel was used. It was "carved" with a styrofoam mold. The concrete panel was poured into it.

Sculpture without a chisel

Once the wall was up, the plastic was sandblasted into thin air, leaving only the incised figures. Artist Tom Van Sant, a 1965-Jaycee Oustanding Young Man, says, "I like working in the medium. It's so easy I can work anywhere."

Deaf Drunk What's the latest danger in discothèques? The Karolinska Institute in Stockholm recently tested the effects of excessive noise and alcohol and found that when the alcohol content in the blood reaches 0.1 percent, the noise levels can seriously damage the inner ear. Listening and drinking don't mix!

Home Hairdresser: Can't do anything with your hair? Can't go to the beauty shop? Try shampooing it. The reason soiled hair hangs there in limp sections is that it doesn't get dirty evenly. Washing will make hair appear to have more body and bounce. Just a light lathering is enough. Baby shampoo can be used everyday if necessary. Rinse and dry quickly.

Balance for Books One out of two new businesses fails within the first two years, according to "Nation's Business." One reason is "they keep too many records." Each time a new bookkeeper is hired, there is more paperwork, but seldom any eliminated. Too much paper shuffling means too little profit. The other reason for failure? "Not enough record keeping." Some small businesses didn't even keep that vital monthly profit-and-loss statement.

Not Like Son Actor John Garfield died in 1952, leaving a son, David, 9, and a daughter, Julie, 6, and domestic problems. The son coolly told Family Weekly, "I would rather not talk about my father." Yet for acting, he intended to use his father's real first name, Julius, but his sister had it—so John, Jr., was born, coolness or not. In his first big role ("Mackenna's Gold"), John, Jr. is cast with two stars who had shared the screen with his father, Edward G. Robinson and Gregory Peck. Did they ever compare his acting to Dad's? "No, they're too smart," he snaps.

Father

Son

Sheila Graham

"Good" Gossip Most stars scream, "I'll get you if it's the last thing I do!" whenever she has hinted that all is not well in love and marriage, notes Sheila Graham in her book, "Confessions of a Hollywood Columnist." But Shirley Temple was unique. Sheila was the first to print break-up rumors of America's little sweetheart and John Agar. Shortly after, the two women met at a party. Sheila remembers that she almost flipped when Shirley said quietly, "I'm most grateful to you for the story. It will prepare the public for my divorce."

I Posed As a Mental Patient

What is it like behind the locked doors of a mental institution? Nothing in his studies prepared this psychologist for the shocking answers

By DR. RONALD H. BOHR
as told to Alan D. Haas

I was given hospital garb. I found each day the same as the one before.

MY ASSIGNMENT in entering Philadelphia State Hospital at Byberry disguised as a mental patient was to find out precisely what was going on "behind the scenes" of Pennsylvania's largest mental institution.

None of my years of graduate study, clinical work, or teaching in social psychology could possibly have prepared me for this seven-day experiment, which had been suggested by the institution itself.

While I knew the mentally ill, I did not really know what life was like in a mental hospital, even though I had been on the staff at Byberry since 1966 as a research psychologist, a cloistered post. So I was, more or less, unknown both to its staff and patients.

The hospital had decided on such an experiment because, as Dr. Daniel Bain, Byberry's director, put it: "Byberry has been feared, cursed, exposed, investigated, and hamstrung." Yet successive legislatures had failed to grant adequate funds for staff, research, and facilities.

Serving the Philadelphia metropolitan area, this 60-year-old institution sprawls over 1,100 acres with 35 buildings. While its capacity is 3,800, its population has soared as high as 6,800. The professional staff includes 50 doctors, some of whom are part-time. Sadly, only six of these are certified psychiatrists.

I was "admitted" to Byberry by a psychiatrist on a Wednesday morning. I told my prearranged story of sleepless nights, of wanting to end my life. I felt that I needed help. I agreed to commitment for 90 days. The whole interview took less than 10 minutes.

Except for my glasses and shoes, all of my clothes were taken. I was given the standard mental-hospital garb of denim shirt and chino pants. A length of string served as a belt.

On my first night, I discovered there were cockroaches on the walls, ceilings, floors, and in the beds. I got into bed, taking off only my shoes.

My ward was typical—a city-block long, divided into bays of 12 or 24 beds, a pretranquilizer-era arrangement. Its purpose is to keep patients on view at all times, lest they go berserk and harm others before they can be straitjacketed. Privacy is nonexistent. The walls are institutional green; the windows are chicken-wired; the toilet cubicles have neither doors nor toilet seats.

Each bed, 24 inches apart from the next, is a 30-inch-wide hospital cot with a straw mattress. It is made up with two sheets and a blanket. There is no place to hang one's clothes.

Contrary to rumor, there is little if any violence in a mental hospital nowadays. Constant tranquilizer medication keeps most patients quiet. So I found each day is almost the same at Byberry, with hardly any diversions, structured routines, or responsibilities of any kind.

In the day room, one of the best places to observe human behavior, I saw patients sit, stare, lie down, pace the floor. The tv sometimes was tuned into the Iowa Corn Exchange prices; if the picture flipped, nobody adjusted it. A piano sat silently in one corner; no one ever played it.

A patient would suddenly get up and deliver an anti-Semitic tirade or shout epithets to the day-room audience. But nobody paid any attention, except one man who motioned to me and circled his temple with his forefinger, as if to say, what can you expect in here?

Then a hefty, bearded Negro muttered some obscenities about "whitey." He looked me over and asked whether I had gone to college. To my affirmative answer, he laughingly said: "Man, you in here with the rest of us loonies now."

I recall having a pleasant and coherent discussion about the day's news events with another man. He was well-dressed in his own clothes (some patients are permitted this privilege) and appeared to have a degree of intelligence. The next day he was found lying in his own urine on the bathroom floor, muttering un-

Recently two professional staff members at Philadelphia (Pa.) State Hospital undertook direct research into the lives of mental patients—they "infiltrated" as patients, unknown to most nurses, doctors, and attendants. The staff members were Dr. Ronald H. Bohr (right), research social psychologist, and Dr. Thomas A. Steinberg, research clinical psychologist. The following story details the experience of Doctor Bohr and includes both his conclusions and those of Doctor Steinberg.

This unique set of 50 Mini-Coins honoring all the States of the Union

Limit: one set per subscriber. Subscription rolls close July 4th, 1969.

In 1776, THE UNITED STATES ESTABLISHED BY THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE consisted of 13 colonies and some two million hardy souls clinging to the eastern edge of a forbiddingly vast continent.

Now, less than two centuries later, we are a great world power with a population of over two hundred million—a proud nation of 50 sovereign States.

As a tribute to our national heritage, the sculptors and engravers of The Franklin Mint have created a unique new series of coins honoring each of the 50 States of the Union. These designs have previously been offered only in a larger size in solid bronze, sterling silver and solid platinum. The prices ranged up to $20,000 per set. Subscription rolls for the larger size specimens were closed earlier this year, and no additional subscriptions for that size can be accepted.

Now, in honor of Independence Day, this series will be offered for a limited time in the fascinating Mini-Coin size.

Only one First Edition States of the Union Mini-Coin Set will be struck for each subscriber, in the subscriber's choice of sterling silver or solid platinum. No quantity orders will be accepted.

The distinctive designs dramatize the 50 States of our Union —from the first State (Delaware) to the newest State (Hawaii), and from the smallest State (Rhode Island) to the largest State (Alaska). Each Mini-Coin, which includes a delicate engraving of the State flower on its reverse, will be individually minted from engraved steel dies of the highest quality.

As you hold a States of the Union Mini-Coin in your hand, its gem-like beauty will be apparent even to your unaided eye; and when you examine it through the illuminated jeweler's magnifier which accompanies your set, its full depth of engraving detail will truly amaze you.

These unique First Edition States of the Union Mini-Coins are surprisingly low priced at $37.50 for the complete set in sterling silver, or at $1,275.00 in solid platinum. Each set is sure to become a highly coveted collector's item.

First Edition States of the Union Mini-Coin Sets will be clearly distinguished from any future editions of the same series. If there is a second Mini-Coin edition, the price will automatically be increased from $37.50 to $50.00 for sterling sets, and from $1,275.00 to $1,500.00 for platinum sets.

Consequently, there is an absolute limit of one First Edition set per subscriber, in the subscriber's choice of sterling silver or solid platinum. Only those subscriptions postmarked by July 4th can be considered, and The Franklin Mint reserves the right to limit the total number of applications accepted.

Last year, more than 3,000 subscription applications for Franklin Mint First Editions had to be turned down because they were sent in too late.

To be sure of acquiring your personal set of the new Franklin Mint States of the Union Mini-Coins, mail your subscription application early.

The States of the Union Mini-Coin set comes complete with its own specially designed collector's chest and an illuminated jeweler's magnifier to heighten your enjoyment.

Pre-Independence Day Subscription Application

LIMIT: ONE SET PER SUBSCRIBER • MUST BE POSTMARKED BY JULY 4, 1969

The Franklin Mint, Yeadon, Pennsylvania 19050

intelligibly to himself. I was told that he was frequently found in such a disoriented state.

Another patient I observed sitting by himself all day, staring off into space. Later in the evening he introduced himself: "I'm . . ." he mumbled. "I see you are new here. You'll soon learn the routine." Abruptly he went back to his bench and resumed his sitting and staring. He did not utter another word to anyone for at least two days.

At Byberry, perhaps 10 to 15 percent of the patients get adequate therapy from the professional staff. The rest get very little care or none at all—patients who have been for years on end virtually forgotten, existing as numbers in a file.

I know about one case whose last entry had been in 1954. The last notation on his chart read, "threw a chair at his mother on visiting day." His status had become "chronic." At Byberry, this meant, unfortunately, no therapy, no evaluation, no chance for rehabilitation.

Typically, a psychiatrist will test a patient's orientation by asking what day it is or who is President. Yet there is little opportunity for patients to have access to such information, since there are few calendars or newspapers—anything by which time could be measured.

Toward the end of my second day, I found that I was already giving way to paranoid symptoms. I had a gnawing fear that my friends had forgotten me or that it was all a plot by my wife and the Byberry staff to get me committed. I feared periodically that I would never be discharged from there.

Perhaps the closest thing to socializing between patients and attendants at the mental hospital is the "token economy." Because of personnel shortage (three aides to 85 patients), the attendants reward the patients for helping with routine chores —sweeping, mopping up—in exchange for smokes, coffee, or other incidentals. Since most patients are indigent, they are more than willing to cooperate.

At best, attendants use the big-brother technique, granting little favors in exchange for conformity, compliance, and self-degrading dependency. But they can often establish a closer relationship with patients than psychiatrists, social workers, and nurses because of their similar social backgrounds.

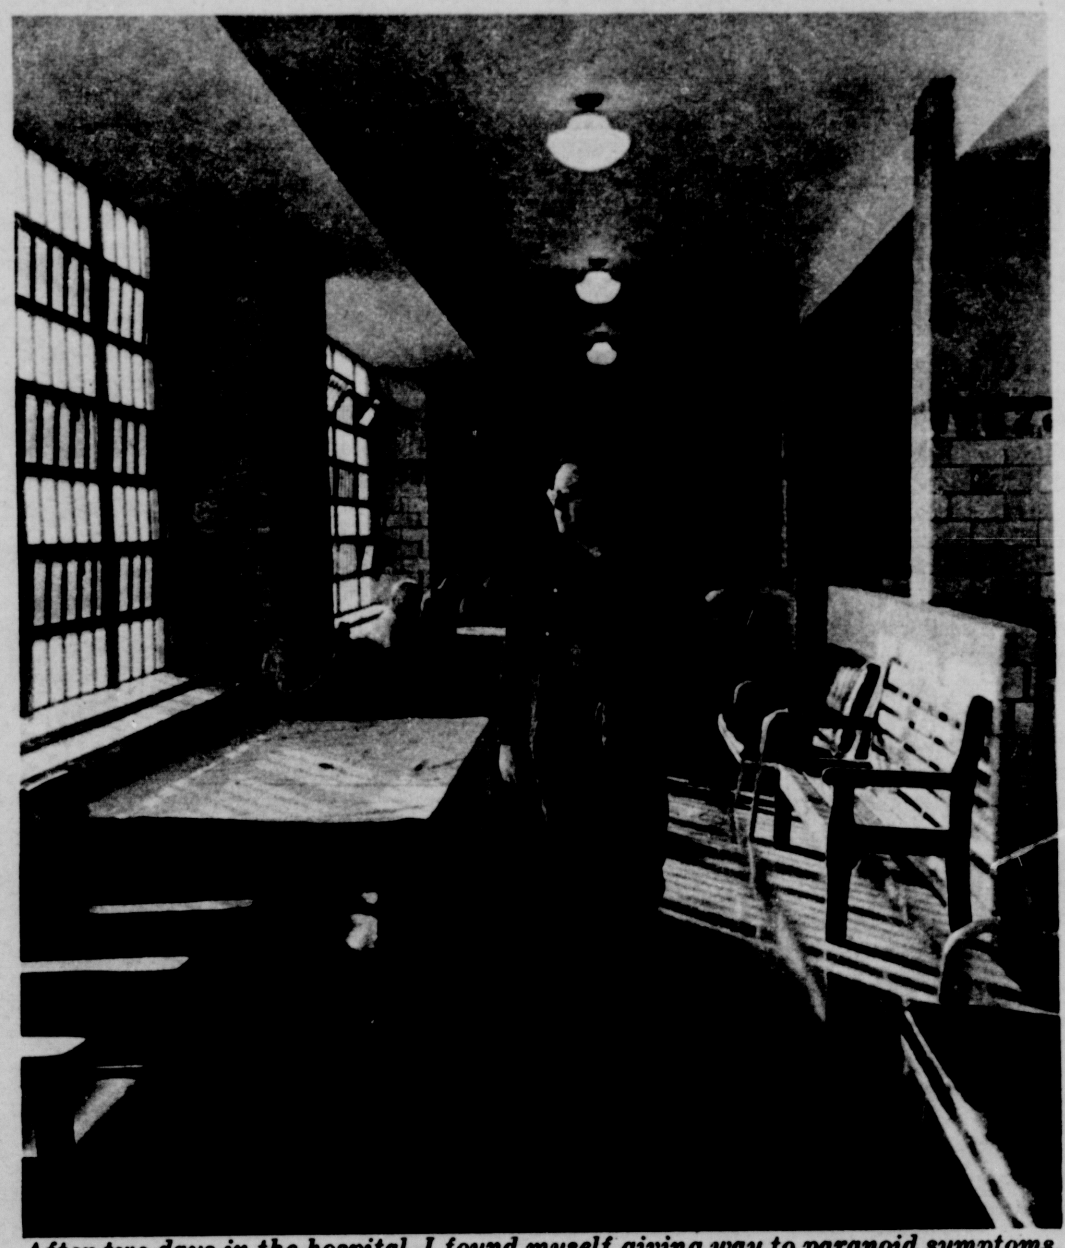

For instance, in the evening, the attendants would talk with the patients about "the old days" before sedatives, when patients threw fits, hung from the window bars, and created "side shows" that morbidly curious people would drive up to see on a Sunday afternoon.

I recall one time when the dance therapist came by my ward with a record player and tried to get some dancing started. Women patients who were brought in from another ward were seated along one wall, the men along the opposite wall.

Tunes of the '40s filled the air, but the men and women just stared blankly at each other. The therapist tried to encourage them by clapping. So a few men patients finally got up to dance with the student nurses. One female patient wrote down her ward and building number and gave it to a male patient, eyes pathetically pleading for him to visit.

Meals at Byberry left much to be desired—soggy oatmeal, undefinable stews, starchy puddings—with only a spoon to eat with. Patients sat at tables for four, ignoring each other. Conversation was rare in the unappetizing surroundings, where the elderly dribbled food down their chins or onto the table or floor. I clocked my mealtimes and found an average sitting was seven minutes.

Only a handful of people visited on Wednesdays and Sundays, the designated days, from 1 to 3:30 p.m. I was told that it improved a bit during the Christmas holidays. I have found that relatives often consider a mentally ill person as being dead.

As a psychologist, I can readily understand their wanting to blot out the unpleasant. But it also means that the ill person, should he recover, has no place to return to, so has no desire even to try to get better.

To guard against something going wrong, I had worked out an escape procedure. A letter explaining the circumstances had been sealed and placed in the desk of the chief psychiatrist, with his knowledge. I was to refer to this letter if, in any emergency, I was no longer able to bear the seven days of my ward existence.

As the days went by and I was more and more tempted to use it, I thought of what the reaction of the attendant might be if I tried to convince him that such a letter existed.

"Okay, take this pill and get some sleep, you'll feel better in the morning," might be the response. The story certainly had all the earmarks of being concocted by a psychotic.

I remember asking to be allowed to phone a relative, but I was looked at suspiciously as though I had invented someone just to bug the staff. I was told this "had to be checked on." I had the eerie notion that no one believed anything I said—which, in fact, was the case.

During my week's stay, I saw a psychiatrist twice, each time for 10 minutes. The doctor didn't want to know about my love life or my childhood. He didn't want me to free associate or tell him about my dreams. My feeling was that he was thinking: How can we label this guy quickly and dispose of him?

I was "released" from Byberry just one week later. I found that I had become quite disoriented, having been told just when I had to go to bed, when I had to get up, where to sit, and when I could smoke. For several days after, I had difficulty making even the simplest decision—what to order for lunch, for instance. While I still had my faculties, they were slower to respond.

Presently Philadelphia State Hospital's per-day expenditure per patient is $17 as opposed to $14, when I was a "patient." The $3 increase is partly the result of the fact that there now are fewer patients. But through Doctor Bain, the budget has also increased. So there is hope.

State hospitals earnestly want to turn from custody to care. But what kind of care should it be? Should the mental patient be cared for by the community, in his own home, in halfway houses, or by a still-unthought-of system?

For this to happen, the public might have to face up to the fact that violent and aggressive instincts are more prevalent in the public at large than in committed patients.

From my experience as a pretending mental patient, I found that today's mental hospitals are simply warehouses for storing people. And one fact is certain, a human being must be treated as one before he will act like one. You have to value him in order that he can value himself. ●

Inspire your skin to greater heights of beauty

A lovely skin has truly become a feminine joy forever since scientists uncovered the secrets of a rare tropical moist oil with a remarkable ability to help nature sustain and preserve the youthful splendor of the skin.

Women no longer have to recall with nostalgia how beautiful their complexions once were in childhood days. With the cherishing ministrations of this scientific beauty fluid, the exquisite flower-freshness and baby-soft bloom need not become only a sad memory, need not necessarily leave their complexions, but continue to dwell lightly and lovingly on the surface of the skin, aspiring to even greater heights of beauty through every changing season and the passing years.

Today it is possible to use the unique moist oil to give the skin a "do-it-yourself" incentive to maintain the healthy productivity of balanced oil and moisture. These two vital elements are taken for granted while the skin is very young and nature bountifully provides her own moist oil fluids to keep the baby-softness and dewiness alive. After the age of twenty, however, the natural flow becomes less spontaneous and the maturing complexion suddenly finds itself in need of substitutionary fluids that will help stimulate the flagging cellular functions of the skin.

This is the time when the scientific moist oil comes into its own, assisting nature to maintain the normal rate of cell replacement and to bring out the youngest, smoothest, loveliest bloom of all. In America it is especially valuable as a means of withstanding the exacting influences of the climate on the skin.

Because it is isotonically pressurized to balance successfully with the skin's own fluids, this tropical fluid contributes to the inducement of the skin to rise to new heights of splendor. Its perfect blend of oil and moisture is homologous to the skin's own fluids, readily merging with existing reserves, helping to boost dwindling levels and effectively aiding in keeping wrinkle-dryness at bay.

Smoothed over the face lavishly with the fingertips each day and used as a superb base for make-up, the beauty fluid not only promotes the stimulation and replenishment of the plasma colloids (dermal water-carriers) but actually encourages replacement of evaporating surface moisture by hygroscopic attraction to the skin of moisture always present in the surrounding atmosphere. The complexion consequently has little difficulty in keeping its resilience and dewy freshness even under the most trying climatic conditions regardless of the passing of the years.

In tropical countries this beautifying moist oil is known as oil of Ulan, in Britain and other parts of the world as oil of Ulay and in America it is available from druggists as oil of Olay. You will find that oil of Olay is a wonderful source of inspiration and stimulus by which your skin can reveal a new lease of complexion loveliness and greater beauty.

How Women Inventors Are Striking It Rich

By ANDY SUGAR

THERE'S SOMETHING new in the offices of patent attorneys these days—and it's not only new inventions.

Says one patent attorney: "It used to be we talked only to male engineers and tinkerers. Now we talk to housewives—ladies with good ideas, ideas worth money."

For instance, a young Rhode Island housewife, Mrs. Virginia Charves, invented a game to amuse her own children and ended up selling the idea to Parker Bros., one of the country's largest game makers. Her "Cat and Mouse" is still being sold widely, more than four years later.

Another housewife, Mrs. Cecilia Vargas, became tired of the tedious routine of teasing her hair and designed a battery-operated brush and comb which did the job faster and easier.

Even simple, existing products have been improved by these lady inventors as illustrated by the case of Eugenia Short, who designed a special thimble that fits on the stiff, bulging fingers of the arthritic. It proved to be more comfortable, however, even to women who didn't suffer from the disease, as it made allowances for long fingernails.

Although none of the above-mentioned ladies made a million dollars off their brain children, they did accomplish something just as important to them. In addition to the royalties they received, they proved that women could succeed in the business spectrum by channeling their ideas into useful, everyday products.

As Raymond Lee of the Raymond Lee Organization in New York City, an established authority in the development of new ideas for industry, recently commented, "Approximately 30 percent of the inventors who come to us now are women, and this is a substantial jump from just five years ago. Most women are happy just making something helpful and adding to their family's income—and their own good feeling. On the other hand, there are some who became self-made millionaires on the basis of a creative flash or product-improvement idea the public needed."

Two more famous examples are Margaret Rudkin and Mrs. Richard Rodgers. Mrs. Rudkin developed a rough-textured bread from flour ground in a kitchen coffee grinder: that was the basis for the $7-million-a-year Pepperidge Farm business. Mrs. Rodgers, wife of the composer, has invented many gadgets. The most famous is the "Jonny Mop," a toilet-bowl brush.

"The domestic scene is filled with opportunities for using creativity, ingenuity, and imagination to solve the problem of keeping an efficient home," Lee says.

"Money has been made from a simple object like a cap that slips over the tip of an umbrella and keeps it from sliding on the floor when placed on its end," Lee adds.

"This was designed by a Flushing, N.Y., housewife, and not only does it have functional value but since the cap can be made in various colors and covered with seqins, the novelty has a decorative value."

Lee is convinced there is a vast range of items which only women can invent (or improve on). A perfect example from the past is a gimmick dreamed up by a doctor's wife.

From her own experience, she knew what a pregnant woman went through in trying to keep her wardrobe in tempo with her increasing size. She also was incensed at the waste of storing away a maternity wardrobe after the baby's birth.

So Mrs. Joyce Galley designed an expandable garment that could be made larger or smaller, depending on the need, within minutes. Not only could the pregnant woman wear fitted clothes, but she could adjust the same wardrobe to wear after her delivery.

As it turned out, this not only appealed to mothers-to-be but to women on diets. The new design is being retailed now.

Lee believes that for every woman who has patented her brain child, hundreds of others simply use them in their kitchens, sewing rooms, or nurseries, unaware that the gimmick might have value. The value is in hard dollars and cents and inestimable self-satisfaction.

Are you missing these rewards by failing to be mother of an invention? ◆

IN 1968, THE HOSPITALITY INDUSTRY WORKED ALMOST AS HARD TO GET EXECUTIVES AS CUSTOMERS. THEY'LL NEED 25,000 MORE EXECUTIVES THIS YEAR.

The hospitality industry wants you and needs you.

They need 25,000 new executives this year. 25,000 more next year and the year after. And so on.

That's how fast the industry has been growing. And that's why the American Hotel & Motel Association has just authorized La Salle to recruit you for executive training.

Look at the want ads above (all of which actually ran during the past year). You'll see the kinds of jobs you can fill and what they offer in salary and other benefits.

Now you can train at home for jobs like these by taking the same courses the AH&MA Educational Institute gives the industry's executive trainees. The same courses taught in over 100 colleges and universities. You can master them at home in your spare time. Without giving up your job till you're ready.

And because this is the AH&MA course, its endorsed by industry leaders like Hilton, Sheraton, Howard Johnson's, Marriott and Ramada Inns. So your diploma will give you the inside track on the better openings.

This is one field where age, sex and former education are no barriers to an executive career. If a hotel/motel career appeals to you, mail this coupon for our brochure. It gives you the facts on the industry, the jobs and the course.

I'd like more facts about the hotel/motel industry, the jobs and your executive training course. Please send me your free brochure, without obligation, of course.

Science Finds Way To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop burning itch and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement was reported by doctors who conducted the tests. Pain and itching were promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so. And it was all done without narcotics or stinging astringents of any kind.

The secret is Preparation H® There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like it! Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. Preparation H comes in ointment or suppository form. No prescription is needed.

Rip Van Winkle Couldn't Sleep with Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains may come with over-exertion, emotional upsets, or everyday stress and strain. If this nagging backache, with restless, sleepless nights, is wearing you out, making you miserable and irritable, don't wait, try Doan's Pills — an analgesic, a pain reliever. Doan's pain-relieving action on nagging backache is often the answer. Get Doan's Pills — not a habit-forming drug but a well-known standard remedy used successfully by millions for over 70 years. See if they don't bring you the same welcome relief. For convenience, always buy Doan's large size.

Now— Knits for Men!

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

DESTINED to reverse the season's trend toward see-through men's shirts and pants (hard to believe, but true!) are new knit clothes.

"About a year ago," reports the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, "men's knit suits, sport coats, and slacks were trial-ballooned —and enjoyed immediate success." Predictably! Men's knits (comparable to women's knitwear) retain their shape well, are lightweight and porous, and usually require less alterations than suits or slacks of woven fabrics.

This season handsomely tailored knits for the male contingent, many of synthetic fabrics, will fill in everywhere from the beach to the office in solid colors as well as racy plaids, checks, and stripes.

For the "dog days," at least, the wilted suit is a relic of the past! ◆

Make the Most of Fresh Strawberries

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Now—while California strawberries are plentiful—why not indulge yourself? Capture their natural sweetness without adornment and in glamorous or everyday recipes.

Tea Cream for Strawberries

- 1 tablespoon black tea
- 1 2-in. slice of orange peel
- ½ cinnamon stick
- 1 whole nutmeg
- 4 whole cloves
- 3 tablespoons boiling water
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 2 pts. fresh strawberries, sliced
- ¼ cup granulated sugar

1. Put tea, peel, and spices into a bowl. Add the boiling water and allow brew to stand at room temperature 1 hr.
2. Strain brew through a fine sieve or a sieve lined with cheesecloth. Mix with cream. Allow to stand 30 min.
3. Meanwhile, put berries into a bowl and sprinkle with brown or granulated sugar to taste. Chill 15 to 30 min.
4. Stir the ¼ cup sugar into the tea cream (whip, if desired). Serve with the sugared berries. Accompany with old-fashioned lemon or sugar cookies or gingerbread.

6 servings

Quince or Crab Apple Cream for Strawberries

Beat together until blended ¼ cup quince jelly and 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar (or ¼ cup crab apple jelly and 1 tablespoon honey). Add 1 cup chilled heavy cream and whip to soft peaks. Serve with strawberries, sweetened to taste, and cookies and gingerbread.

Prize Strawberry Jam

A small dish of this jam with cream poured over is a delicious and simple dessert.

- 3 cups firm ripe strawberries
- 3 cups sugar

1. Rinse, hull, and drain berries on absorbent paper. Halve the very large berries. Put the fruit into a heavy saucepan.
2. Add 1 cup sugar; stirring gently, bring to boiling. Boil 5 min., stirring constantly.
3. Repeat step 2 two more times, using remaining 2 cups sugar and boiling 5 min. after each addition.
4. Turn into a shallow dish. Cool, stirring occasionally, and skim. Cover loosely and allow to stand 24 hrs.
5. The next day ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal. Three 8-oz. jars jam

Strawberry Fritters

These petite fritters are a very special treat served at breakfast or brunch.

- 2 pts. fresh strawberries (whole and unhulled), rinsed and completely dried
- 1 jar (12 oz.) apricot preserves
- 2 cups ground or grated filberts or walnuts
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 cups finely crushed saltines
- Vegetable shortening for deep frying heated to 365°F.

1. Force the preserves through a sieve.
2. Gently but firmly grasp each completely dry berry by the hull; dip in preserves. Using a fork to help coat, cover berry up to hull with the preserves. Allow excess to drip through tines of fork before transferring to the nuts.
3. Coat with nuts, still holding hull. Shake gently before transferring to beaten egg. Dip in beaten egg, smoothing off excess, and then coat with cracker crumbs up to hull. Place on wire racks and chill 30 min. to set coating.
4. Fry berries, 6 or 8 at a time, in the hot fat until golden brown (less than 1 min.). Be sure that temperature of fat is heated to 365°F. after each frying. Carefully remove with slotted spoon. Drain on paper towel-lined rack.
5. Serve warm with sifted confectioners' sugar, a small individual bowl for each serving, if desired. 6 to 8 servings

Our regular price for this Component System is $69.95—yet now, as part of this special introductory offer, you may take it for only $14.95 when you join the Columbia Record Club and buy three records now at the regular Club price of only $4.98 each.

Your only additional obligation as a member of the Club will be to purchase a record a month during the coming year . . . records you'd probably buy anyway! The Club will offer you hundreds of records to choose from each month . . . all described in a colorful music magazine which you will receive free! You'll find records from every field of music—the best-sellers from many different labels. You may accept the regular monthly selection for the field of music in which you are mainly interested . . . or take any of the other records offered.

YOUR OWN CHARGE ACCOUNT! Upon enrollment, the Club will open a charge account in your name. You pay for your records only after you have received them—played them—enjoyed them! The records you want will be mailed and billed to you at the regular Club price of $4.98 (Classical and occasional special albums somewhat higher), plus a mailing and handling charge.

FREE RECORDS! Once you've completed your enrollment agreement, you'll get a record free (only 25¢ for mailing and handling) for every additional record you buy thereafter! That's like getting almost a 50% discount on all the records you want for as long as you want!

START ENJOYING ALL THE EXCITEMENT of listening to your favorite music on your own Columbia Component System. Fill in the coupon now and mail it with your check or money order for only $14.95. Your Columbia Component System and the three stereo records of your choice will be sent to you promptly (along with a bill to cover mailing and handling charges and your first three records). Don't delay—the number of component systems we have manufactured for this offer is limited—it's first come, first served! Send for yours today!

ANN-MARGRET TELLS

How My Husband Changed My Life

Ann-Margret and Roger Smith.

ANN-MARGRET dresses as bizarre off-camera as on. During a New York visit, she emerged in a pop-art pants suit, saucer-sized earrings, and make-up to pale an artist's palette.

"Take them off," said her husband, actor-director Roger Smith.

"It's kooky."

"It's horrible. Take them off. The perfume, too."

An hour later, Ann-Margret reappeared, modified, although hardly subdued, in what appeared to be lounging pajamas and a tiara. The incident characterized a two-and-one-half-year marriage which has changed both the lives and careers of Ann-Margret and Roger Smith.

Ann-Margret, the leggy Swedish-born girl from a small resort town in northern Illinois, has had an unenviable reputation as one of Hollywood's worst actresses and most uncooperative stars—winner of the press' "Sour Apple Award." Now, while hardly an Oscar threat, she has emerged as a movie and tv favorite (she has an NBC special next Sunday) with a take-the-knocks-with-a-grin personality.

Roger Smith is the answer. "We courted five years before we married," Ann-Margret says, "because I distrusted him. I distrusted everybody. Why not, the way people wrote about me. I found one writer riffling my desk in my bedroom for personal notes.

"I guess I wasn't prepared for the rough treatment you get when you become an actress. (Ann-Margret hit stardom quickly in "Bye, Bye Birdie.") I'd been raised as an only child in a warm family, both here and in Sweden, where we visited often. Aunts cuddled me, one uncle even took me on a motorcycle trip around Sweden. Then, bang—I was a target for nastiness and put-downs.

"I hurt easily, but worse, my mother and father hurt even more easily. I even dropped the 'Olsen' part of my name because I thought it would be easier on them. But Dad can't help reading everything about me, and the pain some of it causes him makes me cry.

"So poor Roger had to win my trust. Still, I think he was flattered when he won it. He knew how hard it was for me to give it. And he knew, too, once I gave trust, it was total.

"When a woman like me marries, she expects the man to be all man, to take complete charge of her life. Roger has done that. He has had his fill of acting (tv series "77 Sunset Strip" and "Mister Roberts") and wanted to direct (his first film as a director is "The First Time"). He knew, too, that my career had gone sour—and me with it.

"He didn't say anything before we were married, but he did afterward. He told me what was wrong. I had done more films than any other actress in a comparable time, taking anything the studio threw at me. Terrible things, without even a question from me. No more of that, said Roger, even if it means legal trouble.

"Now he plans my whole life. He manages me; he produced my tv specials; he reads every script and selects only what's right for me. That's the kind of man I married. That's the kind of man I wanted to marry."

Now they live on a seven-acre estate in Beverly Hills. "I hide away on my seven acres of silence," she sighs, "and they can't touch me any more." The house once belonged to Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall, and Ann-Margret has great plans —Swedish kitchen, country-English drawing room, French dining room —but they spend only a few days a month there.

By this time, Ann-Margret is eating a robust lunch. She explains: "I'd better fill up now. Roger just told me—'No meals over the weekend. Your cheekbones are filling out, and we're shooting Tuesday. By then I want to see lots of bone in those cheeks. They're your trademark.' "

So next time you see Ann-Margret, never mind any improvements in acting. Watch those cheekbones: they come from strict orders of love.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

When asked by a friend if his married life was a happy one, Judson replied: "Yes, I married the girl of my dreams. She is as beautiful to me now as the day I first met her. Her hands are always soft and white. Her complexion is peaches and cream. Her hair is never untidy, and she is always well-groomed and dressed in the height of fashion."

"So you don't regret a thing?" persisted his companion.

"No," replied Judson, "but between you and me, I'm getting pretty tired of eating in restaurants." —F. G. Kernan

Maybe 'Denver' Will Get Milsap Out of Memphis

By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEA News Editor

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(NEA)—It's a hot, muggy night in Memphis, a night like so many, as Herbie O'Mell moves around his darkened club, TJ's, looking for trouble, counting the house and wondering how man managed to survive before the coming of air conditioning.

Planted firmly in the middle of a shopping plaza—two doors down from a liquor store and around the corner from a supermarket—Herbie's place is typical of thousands of live music rooms all over the country. It's the kind of place where college kids come to guzzle beer and hear young performers. The stars of the future? Maybe, maybe not.

It happened here before when a man named Col. Tom Parker took a kid named Elvis Presley, a local boy who grew up just a few miles down the road in Tupelo, Miss., and made him one of the giants of the music business. Everybody figures it could happen again.

And so it is that at this moment on this night in this city—half a country away from both Broadway and Hollywood—dozens of young musicians are warming up their instruments, crossing their fingers and stepping

Born in North Carolina and educated in Georgia, Ronnie is blind—something that doesn't seem to bother him very much.

"Ray Charles is blind," he says, petting his seeing-eye poodle, "but he's doing O.K. Besides, I've never been able to see and I don't know what it would be like. Maybe if I could see I couldn't sing. It might shake me up too much to know what was going on around me."

Sitting at the keyboard, surrounded by a drummer, a bass player and two guitarists, Ronnie stares into the darkness, seeing nothing, and rocks into "Denver," his biggest record so far. Although he'll do four shows tonight, this will be the only time he'll do "Denver," because, he says, "I don't like to be pushy."

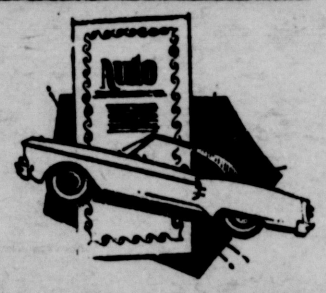

Ronnie's record is on the Scepter label. There's an LP in the works, based on the initial reaction to "Denver," and O'Mell, who manages him, is talking about taking Ronnie on the road "as soon as he's ready."

"One record can do it," Ronnie says hopefully, adjusting his sunglasses. "Maybe 'Denver' will be the one. 'Blue Suede Shoes' did it for Presley."

D-Day Bills Still Pour In

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

Fleischer is directing the American portion of "Tora! Tora! Tora!", the monumental movie about Pearl Harbor which 20th Century-Fox is doing from both the Japanese and American points of view.

Shooting in Pearl Harbor, Fleischer had set a scene revolving around an underwater explosion—which takes some 40 minutes to rig up. The script had a sailor reacting to the explosion with the words, "Jesus Christ," then turning to find a chaplain standing next to him and adding, "That was a prayer, padre, not a cuss word."

During the rehearsal, Fleischer would say "Bang!" to indicate the explosion, and the actor reacted perfectly. Came the actual take, the explosion exploded—but the actor didn't say his words.

"What happened?" Fleischer said.

"You didn't say 'Bang!' " said the actor.

The battle scenes will take up about two-thirds of the second half of "Tora! Tora! Tora!" Fleischer says filming them required the epitome in teamwork and timing—getting the planes, the smoke, the explosions, the stuntmen to co-ordinate their actions.

He thinks it will be worth the effort. Besides being good action, it is, he says, a historical document. And he believes it will stir up considerable controversy.

Elmo Williams produced "Tora! Tora! Tora!" and says it took four years of his life—or will, before it is released next spring. He estimates the cost at around $22 million.

"But it's hard to tell about cost," he says. "We're still getting bills. Like when I produced 'The Longest Day.' We just now settled a bill for damage to an oyster bed in France—and that movie was made six years ago."

Williams says that between the American and Japanese segments, some 12 hours of film was shot. He's snipped that down to four hours and 10 minutes now, and needs to edit out another hour. It isn't easy.

One amusing by-product of the civil rights movement is mentioned by the great black comedian, George Kirby.

"In days gone by," Kirby says, "the black comics couldn't play the top clubs—only white comics were allowed. We used to accuse the white comics of coming to see our acts in the black clubs, and stealing our material.

"But now we can play anywhere—and, man, you know what's happening? We're stealing from ourselves. One young comic — b l a c k — is using big chunks of my act. I can understand taking one joke, but I can't see taking a whole routine, like he does."

Kirby is one of those who is convinced we are being watched by people from other planets. He thinks we'd better be careful how we act, because somebody from somewhere is down here and keeping an eye on us.

"We shouldn't spend so much money on moon travel and trying to go to outer space," he says. "We should instead fix things up down here on Earth—things like poverty and all that."

Michel Piccoli made his first American movie—"Topaz." He says that once inside the studio, everything was the same.

"I could tell who was the prop man by looking at him," he says, "and who was the electrician and who was the make-up man. All prop men everywhere look the same, all electricians look the same, all make-up men look the same."

"SURE I KNOW THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN GOOD AND BAD . . . IF MOM DOESN'T CATCH ME, THAT'S GOOD!"

UP ANCHOR!

KREIGH COLLINS

IN THE EARLY HOURS, WHILE THE COAST GUARD AT ST. IGNACE PREPARED TO SEARCH FOR THE MOTORLESS TIVA, THE SINGERS STRUGGLED TO KEEP THE LEAKING BOAT AFLOAT

THANK HEAVENS SIS IS AT CAMP. WONDER IF I SHOULD TRY TO SAVE THIS OLD SAWDUST DOLL I MADE FOR HER --

KEEP 'EM MOVING, SON, THE LEAK IS GAINING -- SAWDUST? HEY, GIMME THAT DOLL AND THAT DRAWER!

TEAR THAT DOLL APART-- DUMP THE SAWDUST IN THIS DRAWER-- THEN WE'LL SHOVE THE SAWDUST BOX UNDER TIVA!

THE LEAK'S ALONG THE GARBOARDS. WE'LL SHOVE THIS BOX UNDER AS FAR AS WE CAN, SO THE SAWDUST WILL FLOAT UP AND BE SUCKED INTO THE LEAK-- UNDERSTAND, SON?

LEAK

SAWDUST

DAD! THE LEAK'S SLOWING UP!

(KREIGH'S NOTE: IF A SAWDUST TREATMENT WORKS, IT IS ALMOST INSTANTANEOUS)

AT LEAST WE'LL STAY AFLOAT. NOW IF ANYBODY SAW OUR FLARES AND ALERTED THE COAST GUARD--

I HEAR A PLANE!

I SEE IT, DAD--A CHOPPER!

IT'S THE COAST GUARD! BOY AM I GLAD TO SEE THOSE GUYS!

WHILE YOU WERE SHOPPING, NEWCOMERS HAVE MOVED IN ON BOTH SIDES OF OUR HOUSE!

© 1969 by NEA, Inc.

IT'S NICE TO HAVE A CHANGE OF NEIGHBORS, I ALWAYS SAY!

THE ONES ON THE WEST SIDE SEEM TO BE VERY INDUSTRIOUS!

I THINK THEY MUST BE SISTERS, THEY SEEM TO HAVE THE SAME KIND OF FIGURES!

6-22

WHEN DID THEY MOVE IN?

AT THE SAME TIME THE OTHER FAMILY DID.

AS I SAID BEFORE, IT'S NICE TO HAVE A CHANGE OF NEIGHBORS,

WHO MOVED IN ON THE EAST SIDE OF US?

I DON'T KNOW. I HAVEN'T LOOKED YET.

OH, NO! NOT AGAIN! JUST AS EVERYTHING GETS QUIET IN THE SANCTUARY— AND YOU COULD HEAR A PIN DROP — MY STOMACH HAS TO START GRUMBLING!

SAY, I COULDN'T HELP NOTICING DURING THE 'SILENT' PRAYER, YOUR STOMACH WAS — ER — SHALL WE SAY — 'MUSICAL!'

YES, BUT IF YOU THINK IT WAS 'MUSICAL' THEN...

...YOU SHOULD HAVE HEARD IT DURING THE HYMNS!

DEAR POLLY—I live in a mobile home and I'm always on the lookout for space-savers. I solved the problem of storing toys by keeping them in a closet in plastic trash cans with lids.—PAULINE

DEAR POLLY—For many years we tried to outwit our dog when he had to take pills. We would wrap the pill with hamburger but he daintily removed it and ate the meat. Now we seem to have a fool-proof system we'd like to share with dog-loving readers. Mash the pill between the bowls of two spoons. Work this powder into a small amount of raw beef. It works best if you throw the small balls of "medicine beef" and let the dog catch them. He gulps it down before he realizes you have finally put one over on him.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—When buying a tube pan for baking an angel food cake make sure the tube is taller than the sides of the pan. It will keep the top of the cake from touching when you turn it upside down for cooling.—VIOLA

DEAR POLLY—To brighten my linen and clothes closets I had light colored linoleum put on the floors. They not only look brighter and neater but are easier to keep clean. This can be done in the cabinet under the kitchen and bathroom sink.—MRS. P. J. O.

DEAR POLLY—I have a sharp pointer. A covered steel wool pad (soapless) makes a wonderful pincushion that keeps needles and pins very sharply pointed and smooth for faster and easier sewing.—F. N. G.

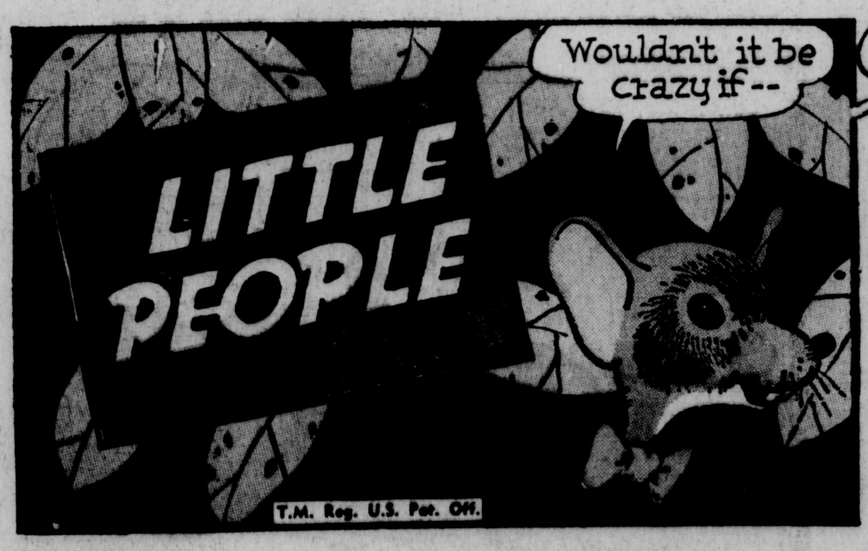

DEAR POLLY—I remove rubber heel marks from my kitchen floor by rubbing baking soda on them with a damp cloth.—A. M.

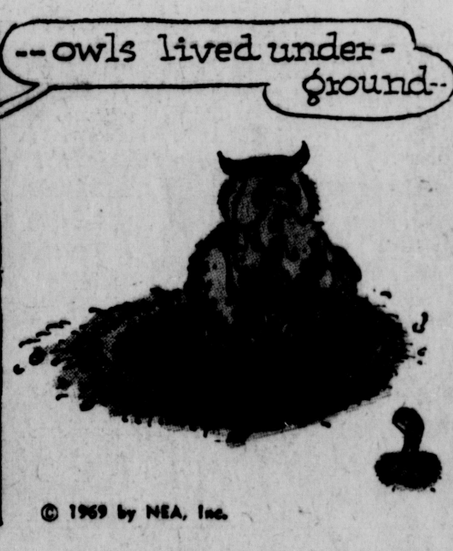

DEAR POLLY—My mother told me that when the shortening can is almost empty quite a bit can be salvaged by slipping the can in a warm oven and letting it melt. Now every bit can be poured out.—MRS. J. F. H.

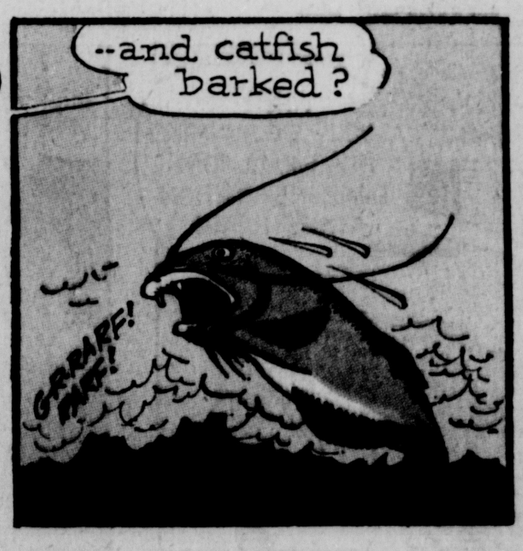

DEAR POLLY—If I make a mistake when knitting and have to unravel a bit, I wet the raveled yarn, wrap it around a little piece of cardboard and let dry. I find this a great solution for a common knitters problem.—EDITH
